Personality

After becoming overly successful, Oh Il-nam was always looking for new ways to have fun. Il-nam seems to have affection for his family, especially his son, based on how he speaks about them. He rationalized the Squid Games by stating that they offered some fun and believed that poor people who played the games suffered as much as wealthy people in terms of lacking purpose.

Il-nam participated in the last death game he created while nearing the end of his life, the 33rd Squid Game, and genuinely enjoyed playing it. During the game, he befriended Seong Gi-hun and became his gganbu. Gi-hun was probably the first genuine friend Il-nam had in a long time, and because of this, Il-nam enjoyed playing with him. Before his death, Il-nam explained to Gi-hun that playing with him made him remember things from the past he had long forgotten and spent his final moments talking him out of his survivor's guilt and encouraging him to use his money rather than waste his life away. He also casted the decisive vote in the 33rd Squid Game, allowing the participants to go home.

History

As a child, Oh Il-nam would play with his friends until they got bored. Some of the games Il-nam played during his childhood included Red Light, Green Light; Marbles; and Tug of War, rarely ever losing the latter. At some point, he got married and had at least one child a son.

Il-nam explaining his decision to play in the 33rd Squid Game to the Front Man.

Eventually, Il-nam became a businessman and tycoon through loan sharking but got bored with living a rich lifestyle. He then befriended some clients in his financial corporation, who shared Il-nam's thoughts on life being no fun for them despite their riches. Wanting to have some fun, Il-nam and his clients came up with the idea of the Squid Games, which began in 1988. Il-nam's clients became the VIPs, who have spectated the games ever since. Il-nam himself became the host, spectating the games alongside the VIPs from 1988 to 2019. At an unknown point during the year of 2015, Il-nam offered Player 132 (Hwang In-ho) a knife to kill the other finalists after the fifth game of the 28th Squid Game. Why he offered him in particular is unclear.

By 2020, Il-nam was diagnosed with a brain tumour and had not very long left to live. Wanting to relive his childhood memories before his death, Il-nam believed he would have more fun playing the 33rd Squid Game rather than watching it; therefore, he decided to participate in the game as Player 001.

When Seong Gi-hun first wakes up in his bunk bed at the training facility, one of the first details he picks up on is that every player has been assigned a number based on when they were recruited. As the last of the 456 players to sign his contract, Gi-hun is Player 456. In what seems like a happy coincidence at the time, the first person Gi-hun speaks to is Il-nam.

Taking pity on the older man for being at such a physical and mental disadvantage in the game, Gi-hun befriends Il-nam ahead of the first round. When it becomes clear that the games they're participating in are potentially fatal, most of the players panic and rush to find a way to escape, unlike Il-nam who remains unfazed and manages to inch across the line with a smile on his face in the "Red Light, Green Light" game before Gi-hun makes it across. Il-nam wearing his VIP mask. After the first game, the players decided to vote to end the games, among 201 players, the vote was tied 100-100, leaving the final decision in the hands of Il-nam, the old man thought about his decision and voted for "X", finishing the vote 100-101 and ending the games. After the games are temporarily cancelled, Gi-hun has a surprise encounter with Il-nam at a convenience store a few blocks from his house. When Gi-hun asks Il-nam what he's doing in the area, Il-nam explains he was visiting a friend and sits down with Gi-hun to talk over a packet of ramen noodles. The two get along and Il-nam uses their time together to discuss his desire to re-enter the games, remarking that he won't live much longer anyway, and he thinks that the outside world is a worse hell than the games. He states he prefers to play the games, claiming he might even have a chance to win, then just sit around waiting to slowly die from his brain tumor. Influenced by Il-nam's words and his mother's medical bills, Gi-hun also decides to return.

As the games continue, Gi-hun and Il-nam form an alliance with Ali Abdul, a factory worker from Pakistan, and Gi-hun's former classmate Cho Sang-woo. Despite his physical and mental disadvantages, Il-nam is able to breeze through the Sugar Honeycombs in round two and provided a tactical plan for the rest of his team in the tug-of-war challenge in round three which, along with a last-minute strategy by Sang-woo, helps them win. He also helped end the Special Game by pleading with the staff to "stop this madness" moments before the Pink Guards enter the room to stop it. At one point during the games, before Marbles, Il-nam had wet himself during the night, which Gi-hun covered up by tying his jacket round him.

The next day, Gi-hun and the other surviving players proceed to the next game and begin picking teams. Gi-hun notices that Il-nam had wet himself the previous night and covers it up by tying his tracksuit round him. He later notices Il-nam sitting alone and decides to become his partner for the next game. They are then introduced to the fourth game, Marbles. To win the game, the players have to try to steal all of their opponent's marbles without violence while playing a sub-game with them. The person who ends up with no marbles is killed off and eliminated. They have a time limit of 30 minutes. If no one wins by then, both players will be eliminated. Their opponent in the game is who they chose to be their partner. This comes as a shock to everyone as they had partnered up with someone they trust, not knowing what the game really was. Il-nam becoming gganbu with Seong Gi-hun before their game of Marbles. Gi-hun tries to play the game with Il-nam, but the old man seemingly has suffered a severe lapse in his lucidity. He wanders around the game arena, saying this is his home neighborhood and tries to find his house. Because of the old man's confusion, it takes a lot of insistence for Gi-hun to convince him to play. When Il-nam finally accepts to play marbles, Gi-hun finds himself losing until he has one marble left, but realizing Il-nam cannot remember his bet, lies to him and begins winning back their marbles. Eventually, Il-nam finds himself out of marbles and asks 456 if he could borrow one marble. Gi-hun apologizes and is about to hand over his marbles to a guard, when Il-nam reveals he has one marble left. Gi-hun then frantically counts his marbles and sure enough, he is one short and has not won yet. However, instead of continuing the game, Il-nam gets back up again and continues "searching for his house". Gi-hun follows Il-nam around, begging him to keep playing. The old man suggests betting everything on one game, to which Gi-hun is outraged. However, Il-nam then reveals that he was aware of Gi-hun's deception the whole time and has been letting him win. Disgusted at his own actions, Gi-hun begins to cry, but Il-nam hands him his last marble, letting him win anyway, saying that they're "gganbu" who share everything with each other. Gi-hun sobs uncontrollably while the old man hugs and reassures him, telling him that he made his time in the games more enjoyable. Eventually, the timer hits zero, and Gi-hun is forced to leave his friend. Before Gi-hun is escorted out, Il-nam tells him he finally remembers his full name: Oh Il-nam. After Gi-hun left Il-nam with a soldier, a gunshot is heard, and the announcer says that Il-nam was eliminated. Gi-hun continues to slowly walk away, crying.

Il-nam explaining his actions to Gi-hun.

One year after the 33rd Squid Game, Il-nam invited the winner, Gi-hun, to his deathbed. He reveals to Gi-hun that his brain tumor has gotten even more aggressive than before, as seen with his respirator and bald head. Il-nam revealed his role as the creator and host of the Squid Games and explained his motivations to an angry Gi-hun. It is revealed that he was an extremely rich man who made his fortune by lending out money as a career. He created the Games as a source of amusement for other very wealthy people, who would bet on the outcomes and survivors of the games. Il-nam believed the Squid Games ultimately provided a service for the contestants as well, because even though the majority of them were killed, it also provided a distraction from their monotonous lives and an opportunity to win money and escape from their dire financial situations. He also viewed the games as a test of whether people have any innate goodness remaining, and after years of watching contestants betray each other to survive, he had adopted a pessimistic view of the nature of humanity.

Fate

It had been such a long time... since I... was able to have that much fun.

Il-nam's last words before dying in "One Lucky Day"

Il-nam's death.

Il-nam also explained that he participated in the Squid Games just to have some final enjoyment in his life, as he had always been a spectator and never a participant. He made a final wager regarding the nature of humanity, observing a drunk man passed out on the street and betting whether he would receive help or not. With his final words, Il-nam reveals the reason he let Gi-hun live is because he genuinely enjoyed playing with him during the games, noting it'd been such a long time since he'd had that much fun. Gi-hun wins the bet, and Il-nam actually dies moments later. Hwang In-ho later stood next to the bed of Il-nam, reflecting on the conversation he'd had with him a year before during the 33rd Squid Game before closing his eyes and walking away, assuming full control of the games following Il-nam's death.

Legacy

In "△", Il-nam is seen in his VIP attire during In-ho's flashback to his offer from 2015.

Later in the same episode, when Kang No-eul investigated the host room, she happened to stumble upon both of Il-nam's statues; one that is a mannequin with his VIP suit, and the other is a wax figure, identically resembles Il-nam appearance with his Player 001 attire during the 33rd Squid Game in 2020. The wax figure is presumably created to honor Il-nam's legacy after his death in 2021, from a brain tumor.

Why the hesitation? Tomorrow morning, the others will come for you, doing everything they can to kill you. So, take the knife and kill them. At this point, it is the best chance you got.

Players

Created Squid Game, designed to kill at most 455 players annually, and by making the Special Game, he drove people insane to the point of killing others after finding out that more deaths are equal to more money. People excluded are the players in every edition of the games that didn't return after voting (notably Player 066) and himself in the 33rd Squid Game, Park Gyeong-seok and Kim Jun-hee's baby in the 37th Squid Game, and Hwang In-ho in the 28th and 37th editions. The exact number of deceased players are unknown, since it's possible the games we're voted to be terminate not only during the 33rd Squid Game, but in other Annual games off-screen too.

Relationships

Seong Gi-hun (close friend) - Il-nam developed a close friendship with Gi-hun during the 33rd Squid Game's. It's quite possible that Gi-hun is the only person, other than Il-nam's wife and son, that he genuinely cared about, largely due to Gi-hun reminding Il-nam of his son and his kindness. As in the 33rd Squid Game he's mostly honest with Gi-hun telling him about his past sharing food with him and generally helped him out in the games as much as he can. In Marbles he let Gi-hun to defeat him and move on as he generally did have fun with Gi-hun seeing him as a true friend. It's noticeable that Il-nam summoned Gi-hun to see and talk to him again when he was on his death bed as he didn't like Gi-hun wasting his life away.

Hwang In-ho (student and successor) - Il-nam and In-ho have a mysterious but close relationship. Il-nam meet In-ho in the the 28th Squid Game. Il-nam offered him a knife to kill the other finalists after the fifth game. Why he offered him in particular is currently unknown, but he eventually chose In-ho as his second in command and successor. They appear to share the same view on humanity seeing it as selfish and cruel. Despite his lack of regard for game staff's lives, In-ho seems to truly care for and respect Il-nam making sure his boss was safe in the 33rd Squid Game ending the Special Game at his request. In-ho also visited Il-nam's death bed to pay his respects. Even after Il-nam's death In-ho along with the VIPs, continue to show great respect and admiration for Oh Il-nam, even joining them in raising a toast in his memory.

Team Four (partners for Tug of War) - Il-nam didn't search for a partner like how Gi-hun suggested to his small team, sitting alone. He admits he didn't bring a partner. However, Han Mi-nyeo joins their team at the last second, forming the complete Team Four. He was the one who made the others apply his strategy to action, like how he had played Tug of War as a child back then. And it nearly fails due to Team Five's brute force, until Cho Sang-woo's last minute trick made their team succeed and complete the game.

Foreshadowing

There have been multiple details in episodes of Season 1 that indicate Il-nam's role is not just a player. Here are those listed:

In Red Light, Green Light, Il-nam is the only player who continues playing the game as normally after the initial panic and is, in fact, seemingly joyful during the entire thing.

In Hell, despite Gi-hun's previous conversation with Il-nam inferring that the latter would continue playing due to the tumor, Il-nam chooses to press X much to Gi-hun's relief.

Additionally, Il-nam is the only player outside the games who wasn't shown in a personal or financial crisis, only showing up when meeting Gi-hun and going back to the Squid Games through the van. Il-nam was the only player not shown being gassed out of the other players that were shown being picked up.

If one looks closely during the convenience store conversation, a similar van used by the guards to pick up players was parked behind Gi-hun. The van used by the guards parked behind Gi-hun during his conversation with Il-nam in Hell.

In Stick to the Team, the Front Man ceases the Special Game right after Il-nam says to end it all.

At the same episode, Il-nam gives advice on how to win Tug-of-War to the best of his team's advantage. While this may seem normal considering his age, this can also be interpreted that he knows more than just street smarts.

In A Fair World, after Team Four won the Tug-of-War, Il-nam is the only player whose shackles weren't locked.

This could be up to debate as the producers might consider Oh Yeong-su's age at the time of filming.

In Gganbu, Il-nam is the only main character whose corpse is not shown nor is he seen being shot, as his "death" was off-screen. Also, there is not a sound of his corpse dropping.

Il-nam also reminisces that this layout is familiar to his old neighborhood. This implies the layout is modeled after Il-nam's actual neighborhood.

He also temporarily "loses his memory" and regains it at the perfect time to shame Gi-hun.

Continuing the same episode above, Il-nam is the only player not seeking a pair, because he presumably knew that the player count was odd and that the person without a pair was let go without being shot.

Jun-ho finds records of the 33rd Squid Game, and Player 002 is the first to be shown. This is because Il-nam is a host.

His player number, 001, foreshadows his role in the Squid Games.

His name, Il-nam, literally translates to "First Man".

Trivia

He is not listed as a player in the 33rd Squid Game archives due to him being a host, as the book starts with Player 002.[2]

When visiting with his fellow VIPs, he wears a mirrored owl mask.

He is the last character who died in the first season.

Il-nam states that people will look down on Gi-hun if he doesn't have a jacket. This is reflected in Season 3 with not only Gi-hun, but also with Jang Geum-ja and Kim Jun-hee, who all end up with no jacket, and are essentially at the bottom amongst the players.

He is one of the three characters in the series that died from natural causes, alongside Oh Mal-soon and Hwang In-ho's wife.

Season 1 Episode 6's title is a reference to Il-nam, and he is one of five characters or groups in the series to have at least one episode refer to them, alongside Seong Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho, Kim Jun-hee, and the VIPs as a whole.

His given name begins with 'il,' which also means one, so when his elimination is announced, it sounds very similar to his name.

Front Man is the only episode of season one he was not featured in.

Behind the scenes

Oh Il-nam was portrayed by actor Oh Yeong-su. He is indirectly the overarching antagonist of Squid Game, due to his role as the creator of the event.

Equality. Everyone is equal while they play this game. Here, every player gets to play a fair game under the same conditions. These people suffered from inequality and discrimination out in the world, and we're giving them one last chance to fight fair and win. But you broke that principle.

Hwang In-ho before executing Soldier 001 for being involved in the the Organ trafficking ring in "A Fair World"

Hwang In-ho (황인호 Hwang In-ho?, born February 2, 1976), also known as the Front Man (프론트 맨 Puelonteu Maen?), is the main antagonist of Squid Game. He is the current head staff member and the person who oversees the Squid Games. He is the brother of Hwang Jun-ho and became the Front Man after participating in and winning the 28th Squid Game in 2015 as Player 132. In 2020, his brother infiltrated the 33rd Squid Game in an attempt to find him after he went missing.

The Front Man wields absolute control over all three classes of guards and observes the survival competition games through several monitoring screens as the games unfold. He sometimes steps in when a situation gets out of control during the games, such as when the identity of a staff member is somehow revealed (which is forbidden in the games), in which case the Front Man storms in and executes the exposed staffer.

The Front Man also is often seen answering phone calls back at his quarters, communicating with the person on the other line about the ongoing competition. In the games, this is usually the Host, whose orders he carries out. He also ensures that the VIPs have a good time while watching the game.

Following Oh Il-nam's passing, Hwang In-ho succeeds him and becomes the current Host of the Squid Games.

While participating in the 37th Squid Game as Player 001, In-ho used the alias Oh Young-il (오영일 O Yeong-il?).

Hwang In-ho to a Seong Gi-hun before executing Park Jung-bae in "Friend or Foe"

In-ho masked as the "Front man"

As the Front Man, In-ho is cold and calculating, being the main overseer of the games. He is shown to be remorseless with his killing, showing no sign of hesitation when killing others who get in his way. He is highly analytical and meticulous with his anonymity as well as his planning, ensuring that the games are hidden from the outside world. Despite his overall lack of morality, however, In-ho places a lot of importance on maintaining equality and fairness in the games. He views it as one of the games' most important aspects and is incredibly strict with it to the point of going as far as killing those who take advantage of the games' nature to get ahead.

Under the alias Oh Young-il, he disguised himself as a player of the games, and presented himself as level-headed, logical, and reasonable. He appeared highly empathetic and caring of others, such as when he aided Kim Jun-hee upon hearing that she is pregnant, even offering her his milk during mealtime, and saved Jang Geum-ja alongside Seong Gi-hun during Mingle. He also stood up for Lee Myung-gi against Thanos and Nam-gyu. He appeared to have a humorous side to him as he had a habit of making bad jokes, although this may simply be an attempt to try to fit in more with others. Additionally, despite knowing that killing is allowed, he still had the restraint to spare Thanos when he begged for mercy. This suggests that while he is still a remorseless person at his core, he does not completely lack a sense of humanity as he still harbors some care towards other people. However, his overall lack of empathy towards others leads him to lack understanding of Gi-hun's own empathy towards others. As a result of this, he frequently observes Gi-hun's behavior towards others throughout the games, which he finds himself both puzzled and intrigued by. Despite this, he can be judgmental about Gi-hun's actions, shown when he smirked at the thought that Gi-hun was willing to sacrifice others in order to launch the rebellion as it contradicted his initial ideals of saving as many of the players as he could.

However, it is suggested that In-ho was more empathetic in the past and was capable of loving others as he stated that his main reason for joining the games was to save both his wife and unborn child who were both at risk of dying. In addition to this, In-ho is shown to still harbor some care for his brother Jun-ho, as he gave him a non-fatal gunshot wound on his right shoulder instead of killing him, after which he was rescued and brought back to shore, presumably by a fisherman that In-ho sent to save him. He also appears to hold genuine respect for his master Oh Il-nam, ending the Special Round at his request and visiting his deathbed to pay his respects after the latter passes away.

In-ho's extreme intelligence has been showcased on many occasions, most notably in Season Two. Apart from his behavior during the games, he was able to keep track of Gi-hun who had been searching for him for the past two years without him knowing, and was thus able to capture him which led him to rejoin the games. With his wits, he aided Gi-hun and his team through the second and third games under his temporary alias. However, he was shown to be emotionally manipulative, taking advantage of Gi-hun's ignorance by opening up to him about his reason for joining the games, as well as breaking down during the second game at the thought of losing to gain his trust and get closer to him, just to betray him in the end. His extreme caution comes as a result of his natural intelligence, and he was thus able to betray the team without Gi-hun realizing. He is also shown to have purposefully sabotaged the games, such as when he casted a vote to continue the games after the first game, and when he purposefully failed at the spinning top game in the second game multiple times to slow the team down and put them, especially Gi-hun under pressure. While he outwardly presented himself as a completely different person, In-ho still maintained some of his core traits, namely his ability to kill others without remorse, shown when he killed another player in the third game to save Park Jung-bae.

History

For a comprehensive history, see Hwang In-ho/History

Legacy

Front Man may seem like the embodiment of absolute evil in the story, having lost all hope in humanity and the world, but after going through all those ups and downs with Gi-hun, maybe he did have a change of heart, that there perhaps may be some hope left after all. That's how I interpreted the character and portrayed him. In the very final part of the series, he goes to find Gi-hun's daughter to leave her with Gi-hun's tracksuit as a keepsake along with his prize money. He also chooses his brother Jun-ho—the only family he deeply trusts—to take care of Jun-hee's baby. His decisions, I believe, showcase that while he tries to maintain his cold, he definitely has experienced some change of heart.

Lee Byung-hun on In-ho's change of heart

While not stopping the games and remaining loyal to the VIPs until the very end, In-ho does commit a few less-evil actions in the series finale. After watching Seong Gi-hun sacrifice himself and cling to his humanity until the end, In-ho, as confirmed by the actor, experiences a small change of heart. This leads him to save Kim Jun-hee's baby and not remain indifferent toward her, as she and Jun-hee also reminded him of his dead wife and baby, which are interesting details that the actor hopes the audience noticed.

In-ho is last seen in Los Angeles, where he accidentally spots an American recruiter from his car and exchanges strange looks with her, which might suggest they already know each other. However, according to Lee Byung-hun, that doesn't seem to be the case:

When I asked director Hwang before filming that scene to double-check, he confirmed that In-ho was also unaware that the game was being held elsewhere. So if you look closely enough, In-ho seems both surprised and bitter.

Lee Byung-hun on In-ho's final scene

Despite this confirmation, it's still true that in Season 1, the VIPs clearly told In-ho that the games in Korea were the best, which implied there were games in other countries too.

Relationships

His wife and child

In-ho's late wife and unborn child were central figures in shaping his life, unintentionally playing a role in turning him into the criminal he became: the Front Man.

In-ho and his wife were married prior to 2015 and apparently had a good marriage until In-ho's wife was diagnosed with acute liver cirrhosis. Things only got worse when it became clear that she was also pregnant, something that could seriously endanger her life. According to In-ho, his wife was a stubborn woman, and he could never change her mind when they disagreed. Eventually, In-ho decided to do everything he could to save both her and their baby.

When one of In-ho's longtime vendors heard about their situation and offered help, it was interpreted as bribery, which caused In-ho to be fired from his job. Although In-ho later claimed in a discussion with Seong Gi-hun that what he did wasn't bribery, both his stepmother and half-brother saw it that way. However, it is unclear what In-ho's wife herself thought of it, or whether she ever even learned about it.

Desperate, In-ho was invited to play the Squid Games. With saving his wife and baby in mind, he decided to do whatever it took to win, abandoning all his morals as a decades-long police officer. It is currently unclear when exactly it happened, but In-ho was unable to save his wife, as she passed away from her illness. Given the many parallels between In-ho and Seong Gi-hun, it is possible that In-ho, too, came back too late, and that his wife had already died before he could do anything with the prize money.

Her death, along with witnessing the atrocities of the games, made it impossible for In-ho to move on and return to his old life. He couldn't leave, and instead chose to stay with the games, this time as Oh Il-nam's employee, helping him run more games.

As the Front Man, In-ho is hardly the same person he was before, even when it comes to his wife. He doesn't seem to visit her grave anymore. Even so, he is still clearly traumatized by losing her and their baby. He was easily triggered by Thanos mentioning his kids, which led him to lose his temper, beat Thanos, and risk blowing his cover. He also talked about his family with Gi-hun with tears in his eyes, showing how much he still suffers when remembering them.

Hwang Jun-ho

In-ho and Jun-ho have a complicated relationship. As half-brothers, Jun-ho looked up to In-ho from an early age and decided to become a police officer just like him. In-ho loved his younger brother so much that he even gave him one of his kidneys to save his life. Their relationship became less warm after In-ho's wife got sick and In-ho allegedly accepted bribes, something Jun-ho still believes to this day, and which led to In-ho being fired from his job. Unbeknownst to Jun-ho, this eventually resulted in In-ho participating in the Squid Games and later working for the organization.

Despite not being as close anymore, In-ho managed to maintain a relatively normal relationship with Jun-ho and his stepmother for five more years after winning the 2015 Squid Games. At first, Jun-ho did not worry much when In-ho stopped answering his calls, assuring their mother that he always dodged them. It was only after searching In-ho's house and finding a Squid Game card that Jun-ho finally began searching for his missing brother.

Jun-ho infiltrated the island and risked his life to find In-ho, who he even believed had been killed there at one point. Even so, Jun-ho and In-ho eventually confronted each other as enemies, with Jun-ho realizing that his missing older brother was actually the leader of the guards and a criminal. Although In-ho shot Jun-ho, he also had someone save him afterward, which suggests that he still cared about his little brother.

Jun-ho and In-ho remain enemies for the rest of the series. However, Jun-ho keeps In-ho's true identity a secret from everyone else, indirectly protecting him. They meet again in the final season shortly before the island explodes. The meeting gives Jun-ho no answers, as In-ho once again stays silent and refuses to respond to his brother's only question: "why?"

Six months later, In-ho mysteriously leaves Kim Jun-hee's baby at Jun-ho's house, suggesting that he may have finally accepted that he shouldn't keep Jun-ho completely out of his life, and that he can trust him to take care of an orphaned child.

Oh Il-nam

In-ho first met Oh Il-nam when he was a participant in the 28th Squid Games. While not much is currently known about his reasons, Il-nam decided to help In-ho by offering him a knife to protect himself against the remaining finalist players. In-ho ultimately won the games and later worked for Il-nam as the Front Man, indicating a mutual trust between the two.

In 2021, Il-nam passed away due to his brain tumor, with In-ho closing his eyes and being the only person shown visiting and taking care of him.

In-ho strongly believed in Il-nam's nihilistic worldview, sharing his negative views on humanity and opposing Seong Gi-hun's ideals in a similar way. The parallels go even deeper, as in the 2024 Squid Games, In-ho used the name "Oh Young-il," which resembles Il-nam's name in more than one way, and he also took the number 001, the same number Il-nam had in 2020. After being praised by the VIPs for doing a top-notch job as the new Host, In-ho humbly said that he was simply upholding Il-nam's wishes.

Seong Gi-hun

As Player 456, In-ho observed Gi-hun throughout the 2020 Squid Games, but their first actual meeting happened after Gi-hun won, when In-ho met him in a limousine with Gi-hun's eyes closed. Though brief, this conversation became one of the main reasons Gi-hun began to despise the games, as it showed how the VIPs saw the players as mere "horses" and enjoyed betting on them.

After teaming up with Hwang Jun-ho and deciding to stop the games once and for all, Gi-hun's main goal was to meet the Front Man again, either to convince him to stop or to capture him, but he ultimately failed at both. However, Gi-hun managed to convince In-ho to let him participate again, hoping that Jun-ho and the others would track him and find the island. Unbeknownst to Gi-hun, In-ho realized his true plan and shut it down before it could work.

As important as their first limousine meeting was to Gi-hun, their second meeting was just as important to In-ho. He accepted Gi-hun's challenge and allowed him to try and prove that humans are not as hopeless as he and his "masters" believe. In-ho even added a new rule, allowing players to vote after each game and leave with money if the majority wanted to, intending to prove to Gi-hun that even with that advantage, people would still become greedy and choose wrong.

Their rivalry could have ended there, but after watching Gi-hun help and organize other players during Red Light, Green Light, In-ho was encouraged to enter the games personally, challenging Gi-hun directly and keeping an even closer eye on him.

As "Oh Young-il," In-ho grew relatively close to Gi-hun, becoming someone Gi-hun could rely on. He shared his true life story, although he used the present tense instead of the past to manipulate Gi-hun, and did his best to appear trustworthy and comforting. Gi-hun, unaware of who Young-il really was, cared deeply about him, tried to save him more than once, and reacted devastatedly to his "death."

After faking his death and returning as the Front Man, In-ho continued to observe Gi-hun, even preventing him from taking his own life during the Hide and Seek game. They finally meet again before the final game, when In-ho reveals his face to Gi-hun. Despite giving Gi-hun the chance to attack and kill him, Gi-hun chooses not to, knowing that In-ho's death would not change anything.

Gi-hun also receives a knife to kill the other players in their sleep, but he refuses. This choice is the opposite of what In-ho did long ago in his own games, and it makes In-ho tearfully realize that Gi-hun will never lose his humanity the way he did.

Watching Gi-hun's sacrifice, In-ho finally respects him enough to let him take his own life for the sake of his ideals. In-ho says nothing, but it is implied that he understands he has lost his bet with Gi-hun, just like Il-nam did. Six months later, In-ho visits Gi-hun's daughter in Los Angeles, gives her Gi-hun's belongings, and informs her of his death out of respect, with a shameful look on his face.

In-ho and Gi-hun's rivalry is the main dynamic of the Squid Game series as a whole, mainly in Seasons 2 and 3. Their feud is more of a clash of ideals, as both of them want to prove the other wrong when it comes to their views on humanity. This is especially true on In-ho's side; he could've killed Gi-hun many times, but he chose not to, instead giving him the chance to actually prove his points. As a fellow winner, In-ho is interested in Gi-hun's choices, tries to corrupt him, and feels inferior to him, but at the same time, a small part of him secretly keeps rooting for him throughout the story, hoping he won't lose his humanity.

Trivia

According to his player file, Hwang In-ho's resident registration number is 760202-1171651 and he lived in 37-124 Chunghyeon-dong, Seodaemun-gu, Seoul at the time of his participation in the 28th Squid Game.

Curiously, his player file makes no mention of his wife.

In-ho's 2015 player image from Season 1 was not actually taken for Squid Game; it is an edited image of Lee Byung-hun's character, Kim Hyun-jun, from the 2009 Korean series Iris.

Hwang In-ho and the subplot with Jun-ho were not in the original script. They were only added after the decision for Squid Game to be a series instead of a movie.

Lee Byung-hun, the actor who portrays Hwang In-ho, is mentioned in the series by Ji-yeong in "Gganbu" when referring to the movie Inside Men.

Lee Byung-hun playing Front Man was strictly kept a secret to make his reveal a huge surprise for the Korean audience. He wasn't credited in early Squid Game promotional materials or cast lists to avoid spoiling it. The director and production team instructed the actor to keep his role a secret—apparently, even his own mother did not know. O Yeong-su, Oh Il-nam's actor, was reportedly also surprised when he first met him on set.

While mentioning the plot lines he would like to explore in season two, Hwang Dong-hyuk stated that one of them would be the story of the Front Man and his brother.[5]

In-ho always puts the transmitter on the right side of the telephone and puts the receiver on the left.[6]

He carries a Colt M1911 pistol with nickel finish and untracable .45 ACP rounds.

He, Seong Gi-hun, and Cho Sang-woo are the only characters that appeared in all nine episodes of Season One.

Combining all three seasons, he and Seong Gi-hun are the only characters who have appeared—either in present time, flashback, or dream—in all twenty two episodes of the show.

He along with Gi-hun are the only winners known to have later returned to the games as a player.

He donated one of his kidneys to Jun-ho.[2]

In-ho is lactose intolerant.[7]

He serves as the foil to Gi-hun as he is what Gi-hun could have potentially become if he gives in to his anger and grievance.

He is the only character in the series with two episodes named after him ("Front Man" and "001") and one of five characters or groups to have at least one episode named after them, alongside Seong Gi-hun, Oh Il-nam, Kim Jun-hee, and the VIPs as a whole.

Behind the scenes

Hwang In-ho was portrayed by Lee Byung-hun. While wearing his mask, he was portrayed by Kwon Yu-Jun. In the English dub, he was voiced by Tom Choi.

I've played these games before! I said I've played these games before! I knew about the first game, because I'd already done it. 'Cause I played the exact same one. I was here three years ago, and I played them all. And every single person who was here with me... They were all killed everyone!

Seong Gi-hun to all the players during the first vote in 001 001 is the 3rd episode in Season 2 of the Netflix TV series Squid Game. It is the 12th episode of the series overall.

Synopsis[]

New players gather for a chance to win 45.6 billion won. After an intense first round, the survivors' fates hang in the balance — down to one final vote.

—Official Netflix synopsis

Plot[]

Hwang Jun-ho and his team (including Choi Woo-seok) board Sea Captain Park's ship to search for The Island where the Squid Game is being held.

Gi-hun wakes up to find himself and 454 other players in the Dormitory. Gi-hun sees that he's Player 456 again and gets out of bed, as he goes downstairs, Seon-nyeo (Player 044) calls out to him with extreme arrogance and contempt. She immediately clocks that Gi-hun is there because he wants to take revenge.

The Pink Guards arrive and one Manager welcomes the players to the Squid Games, he explains to them that the 456 players will participate in 6 games for 6 days and that those who win all 6 games will receive the handsome Prize money. Cho Hyun-ju (Player 120) tells the Manager that he told her that she was going to play games, but that she was kidnapped, so she asks him how she's going to trust what he says, the Manager apologizes and explains that it was to maintain the game's security. Lee Eun-ju (Player 283) asks the Manager why they wear masks and if their identity is also a secret, Kim Nam-du (Player 444) says that it's true, he asks why they hide their identity and if they're in an illegal gambling house, but Eun-ju says that even the dealers in those places don't wear masks, the Manager explains that they do not reveal the faces or identities of the staff to ensure that the gameplay remains fair and confidential and asks them to understand.

Kang Mi-na (Player 196) asks the Pink Guards if they stripped her to put the players' green uniform on her, Choi Su-bong/Thanos (Player 230) asks about the players' shoes, complaining that his shoes are limited edition and hard to find, and asks if they will replace them if they get ruined, Mi-na complains that her uniform is the wrong size and that she hates the colors, then she asks the Pink Guards if she can wear one of their pink suits, adding that it's her favorite color, the Manager apologizes and tells her that it can't be done, because the players must wear their uniforms for the games.

Then, Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) asks about his phone, he asks why they took his phone and wallet and asks for them back, the Manager tells him that the players' belongings are safe and that they will be returned to them when the games are over. Myung-gi asks that they at least give him his phone to check the crypto market and asks if they will compensate him if he loses money, but the Manager repeats to him that they will return their belongings when the games are over. Myung-gi tells him that he needs to be checking the prices and asks if he knows how much money he has invested, but then the Manager says Myung-gi's name and number.

The Manager plays the video of Myung-gi playing Ddakji with The Recruiter and tells his story. Myung-gi is then recognized by Thanos and Kim Jun-hee (Player 222): Myung-gi is 30 years old and the owner of a YouTube channel called MG Coin. Myung-gi convinced his subscribers to invest in a new crypto coin called Dalmatian which had turned out to be a scam and caused him and everyone had convinced to invest lose ₩15,200,000,000. After this loss, he closed his channel and disappeared, and is wanted for financial crimes: fraud and violating telecom and financial investment laws. His current debt levels are ₩1,800,000,000.

The Manager proceeds to list debts of some other players:

Kang Mi-na (Player 196) ₩45,000,000 in debt

Cho Hyun-ju (Player 120) ₩330,000,000 in debt

Choi Su-bong/Thanos (Player 230) ₩1,190,000,000 in debt

Jang Do-yeong (Player 198) ₩1,400,000,000 in debt

Kim Yeong-sam (Player 226) ₩1,900,000,000 in debt

Kim Nam-du (Player 444) ₩2,020,000,000 in debt

Sim Jae-seok (Player 343) ₩2,890,000,000 in debt

Park Mi-hwa (Player 006) ₩3,100,000,000 in debt

Lee Eun-ju (Player 283) ₩4,020,000,000 in debt

Im Jeong-dae (Player 100) ₩10,000,000,000 in debt

What are you looking at?! Think it's easy to get loans that large? They don't give out out ten billion to just anyone! You have to work in the big leagues for that!

Im Jeong-dae to the other players Everyone turns to Jeong-dae, surprised by his debt, but the bitter old man retaliates, aggressively asking what they are looking at and if they think it's easy to get a ₩10,000,000,000 loan, suggesting he is more important than the other players. Jeong-dae says that they don't lend as much money anymore and that the game is his only way to pay his debt.

The Manager tells the players that they're all living on the edge with debts that they simply cannot pay and reminds them that when they played Ddakji and won, they gave them the money they promised them and asks them if they want to live like a piece of trash — running from creditors — or take advantage of this last opportunity offered to them. Gi-hun checks his tooth to find that he still has it.

On the boat, Jun-ho is tracking the location of Gi-hun with the hidden locator in his tooth, Woo-seok thinks it's one of the islands in front of them and Jun-ho tells Captain Park to speed up.

In the Dormitory, the Manager reveals the piggy bank, he tells them that it will contain the prize money and that as they play the 6 games, the prize money will accumulate in the piggy bank. Park Yong-sik (Player 007) asks what the total value of the prize money is, he's recognized by Jang Geum-ja (Player 149) and the Manager tells Yong-sik that the total prize is ₩45,600,000,000, the players are excited to hear the total prize, Yong-sik asks if only 1 player can win and the Manager tells him that they will give the details of the prize distribution later, after the first game.

Then the Manager reveals that for that games, they will have a special new advantage, Jeong-dae asks what it's and the Manager says that at the end of each game, they can vote if they want to continue the game or finish the game, if the majority votes to finish, they can walk away with the prize money accumulated up to that point, divided by all remaining players. Gi-hun asks for clarity that this means they can just play 1 game and leave with the money and the Manager tells him that's correct.

Gi-hun turns to look at a camera and stares at it, thinking about the people behind the game, while Hwang In-ho/Front Man watches him from the control room. Geum-ja asks the players to move, she makes her way to Yong-sik and hits him, Yong-sik turns to see her and realizes that it's his mother, he asks Geum-ja what she's doing there, to which the old woman says she wants to ask her and asks her good-for-nothing son what he's doing there, Yong-sik asks his mother why she came there and tells her that that is no place for an old woman, to which Geum-ja tells her son that she came to pay his debt. Yong-sik asks the Manager why he brought an old woman there and if they will be held responsible if her mother collapses, Geum-ja tells her son that she will take care of it and that he should go home, but Yong-sik tells him that he can't, Geum-ja reminds him that he promised her to stop gambling and Yong-sik tells her that they're not going to bet there, but rather they are going to play and that he'll just play one game and leave, but the mother and the son continue to disagree with the other being there.

Players pass to sign the consent agreement and agree to play the game, Myung-gi signs the contract and leaves, but then he's confronted by Thanos and Nam-gyu (Player 124), they ask him if he's from the MG Coin channel and Myung-gi asks them who they're, Thanos tells him that he subscribed to his channel and blames him for making him lose a lot of money and Nam-gyu adds that he too, Myung-gi tells them that they are confusing him with someone else and tries to leave, but Thanos stops him, tells him that he always watches his videos and that he even sees him in his dreams, Thanos tells Myung-gi that at least thanks to him, he quickly joined Nam-gyu (whom he accidentally calls "Nam-su"). Myung-gi asks them what they want, Thanos grabs him by the neck (to the surprise of the players) and tells him that he wants him to pay him what he lost, Myung-gi frees himself and tells him that he didn't force them to buy that coin, Thanos tells him that he told his subscribers to invest all their money, that it would always go up and that if they didn't they were idiots, but Myung-gi says he always says at the end of his videos: "You are responsible for the final decision of your investment." and questions that he always sees him, Thanos tries to hit Myung-gi but Nam-gyu stops him and tells him that if he hits him it will be on the news, Thanos tells Myung-gi that he better do well since he plans to go after his money and the aggressors leave, Thanos turns to look flirtatiously at Mi-na and Myung-gi leaves, without noticing that Jun-hee is watching him.

Gi-hun reads the contract and sees that it only has 4 clauses:

1. A player is not allowed to voluntarily quit the games.
2. A player who refuses to play will be eliminated.
3. The games may be terminated upon a majority vote, in case of a tie, players will vote again.

4. If the games are terminated, players will divide the prize equally.

The Manager says that those who don't want to play, inform the staff at that moment, he and Gi-hun exchange glances and Gi-hun signs the contract.

On the boat, Captain Park questions Jun-ho for suddenly coming to search for the island with his men and reminds him that he's the captain, so he must be aware of the situation, Jun-ho tells him that he found Gi-hun, that he already participated in the games and that he was taken back to the island. Jun-ho shows Captain Park that he's locating Gi-hun with the locator. Then Woo-seok tells Jun-ho that according to his phone, it's an island in front of them, Jun-ho asks Captain Park if he knows the island and Captain Park tells him yes, he tells him that people used to live there, but nowadays, people only come to fish, Woo-seok thinks it could be the place and Jun-ho thinks it's possible, but he doesn't see any road or structure, Jun-ho tells him that he will use a drone to look for them and that he should disembark to look for the signal, Woo-seok tells him that he will do it and tells the men to prepare to disembark.

The Announcer tells the players that the first game is going to begin and they are taken to take their players' photos, Thanos is recognized by Gyeong-su (Player 256) and he's excited to see that it's a famous rapper, Gyeong-su introduces himself and tells Thanos that he is his big fan, more players recognize Thanos and get excited, everyone approaches and asks Thanos if they can take a photo with him, Nam-gyu tells the crowd to calm down and just take a photo together, Thanos tells Mi-na that she can also join but she ignores him, everyone prepares for the photo but the Manager tells them that they must take a photo one by one, the crowd asks if he can't make an exception since they took their phones but the Manager tells them that they can't, Thanos tells the crowd that he will take a photo with them when they come out, the crowd gets excited, moves and Thanos takes his photo. Mi-na, Nam-gyu, Myung-gi, Jun-hee, Seon-nyeo and Jeong-dae take their photos and Hyun-ju stops by to take her photo. Geum-ja sees her and asks Yong-sik if Hyun-ju is a man or a woman, Yong-sik realizes that Hyun-ju is a transgender woman and explains to his mother about transgender people, but Geum-ja doesn't understand and starts saying potentially offensive things about transgenderism, so her son tells her to shut up and not say that. Gi-hun stops by to take his photo and his photo is added to the control room.

On the stairs, Thanos runs to catch up with Mi-na and Gi-hun is walking when he suddenly hears someone calling him, then he realizes that it's Park Jung-bae (Player 390), his best friend, Gi-hun is surprised to see him and Jung-bae is happy to see that Gi-hun is alive, Gi-hun asks him what he's doing there and Jung-bae asks him the same question, Jung-bae tells Gi-hun that he hasn't heard from him in 3 years and that his mother died, he adds that it was his wife who told him, questions him as a friend and asks if he stopped talking to him because he did not lend him money, then Yeong-sam tells them to keep moving, Gi-hun grabs Jung-bae and they keep walking. Gi-hun tells him that it wasn't like that and that it's a long story, Jung-bae sees the point since he's there, but tells him that he should have told him about his mother and that he know how much she liked him, Gi-hun asks him what he is doing there and what about his wife, to which Jung-bae tells him that they got divorced, Gi-hun gets surprised and asks him about his daughter, to which Jung-bae tells him that she's with her mother, Gi-hun asks him why they divorced since he thought they were fine and asks if he had an affair, to which Jung-bae tells him that he would never do that, Jung-bae tells him that he doesn't want to talk about it there and that he will tell him everything with a drink when they get out. Gi-hun worries about his friend's life, puts him against the wall and tells him to stay by his side from that moment on, Jung-bae thinks he's being dramatic and accepts without understanding that Gi-hun is trying to save him from death.

On the island, they discover that the device is in a stranger's fishing bait and that they were never tracking Gi-hun's location. The man explains that someone had extra bait so they gave it to him. In the control room, the Masked Officer tells In-ho that they are ready to start the game, as In-ho leaves, the Officer orders the Managers to start video transmission.

The players arrive at the first game and it's announced that the first game is Red Light, Green Light, Thanos flirts with Mi-na, who is somewhat impressed and she focuses on Young-hee. The doors suddenly slam shut and the first game is announced. Players are shocked at it being a children's game and are mostly confused. As they wait for it to start, Gi-hun realizes that the tracker in his tooth is missing, what makes him believe that it will be his end.

Wanting to ensure that as many people live as possible, Gi-hun stands in front of everybody and announces that they will be killed if they do not comply with the game's rules and move when they're not supposed to. At first, the players don't believe him, Eun-ju then yells at him if they were really going to be killed while playing. Gi-hun answered her it was right, and even says the bullet would be shot from somewhere. Mi-na believes that he had drunk, Thanos tells her that his dad had used to be do so, but babbling when normal, saying that there is "a freaking bug" on his head. As Gi-hun tells them that Young-hee's eyes were motion detectors, much to Thanos' enjoyment as he talks about devices. Yong-sik tells the joke that they might meet their deceased father. The others were extremely confused and mad with Gi-hun, Player 066 thought that he was making it up to scare them in order to obtain the money for himself.

In Front Man's room, In-ho takes off his mask and watches the game with a drink. The game starts and the players start moving while Gi-hun tells them when to stop, which works and the 456 players manage to stay alive for 7 red lights, although some players (including Jung-bae) question what Gi-hun is doing. Mi-na wonders if Gi-hun is on drugs, but Thanos tells her no and that you don't act like that when you're on drugs, Mi-na asks if he's been on drugs before and Thanos asks why she asks. But then a bee lands on Mi-na's neck, Thanos informs her about the bee and Mi-na panics and moves to get it off, Mi-na calms down, nervously tells Thanos that she moved and lets out a laugh, then she gets shot in the head (splattering Thanos with her blood and alerting Gi-hun that she dead) and falls to the ground dead, being eliminated. Gi-hun tells everyone not to move and tells Jung-bae not to move no matter what, Thanos is shocked to see Mi-na's corpse and Gi-hun tells everyone not to move, but then Eun-ju turns to see Mi-na's corpse and screams in horror, moving and causing her to be shot in the heart, being eliminated. Players realize that if they move they will die and some of them (among which is 066) start running towards the doors, causing them to be eliminated by the shooters, one of whom is Kang No-eul.

The players realize that Gi-hun is telling the truth and no one moves for fear of being shot. Gi-hun advances in front of the others and Thanos, scared that if he loses he will die, takes out his cross (which contains drugs) and takes a drug to avoid fear, Gi-hun (with his mouth covered and his left hand behind his back) tells the players that they must get to the finish line or they will die and the doll has motion sensors and that it will not see them if they hide behind someone, so he tells them to form a line, putting the tallest people in front and the shortest people in the back.

Gi-hun's strategy works and many players manage to stay alive, and Jung-bae told him from behind, that he'll stay behind him from here on out. Although some are detected moving and are eliminated, Player 188 trembles in fear, she's detected moving and No-eul shoots her in the heart, eliminating her, Player 244 is also detected moving and No-eul proceeds to look for her to eliminate her, but then she sees Park Gyeong-seok (Player 246), she recognizes him as the father of Park Na-yeon and discovers that he entered the game to pay for his daughter's hospital. Jun-hee begins to suffer contractions from her pregnancy, which begins to attract the doll's attention and Gi-hun tells the group not to move, but then Thanos (under the effect of the drug) pushes Players 216, 257 and 270, the doll detects them moving and the 3 players are eliminated.

With Gi-hun's coordination, most of the players manage to reach the finish line and complete the game, but near the finish line, Player 165 is detected moving and is shot in the head, his corpse falls back and pushes Player 384, causing her to push Nam-du, 384 is detected moving and is shot in the heart, her corpse falls back and pushes Nam-du a little. The doll turns to look at Nam-du and he begins to declare that he did not move and that 384 pushed him, but he is detected moving and Soldier 005 shoots him in the right leg, eliminating him.

Gi-hun tells the last players that they can make it and that they are almost at the finish line, then Nam-du calls for help and Gi-hun realizes he's still alive, Gi-hun sees that there are 30 seconds left and runs to help him as Jung-bae asks where he was going. Gi-hun tells Nam-du to get up at the next Green Light, Nam-du gets up and Gi-hun carries him with Hyun-ju's help as Young-hee says Red Light. With 5 seconds left, the 3 players run and manage to reach the finish line just in time, finishing the first game.

Gi-hun asks Nam-du if he is okay and Nam-du thanks Gi-hun and Hyun-ju for saving him, but then No-eul shoots him in the head, killing him.

Woo-seok feels indignant as they cannot find Gi-hun's location, Park mentions that there will be a storm that night, so he returns home.

Back in the dormitory, they are worried as they process the aftermath of the game. Jung-bae asks Gi-hun about the doll and believes that its eyes shot bullets, but Gi-hun corrects him and explains that they are sniper teams in the walls. His proficient knowledge shocks Jung-bae who asks if he knows about that, and that he's been there before. The pink guards come to their room and congratulate them on completing the first game. They announce that 91 out of 456 people were eliminated - therefore, 365 people have successfully cleared the game. Geum-ja and Yong-sik tearfully beg them to end the games and promise to pay off their debts, and so do some of the players. Gi-hun then announces the third rule in the consent form - the games can be ended if majority of the players vote to leave.

The guards announce that the amount of money after the first game is ₩9.1 billion. They explain that if the game were to end, this money would be divided equally between players. At this stage that would mean ₩24,931,500 each, to which some players complain, stating that it's not enough to cover their debts, especially Thanos, who thought the prize should be ₩45.6 billion. The Manager explained that each eliminated player will increase the prize in ₩100 million, and if they succeed in all six games, the remaining players would get an equal amount of the ₩45.6 billion grand prize. Yeong-sam also asks to them if one survivor only can get the whole prize money of ₩45.6 billion, to which the manager says that it was correct. And Do-yeong asks if there are another vote in the next game, the manager said they will have voting in each game ended.

In the vote, each person chooses either 'X' or 'O' on whether they want to continue the games or not. They are given a badge with that corresponding letter to put on their jackets and stand on either side of the room. The vote starts from the largest number, 456, to the smallest, 001. As he's Player 456, Gi-hun is the first to vote. While walks toward to the vote, Seon-nyeo yells to players that everything was pointless, which says that their existence and lost weren't be decided by themselves, which their gods do. She even says that they couldn't escape from the game organize, no matter how hard they tried. Gi-hun then walks to the vote, who naturally votes 'X'. The process continues with the number of votes being extremely tight. After Thanos' vote, at which point the 'X'-'O' score was 87-93, Gi-hun advises the other players (who haven't casted their votes yet) to stop the game and vote to leave. Jeong-dae, scolds him for always instigating them, Player 254 blames him for almost killing her after hearing that they would be shot in the first game, because she was too nervous and almost died, Yeong-sam also suspects that he is part of the game's staff as he knew that the soldiers would shoot them. Hearing this, Jeong-dae tells Gi-hun that he was an "infiltrator" and yells at the guards for putting Gi-hun in the game. But Jung-bae tells the bitter old man to shut up and tells him, 254 and Team O that thanks to Gi-hun they are all alive, then Jung-bae tells Yeong-sam that he saw that he was so scared that he was going to pee himself and that he should thank Gi-hun, instead of calling him a liar (to which Yeong-sam asks Jung-bae if he was also an infiltrator like Gi-hun, and Jung-bae asked him if he had good manners at all). Geum-ja stops them from arguing and advises the other players that it was thanks to Gi-hun they survived, and told them to take care of their lives and leave together. If you keep playing until the end, I guarantee every person in this room... will eventually end up like those players. We will all be killed.

Seong Gi-hun warning all the players to stop during the first vote in 001 An argument ensues over whether to leave or not. Gi-hun then reveals that he's played these games before (explaining to them that he knew about the first game, because he already done it, and played the exact same one). Gi-hun told them that he was there three years ago, and played all of them and had seen how many people died, divulging that he was the ultimate winner. He warns them that they could share the same fate as the previous players if they don't agree to leave once they kept playing until the very end. Jeong-dae argues against Gi-hun, annoyed as the prize money, as it stands, would not even begin to cover his debt of ₩10 billion, and even more indignant when Gi-hun, who had won and received a huge prize, had to return to the game (to which he even asks why would he come back), which makes players also blame him as a liar. Thanos approaches Gi-hun and says that his presence could aid the gameplay for players and help them succeed in the games. This leads some of the rest still hasn't voted yet, changed their minds of continuing the game.

Having the opposite effect than he'd wanted, Gi-hun then begs the other players to vote to leave the game, but is stopped by the guards for interference. The vote continues and reaches an 182-182 tie, leaving the final decision in the hands of Player 001. Both teams turn to see 001 and try to convince him to join them, 001 passes to vote, puts his hand on the buttons and thinks about his decision, finally 001 makes his decision... and votes for "O", allowing the games to continue. The players who voted to stay rejoice while the others silently lament over the results.

Then, 001 turns around and reveals to the audience that he is In-ho, who has joined the games as a player. He glances over at a devastated Gi-hun with a slight smirk.

Trivia[]

This is the first episode in Season 2 where Seong Gi-hun and the other 455 players begin the 37th Squid Game.

This episode features the Red Light, Green Light game.

The Man with the Umbrella, Gganbu, Front Man, 222, and this episode are the only episodes that reference a character.

This episode and 222 are the only episodes with numbers as the title.

There are some errors or mistakes that occur in the episode:

As the Front Man watches the game from his chair before Eun-ju saw Mi-na's corpse, three other bodies can be seen on the ground, even though there would logically be only one body at that moment.

During the initial chaos in Red Light, Green Light with the icons disappearing, Player 163's icon can be seen in place of Player 043's icon.

When Jung-bae is done the vote, the manager mentioned Player 388, who is Kang Dae-ho, for a vote. However, Player 389, who also survived in the first game, is seen walks toward to the vote, which leads his number player didn't heard to be mentioned that skipped to 388.

Gi-Hun states that he previously participated in the games three years prior. However, season 1 was set in 2020, and this season is set in 2024, meaning it has actually been 4 years.

When the manager lists players, names, and debts, he lists ten players who would go on to be either significant characters, or characters with the most memorable deaths. The season one counterpart has only five, reflecting the second season's larger cast of characters.

Kang Mi-na is the first death of this episode and the first player death of the season.

This episode introduces the majority of the S3 players.

Personality

He is seen as a carefree and sensible person as he listened to the manager, made silly faces, stood still while everyone panicked and persumbly passed through mutiple games.

History

Mun Jang-ho was born to his father Mun Dae-hee and his unnamed mother on July 14, 1966. He did not formally attend any high school or university, and would start working in 1998, he worked as a marine engineer aboard a Korean merchant ship. Unfortunately, due to abuse of rights and drinking, he became unemployed on March 1, 2018, after 20 years of work.[2] He was unable to find a new job and later decided to participate in the Squid Games, becoming the first player to join.

Mun Jang-ho can be seen listening to the guards with a doubtful expression before the first game. Mun Jang-ho survived the first game, Red Light, Green Light, and shielded Player 196 from running away in the chaos. He would be able to then survive the first game, and cross the finish line. After this, he could be seen agreeing with Player 066 when he confronted the Guards and said that the authorities could track them using their phones. When a vote was held on whether or not to end the games, Mun Jang-ho voted to terminate the games. And would be sent back home after the voting.

Fate

It's unknown what happened to Mun Jang-ho. Despite being shot in Marbles, along with his icon fading out and his elimination being announced there, he was last seen in the Voting. Despite voting O, he was seen cheering so he could be a Supervised player and be alive. there's also a chance he returned to the games. His actor was also seen in talking to some Players after returning to the games.

Trivia

Mun Jang-ho shares his name with Player 129, a man who competed in and won the 2nd Squid Game.

During the panic in Red Light, Green Light, Jang-ho is seen protecting and shielding a nearby player.

According to his player file, Mun Jang-ho's resident registration number is 660714-1156321. He resided in Cheonghak-dong, Yeongdo-gu, Busan.

The archives found by Hwang Jun-ho start with him and not with Player 001, a foreshadowing toward the latter's true identity as the Host of the games.

Both him and his 12th Squid Game counterpart are named players.

From the one digit players who's names were shown in the files hes the least connected player to Na Jo-eun since Park Pil-sam and Jang Seung-jong are his friends, Jo Su-jin is his Erroneous Teammate in Tug of War and Choi Woo-seong was his victim.

Mistakes

His player file, himself and icon show a different person.

In Red Light, Green Light, there's another male Player 002 as Jeong Seong-tae plays Player 183 in the first game.

He shares his icon with Player 271.

Another Player 002 is also seen in Marbles.

Another Player 002's corpse is seen during the initial panic in Red Light, Green Light.

Behind the scenes

Mun Jang-ho was portrayed by Lee Sang-ha, Jeong Seong-tae, Kwak Jang-ryun in his icon, and two unknown extras. Namuwiki initially listed his actor as Kim Tae-yong, but it is unconfirmed and was later removed due to lack of evidence.[2]

History[]

Jang Seung-jong was born on February 16, 1970 to his then 13 year old mother (Jung Mi-hee) and his then 21 year old father (Jang Ha-kwon). He attended Gyeonggi Junior College and worked as a bus driver for Mukook Transportation for 13 years. He lost his job on December 21, 2017 after getting into a car accident while driving under the influence which caused injuries to 4 people. As of 2020, he was unemployed and living with his parents.[2]

Jang Seung-jong gathered a lot of debt, leaving him desperate for money. He eventually met a man in a suit who offered to play ddjaki with him. He managed to beat him at the game, and the man then gave him a card with a phone number to join the Squid Games, He made the call and gave the game his name and date of birth. He then went to an address given to him. Suddenly, a van showed up; He got in through a password, "red light green light." The driver was shown in a pink jumpsuit, but he had a gas mask. Suddenly, sleeping gas is released, making him fall asleep, and then the van drove off.

He then woke up to classical music in a jumpsuit on a bunk bed, in a creepy warehouse called the "dormitory." Then, the same mysterious drivers, now known as "Guards," came in, telling him the instructions and that they were in a competition. He then signed a contract and proceed to walk into a giant room with multiple staircases, with classical music following the instructions. He then took his picture, following the guards into the first game: Red Light, Green Light.

Jang Seung-jong could be seen confused and doubtful about the giant doll, and an announcer explained the game rules, and so, The game begun. He and many other players ran, though a player, Player 324, ran too fast and couldn't stop in time, followed by a loud bang and him dropping to the ground. Which made Player 250 scared and try to run away in panic, before getting shot, with his blood landing on Player 306's face, which made her scream and also get shot.

After witnessing the death of 3 players, A lot of players tried to run to the doors but were shot and eliminated from the game. Although Jang Seung-jong, along with many other players, managed to survive the initial chaos, and so the game continued, Jang Seung-jong stood still and would be seen running with his close friend, Na Jo-eun on some red lights during the Fly Me to the Moon scenes, Seung-jong would then be able to pass the finish line, but other players weren't fast enough and were killed for not making to the finish line in time.

Upon returning to the dormitory, Jang Seung-jong was scared and shook from witnessing so many deaths, until the guards barged into the room, which made Jang Seung-jong back away in fear. Some players started to protest about the game, until a guard grabbed his gun and sent out a warning shot in the air to stop the ruckus, which made Jang Seung-jong duck down to the floor, startled. the same guard then reminded the players about the first two clauses of the contract they signed, though another player, Player 218 (Cho Sang-woo), argued back about the third clause, which was that the players could vote whether to leave or stay in the game, and the guards accepted the request to begin a vote, however, the guards first showed the prize money accumulated in the first game, which made lots of players start questioning their choices, and so, the vote begun.

During the voting, Jang Seung-jong voted to continue the games (O). After Player 002 voted, the counter went into a tie. so the last player, Player 001 (Oh Il-nam), was the one to make the final decision, and decided to ultimately, end the games. Jang Seung-jong was sad, since he voted to continue the games, but he came back for unknown reason.

After he came back into the games, he went into a giant room with multiple staircases to get to the second game, Sugar Honeycombs. He walked into the second game with 186 other players. He was looking around until the announcer instructed the players to choose one of the four shapes on the wall and line up in front of it. The four shapes were, the circle, the triangle, the star, and the umbrella. Jang Seung-jong was thinking about what shape he was gonna choose until he decided to choose the umbrella shape, the most complex shape.

Fate[]

It is unknown when he died. He is seen panicking but there is no corpse to be seen, he is last seen in after the Special Game. His icon disappears in Red Light, Green Light.

Trivia[]

Jang Seung-jong shares his name with Player 063, the victor of the 4th Squid Game.

According to his player file, Jang Seung-jong lived in the Pungsan-dong neighborhood of Hanam in Gyeonggi Province.[2]

His icon shows the female Player 004, who is also seen in Sugar Honeycombs and Special Game.

His Red Light, Green Light actor is also the actor of Player 068.

Jang Seung-jong's shares her icon with Player 275.

Jang Seung-jong's Squid Archives icon is the same as Players 048, 150, and 339's grid icon.

Mistakes[]

When Hwang Jun-ho opens the player list for the 28th Squid Game, Jang Seung-jong's file appears. However, it explicitly states that he participated in the 33rd Squid Game, with his parents' ages lining up as such. This was most likely an error on the prop designer's part.

On his file it states that his fathers last name is Kang. This is false since 004's last name is Jang so his would have to be as well. Or he was adopted.

Although it states what school he went to, it doesn't show the admission and graduation date.

History[]

Choi Woo-seong was born in Gangwon Province. He did not undergo any formal schooling on record and obtained a job as a salesman for a liquor store called Cannon House, which he worked for 12 years. He ended up in heavy debt after making a bad financial decision based on a friend's advice. He married a woman named Park Mi-hee and had a son named Choi Dong-guk, who went on to attend college.

In 2020, Choi Woo-seong met a man in a suit who offered to play ddjaki with him. He managed to beat him at the game, and the man then gave him a card with a phone number to join the Squid Games, along with 100,000 won. He made the call and gave the game his name and date of birth. He then went to an address given to him. Suddenly, a van showed up; He got in through a password, "red light green light." The driver was shown in a pink jumpsuit, but he had a gas mask. Suddenly, sleeping gas is released, making him fall asleep, and then the van drove off.

He then woke up to classical music in a jumpsuit on a bunk bed, in a creepy warehouse called the "dormitory." Then, the same mysterious drivers, now known as "Guards," came in, telling him the instructions and that they were in a competition. The guards said he could win a "handsome cash prize." Some players were asking questions. and The guards answered, A guard with a square symbol on their mask tells them that the players are all living on the edge with debts that they simply cannot pay, so it made Choi Woo-seong earn the guards' trust. He then signed a contract and proceed to walk into a giant room with multiple staircases, with classical music following the instructions. He then took his picture, following the guards into the first game: Red Light, Green Light.

Choi Woo-seong could be seen confused and doubtful about the giant doll, and an announcer explained the game rules, and so, The game begun. He and many other players ran, though a player, Player 324, ran too fast and couldn't stop in time, so his elimination was announced, followed by a loud bang and him dropping to the ground. His best friend, Player 250, who was just right behind 324, went over and checked on 324, thinking 324 was playing a trick on him, but 324 coughed up blood, which made 250 scared and try to run away in panic, before getting shot in the back, with his blood landing on Player 306's face, which made her scream and get shot in the head.

Witnessing the death of 3 players, A lot of players tried to run to the door but were shot and eliminated from the game. Although Choi Woo-seong, along with many other players, managed to survive the initial chaos, and so the game continued, but Choi Woo-seong stood still and passed the finish line, but other players weren't fast enough and were killed for not making to the finish line in time.

Upon returning to the dormitory, Choi Woo-seong was scared and shook from witnessing so many deaths, until the guards barged into the room, which made Choi Woo-seong back away in fear. Some players started to protest about the game, until a guard grabbed his gun and sent out a warning shot in the air to stop the ruckus, which made Choi Woo-seong duck down to the floor, startled. the same guard then reminded the players about the first two clauses of the contract they signed, though another player, Player 218 (Cho Sang-woo), argued back about the third clause, which was that the players could vote whether to leave or stay in the game, and the guards accepted the request to begin a vote, however, the guards first showed the prize money accumulated in the first game, which made lots of players start questioning their choices, and so, the vote begun.

During the voting, the vote was leading more to the side to continue the games, so a player, Player 119 (No Sang-hun) questioned the "O" voters, which made another player, Player 322 (Jung Min-tae), strikes back with the argument that the games were his last chance in life, and 119 got mad and tried attacking 322, though the guards interrupted them and the voting continued. "After this, Choi Woo-seong voted to continue the games (O). After Player 002 (Mun Jang-ho) voted, the counter went into a tie. so the last player, Player 001 (Oh Il-nam), was the one to make the final decision, and decided to ultimately, end the games. Choi Woo-seong was disappointed, since he voted to continue the games, and he eventually came back into the games opportunity was given. Possibly disappointed that he didn't continue in the games.

After Choi Woo-seong came back into the games, he went into a giant room with multiple staircases to get to the second game, Sugar Honeycombs. He walked into the second game with 186 other players. He was looking around until the announcer instructed the players to choose one of the four shapes on the wall and line up in front of it. The four shapes were, the circle, the triangle, the star, and the umbrella. Choi Woo-seong was thinking about what shape he was gonna choose until he decided to choose the triangle shape. After he retrieved his shape and sat down, he started carving his triangle shape. He eventually passed the second game.

In the dormitory, Choi Woo-seong decided to team up with Player 014 and Player 186. While Choi Woo-seong went to bed, a fight broke out in the night, and he was caught right in the middle of it.

Fate[]

Woo-seong was killed during the Special Game, He was seen running away from Na Jo-eun until Na Jo-eun caught him to him, Na Jo-eun would then throw him down the stairs and beat him up, causing him to soon die from head trauma. Since he was last seen fighting him before he died, it's likely to assume that he killed him.

Trivia[]

Choi Woo-seong shares his name with Player 112, the person who won the 6th Squid Game. It's possible, though extremely unlikely, that these two are the same person. When looking at the scenes of actor Kwon Jae-hoon and the subtle match in the son's birth year, the documents indicate that the previous winner is number 112, and winner number 112 and this Choi Woo-seong are namesakes.

According to his player file, Choi Woo-seong's resident registration number is 760523-1347785, and he lives in Dongchun-dong, Yeonsu-gu, Incheon.[4]

He and his counterpart in the 37th Squid Game were both killed by another player.

Coincidentally, Choi Woo-seong's wife, Park Mi-hee, has a very similar name to Park Mi-hwa, who was Player 006 in the 37th Squid Game.

Also, both had their elimination announced on the speaker onscreen.

Excluding 001, 006 is the only player to have their names known in both the 33rd and the 37th.

Considering the place where his corpse was, it's possible he tried to run to the doors to escape but was killed before he could reach them.

There is a possibility that he was killed by Na Jo-eun. It is more convincing to assume that he backed away to escape the fight or was pushed from the pillar to the stairs by Na Jo-eun than that he tried to escape through the door, and such behavior suggests that Na Jo-eun may have forcibly drawn Choi Woo-seong into the fight.

Judging by the screams and the scene right before death, he possibly ranked 93rd overall in the 33rd Squid Game.

He can be seen talking to Deok-su's three subordinates during Sugar Honeycombs, he may have tried to join Deoksu's gang. However, it seems he failed.

His name is incredibly similar to Choi Woong-seok, another player whose name was revealed through the files.

Mistakes[]

Choi Woo-seong's icon shows a woman, even though he is portrayed by a man physically and in his player file.

Choi Woo-seong's icon is the same as Player 279's faulty icon.

Choi Woo-seong's actual face is Jo Su-jin's and Player 276's icon.

In his player file, Choi Woo-seong's wife and son were born on August 1, 1953 and November 17, 1973 but are listed as being 40 and 20 years old, respectively.

Furthermore, the file states that Woo-seong fell into debt on February 1, 1991, when he would have been a minor and legally unable to enter into any financial contracts. The reason for these errors are unknown. If you insert the winning year of the 6th Squid Game winner, No. 112 Choi Woo-sung, into this error, the ages match perfectly, so it is presumed that the records for actor Yeo In-seop and Choi Woo-sung were mistakenly taken from No. 112 Choi Woo-sung.

History[]

Player 007 was presumably in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games after being approached by The Recruiter and playing Ddakji with him. After waking up in a bed in the Dormitory, she was most likely confused at first like the other 455 Players, but she most likely was willing to play once she saw the Piggy bank where her Prize money would be stored shown off by the Manager, leading to her signing the Player consent form before she took her Icon photo, headed up the Stairs and to the Red Light, Green Light game arena.

In the game, she managed to stay still, as other players panicked and ran to the doors. After the mass panic that ensued, she managed to keep her balance and pass the game, stopping on all the red lights without moving, and approaching the red line on every green light without running out of time.

After the first game, she, as most of the Players was most likely very down, knowing the risk that the Games brought. Though, most Players are relieved as Cho Sang-woo recalls the third clause of the consent form which allows the Players to partake in a vote to continue, or to stop the Games

After the Prize money accumulated from the eliminations in Red Light, Green Light is shown inside of the Piggy bank, the voting commenced. She (after having seen the Prize Money voted to continue the games as one of the last Players to vote, willing to risk her life to pay off her debts. After a few more votes, it only came down to one man, Oh Il-nam he voted to end the games, putting a stop to the games. Though, despite voting to continue, Player 007 was happy about his decision.

A certain amount of days after the Games had been terminated, she received an invitation to join once again after returning to the outside world, and after most likely considering it for some time, she decided to rejoin, calling the number on the card once again.

After returning, she woke up in the Dormitory and ate her Food provided by the Guards she walked into the second game arena, Sugar Honeycombs, where she chose her shape, and after witnessing the death of Park Ju-un, she started to panic, but like the other Players in the arena, attempted to stay as calm as possible while carving out her Dalgona.

Fate[]

It is unknown when she died. Her icon fades in icon disappears in Red Light, Green Light but there is no corpse to be seen and she is seen at the finish line, she is last seen in before the Special Game talking to Na Jo-eun, Player 201 and Player 307.

Trivia[]

Player 007 has the same number as one of the main characters in Season 2 and 3.

She and Jo Su-jin (Player 005), are the only females in the 33rd Squid Game with single-digit numbers.

Round 3 Tie

I took out a loan at one of those illegal casinos. If I don't pay it off by next month, it'll get ugly. They said if I can't get them the money in time, they're going to harvest my eyes, liver, and kidneys. I know these guys'll go through with it. That's the reason I haven't been around a lot. It wasn't safe at home. Look, I promise you, just this one. And after that, I'll vote to end it. One more, and I'll have enough to pay off all my debts. And you... you and I can start fresh.

Personality

How dare you, sir! He wouldn't leave me, not my son. He didn't grow up with a lot, but I know deep down he's a good person. Even though he got bullied and knocked around, he never laid a hand on anyone or beat other kids up, not once, so don't you badmouth my son!

Jang Geum-ja about Yong-sik to Hwang In-ho in "O X"

Having gotten himself into a lot of debt because of gambling, Yong-sik appears reckless and impulsive. He loves his mom very much and is loyal to her, becoming hysterical when he was separated from his mother, and worried about her safety. He is also amicable and approachable, forging friendships and alliances with numerous players. Although he listens to his mother's guidance most of the time, there are times he does not go with what she says, such as voting to continue the game because his debt was higher than what he initially told her. He also tended to blame himself excessively for his mistakes, to the point of nearly committing suicide once because he considered himself a failure to his mother.

History

Backstory

That grandma is actually my mother.

Yong-sik to Player 016's team in "Six Legs"Park Yong-sik was born to Jang Geum-ja and his unnamed father and grew up in the neighborhood of Bongcheon-dong. He worked for a company that eventually went bankrupt, which he blamed himself for. As an adult, Yong-sik became an immature and shameless gambler, racking up debts totaling ₩250 million, including a loan of ₩100 million borrowed from various loan sharks and a gambling den. He was also stolen from a friend he thought he could trust.

One day, Geum-ja was tired of his behaviour and started yelling at Yong-sik, which resulted in him overdosing and leaving a suicide note that he was sorry for being a failure. He was rushed to the hospital, where he ultimately survived the overdose. It was from then on Geum-ja decided that she would do anything to protect Yong-sik, even if it meant killing herself.

Around October 2024, his creditors gave him an ultimatum and threatened to harvest his organs if he didn't pay off his loans by the next month, so he began to avoid going home. He ultimately decided to join the Squid Games in order to settle his debts.

Park Yong-sik awakens in the Squid Game Dormitory with the other players and bumps into Geum-ja. Upon seeing him, she scolds him for joining the Squid Game, saying that she joined of her own accord, to get the money to pay off his debts, with him responding that she did not need to go that far for him. They remain extremely close throughout the game and befriend Kim Young-mi and Cho Hyun-ju through the second game, and also get along well with Seong Gi-hun, Park Jung-bae, Hwang In-ho, Kang Dae-ho and Kim Jun-hee. You destroyed my life, fucker. You ruined EVERYTHING!

Yong-sik before passing Flying Stone on the second attempt in "One More Game" In Red Light, Green Light, he initially mocked Seong Gi-hun when he warned everyone about the game, joking that he'd get to see his father. Upon seeing he was right, he followed his instructions with he and his mom both surviving. After completion, Yong-sik considered voting for "O", but his mother told him not to do a stupidity, so Yong-sik listened to her and voted for "X". In the second game, him and his mother teamed up with Kim Young-mi, Seon-nyeo and Cho Hyun-ju to complete "Six Legs". Let's get outta here!

Yong-sik to Team X after changing his vote in O X in "O X" After this he voted to stay in the game, wanting to gain more money to pay off all of his debts, including one he did not previously tell his mother about. Jang Geum-ja was initially angry until Park Yong-sik explained his vote to stay. After passing all the rounds in the third game, "Mingle", he and his mom both voted to leave the game, joining the "X" team, but again were forced to stay, due to the result being a tie. Before the Bathroom Fight while he might have been one of the first to notice that many of Team O have now lost their minds over the money. Following his mother's advise, he attempts to talk to Team O into changing their minds by offering to buy everyone food, but this only led to the two sides arguing. Being close to Seong Gi-hun, he and Jang Geum-ja were told about Seong's plan to attack and kill the Squid Game staff. He and his mom followed Seong's order to stay away from the murderous fight Group O launched on Group X that ensued at night, though he and his mom did not join Seong Gi-hun in his rebellion mission, thus allowing him and Jang Geum-ja to stay safe and to live another night.

Do you think we can? Look at them over there. You know they've gone completely crazy with greed.

Yong-sik to Seong Gi-hun's team in "O X"

Yong-sik wanted to help in Gi-hun's Revolt but he was held back by his mother who didn't let him join because she was afraid he would die in the rebellion. With the help of Kim Jun-Hee and Jang Geum-Ja, they helped Kang Dae-ho at getting the magazines. Hyun-ju, why are you sorry? This is Dae-ho's fault. Come on, I saw it, my mom saw it. Everyone here saw what happened. As soon as Dae-ho got here, he took the rounds, went to leave, and then just froze and sank right to the floor. And by the time Hyun-ju got here, it was already too late. The guards had all started to rush in. And if my mom hadn't stopped her, then, well. Hyun-ju would've died too. That's the truth, right?

Park Yong-sik to Cho Hyun-ju, Seong Gi-hun, and his mother in "Keys and Knives" Yong-sik tells Geum-ja not to disturb Gi-hun.

Later on, Yong-sik was shocked and relieved to see Gi-hun alive and asked if he was fine. He felt extremely guilty that Gi-hun demanded to be killed from the guilt of the revolt. He was shown at the start of the revote. He was shown along with his mother and Hyun-ju where all three of them appeared disappointed when Player 448 changed her vote in fear. In the revote, he voted X to terminate the games. However, the games continued on after the Os win after the revote by a large amount afterwards he watched Gi-hun strangle Seon-nyeo. During their meal time, Geum-ja offered the depressed Gi-hun some food for him to eat, but he didn't even say a word. Yong-sik didn't appear to want to disturb Gi-hun much, likely because Gi-hun wasn't in his right mind at the moment so he felt it would be better to leave him alone for a little while. The old woman sympathizes with him saying that he did what he thought was right when he tried to stop the games. Hyun-ju then apologized to Gi-hun for failing to bring the ammunition on time, but Yong-sik tells her that it wasn't her fault, but Dae-ho's. He explained to Gi-hun that earlier when Dae-ho arrived, he took the magazines, he freaked out and went back to the dorm. By the time Hyun-ju got back it was already too late, the guards rushed in to put an end to the rebellion. And if his mom hadn't stopped her, Hyun-ju would have died as well, then Geum-ja tells the three of them that sitting around doing nothing is not going to bring anyone back from the dead, so they should focus on who is still alive.

Before the Fourth Game Yong-Sik saw the rebel's corpses hung as a warning to the other players a sight that disturbed him and his mother, he received a blue ball meaning he would on be on Blue Team. Although Geum-ja and himself made a agreement to switch teams despite by his mother implied that he is good at hiding and never lost one, but he ended up on the Red Team. He came across a room with Player 172, he attempted to kill him but was overpowered due to his hesitation. As he was about to be killed, Kim Gi-min saved him by stabbing Player 172 in the back.

Fate

Mom, I... I... I'm sorry. I'm sorry.

Yong-sik's last words to his mother in "The Starry Night"

Towards the end of the round, Yong-sik ran into his mother Geum-ja and Jun-hee. Crying, he states that he hasn't killed anyone. His mother holds the knife to her stomach and tells Yong-sik to kill her instead of Jun-hee. Yong-sik says he can't do that to her and goes to stab Jun-hee instead, but in a state of desperation, Geum-ja stabs him in the back with her hairpin.

Yong-sik turns to her and collapses. He apologizes to his mother, and they share their final moments together before he is shot off-screen by the guards, while his mother pleads for him to be spared. He also made a short appearance in the start of the next episode, with guards putting his corpse into a coffin.

Legacy

After his death, Geum-ja goes into a depressed state, while helping Jun-hee with the baby. She begged other players to vote X and end the games in 5th voting as she now had no reason to live. However, Os won the majority with 16 out of 25 votes. (As some coldly ignored her while others were too scared of Team O.) Later that night, Geum-ja converses with Gi-hun, explaining how unfair life is by giving an example of Yong-sik. She described how sensitive and troubled her son was and one day tried to commit suicide because she screamed at him for his gambling addiction. After requesting Gi-hun to protect Jun-hee and her baby, she committed suicide in the dormitory by hanging herself from grief. This causes Gi-hun to snap out of his depressive state and gave him the determination to protect Jun-hee and the baby. Though he failed to save Jun-hee, he saved the baby's life by allowing her to be the winner of the 37th Squid Game by jumping off the platform, thus eliminating himself in the Final Game.

Behind the scenes

Park Yong-sik was portrayed by Yang Dong-geun. In the English dub, he voiced by Brent Mukai and in french dub he voiced by Philippe Bozo.

Trivia

Yong-sik has been to Thailand before and holds a fairly positive opinion of the transgender community there.

Yong-sik's death is often regarded as the most emotional in Season 3.

His player number, 007, is a prime number. His mother's player number, 149, is also prime. Whether this is intentional or not is unknown.

Yong-sik has very indirectly killed Dae-ho as he indirectly provoked Gi-hun to want to kill Dae-ho by saying that he was the culprit, although it was intended to make Hyun-ju feel better.

Yong-sik was the last player with a single-digit player number to be eliminated in the 37th Squid Game.

Yong-sik is the only Seeker whose death was announced.

During filming for the scene where he tries to convince his mother to switch teams with him, Yang Dong-geun was told to combine seriousness with 'Yong-sik-ness'.

When filming the Biseokchigi scene in Six-Legged Pentathlon, Yang Dong-geun thought that he wouldn't really need to hit the tombstone with the stone, and that they would use CGI. But the director told him to seriously hit the tombstone to save money on CGI. This made Dong-geun feel intimidated, since there were around 100 people looking at him during the filming.[4]

Yong-sik is presumably the first Seeker to be eliminated after time ran out.

Yong-sik dies with his eyes naturally closing. The only other main character in season three to do so is his mother.

Yong-sik was the first X voter to switch to O during the 37th Squid Games.

He is the last player in the 00X range to be eliminated in the 37th squid game.

His voting pattern is completely unique to him.

Since Yong-sik placed 35th in the competition, his 33rd Squid Game counterpart is Player 068.

He is the only major Hide and Seek death to vote X on the first vote.

He and Kim Young-mi are the only main characters from the 37th Squid Game to die via being shot.

Coincidentally they're both from Hyun-ju's team.

History[]

Nothing is known about his background, except that he had two unknown jobs in his working career and that something happened involving him on October 2, 1994. He was likely in tremendous debt and decided to join the Squid Games to win the cash prize. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract, took his photo, and entered the first game's arena.

Fate[]

After the first three deaths, a panic broke out, and Player 008 was one of the many players to run to the doors, resulting in him getting shot by one of the snipers.

Trivia[]

He is the second 00X player to die placing 333rd.

On his player file, it looks like he has a family member on the third row of the Family part of his file so, there would be 2 unnamed family members of him.

Unknown Extra (Player file)[]

Player 008's player file. Ditto. but his family text visible.

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

History[]

Not much is known about Player 008, except for he was in large debt and decided to join the Squid Games. After managing to cross the finish line in Red Light, Green Light, he decided to vote "O" to continue the games.

In the second game, Player 008 searched for partners to complete his team. He was later on able to find enough teammates; Player 116, Player 131, Player 154, and Player 177. He played Gonggi for his team, and passed along with his teammates. After the game, Player 008 switched his vote to "X".

Fate[]

In Mingle he managed to pass the first round because he joined a group of people and survived, and his number was not announced as a casualty in the first round, but in the second round, his team abandoned him and he was shot by soldiers because he could not find a room and three other people, and in the third round, his icon was darkened.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 008 was portrayed by Roh In-cheol and Lee Seung-hwa.

Trivia[]

Roh In-cheol was one of the only recurring minor actors from Season 1 who returned in Season 2 playing this player.

He is the only player in the 00X range who is not seen voting during the second vote.

He was the only player in the 00X range who died in the Mingle.

He outlasted his 33rd Squid Game counterpart competition wise.

He was the first unnamed player to change his vote to X.

He is the only background (and least relevant) player in the 00X range to pass Red Light, Green Light.

In a conversation with a fan, Roh In-cheol revealed his vision of Player 008's backstory[2].

He is the only one on his pentathlon team whose player number does not contain the number 1.

Personality[]

Player 009 is a quiet yet greedy individual. She votes O each opportunity she gets, yet she also seems to be a coward, as she was seen with scared facial expressions during the Six-Legged Pentathlon when other players were getting shot. She also cheers excitedly when Park Mi-hwa changes her vote from X to O showing her remorseless side that she prioritises money over other people's lives. After the tiebreaker vote, she also smirks as Park Yong-sik tries to convince members of Team O to switch to X showing her arrogant nature. During Hide and Seek, she is desperate to survive and win the whole competition, so she and Player 447 follow Seon-nyeo.

History[]

Player 009, like the other contestants, joined the Squid Games due to being in significant debt, presumably higher than ₩660 million. She, along with 364 other contestants, made it past the first game. During the vote on whether to end or continue the games, she voted to continue.

For the second game, it was announced that they needed to form teams of five. She and Player 197 quickly found each other and the two of them then later found Park Gyeong-seok, Sim Jae-seok, and Player 140. The game was announced to be a Six-Legged Pentathlon. She chose to play Biseokchigi, and her and her team succeeded and survived the second game. She voted "O" to continue in the second round, splitting off from her team.

She managed to survive Mingle as well, though off screen, She voted "O" to continue in third round, and made it through the Special Game, making alliance with Player 394.

During the re-vote, Player 009 remained voting "O." Before the forth game, she drew a blue ball, placing her as a Hider for Hide and Seek. She, along with Player 447, joined the cult of Seon-nyeo (Player 044) and followed her for the majority of the 4th game. When Seon-nyeo unlocked a door and ran away, Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) and Nam-gyu (Player 124) ambushed them. Along with Player 306, she managed to escape. Following the deaths of Mi-hwa and 447, she and Player 306 managed to escape as they weren't targeted by Nam-gyu and Myung-gi.

Fate[]

Despite escaping, she soon died afterwards. Her killer is unknown, but her corpse was seen by Park Yong-sik (Player 007) as he noticed her on the ground as he walked past, whimpering. Seon-nyeo also discovered her corpse, trying to see if her key was triangle or square, but finds her key to be useless as she already had the circle. She does however use blood to make an arrow to show the way out. Her corpse is on the stairs and her arm is twisted the wrong way, meaning the seeker possibly killed her at the edge of the stairs, and her corpse fell down.

Trivia[]

Before being a part of Seon-nyeo's team, she was a member of Gyeong-seok's team.

She seems to have a close relationship with Player 447 as the two are seen holding onto each other throughout Hide and Seek.

She is the second to last player with a single digit number to be eliminated, only beaten by Park Yong-sik (Player 007).

When Yi-eun was asked who had killed her character, she simply replied that "nobody" had killed her.

She died at 12:00 between 10:00 minute

She only correctly appears in even games.

She lasted way longer than her 33rd Squid Game counterpart, as he died in the first game.

She is one of only two minor characters in season two to appear in every vote, and one game (Pentathlon), the other being Park Mi-hwa.

Player 009's icon was replaced by Player 084's icon in Red Light, Green Light.

She is the only female Hider to have an unknown killer during Hide and Seek

She is the only single digit player in season three to be unnamed.

Her player number added to the number of her closest friend, Player 447 is 456, Seong Gi-hun's player number and the total number of players in the Squid Games annually

Additionally, their numbers were the third lowest (006-007-009) and the third highest (447-448-456) of Season 3.

She was the only player in the singles division who voted four times for one team.

She was counted 27th in the Team O headcount.

She was originally meant to vote X in the 3rd vote and be the one killed by Nam gyu at the beginning of the special game.

The killer is unknown; it's probably Nam-gyu and Lee Myung-gi, because after Seon-nyeo's betrayal, they likely sought out player 009.

She is played by a different actress in RLGL.

She is the last female player confirmed to have played Biseokchigi for the pentathlon.

Out of all of the last female players that are confirmed to have played each minigame, she is the only one who is not a main character.

Mistakes[]

In the 2nd vote, Player 009 is shown voting O during the vote. However, she is later seen receiving an O patch, which usually indicates a player who changed their vote to O after previously voting X. Since Player 009 had already voted O before, she should not have received an O patch. This may be a continuity mistake or editing error in the episode.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 009 was portrayed by Kang Yi-eun. In a private message with an unknown person on Instagram, she unofficially stated that she thinks Player 009's name would be Ok-ja.

History[]

Player 010 was in tremendous debt, so he decided to enter the Squid Games. He woke up in a room with 455 other players. He then signed his contract, got his photo taken, and then was promptly taken to the first game of Red Light, Green Light. He managed to survive the first game. A vote was later held on whether the games should continue or not, and the majority voted to end them. However, Player 010 and the majority of the players returned to the games after being given the opportunity. He then proceeded to the second game.

Fate[]

During Sugar Honeycombs, he broke his dalgona from stress by the other players getting shot, leading to him being shot by a soldier and eliminated.

Trivia[]

He and his Season 2 counterpart both made it as far as the second game and died in it.

This also applies to both Player 148s from both seasons.

It's possible his name was intended to be Kim Young-chul (김영철 Gim Yeong-cheol?) due to that being the name of the 10th winner on the winners list.

History[]

Before the Games[]

Shortly before Halloween, a recruiter approached Player 010 and played a game of Ddakji with him. The recruiter invited him to the Squid Games, where he could earn more money, The Recruiter gave him a card.

On Halloween night, He's calls the card number, A van arrived with some pinkmen with masks in front and behind there were more people, without warning they put him to sleep. He woke up in a Dormitory with 454 other people were sedated and taken to a giant room on a remote island, where he signed his consent to live and had his photo taken to participate in the games.

He woke up in a strange room with more people, then he saw the pink men again who took him in the van, He saw more people who were asking questions to the pink men to which they began to reveal debts of some people who were not allowed to pay those debts to which understood that there were more people like him who were not allowed to pay debts, then the men in pink showed a piggy bank that would be filled with money if the people were eliminated. The pink men told them that they had to sign a consent in case they wanted to participate to win the money that would accumulate. They gave him a paper that had some clauses, having so many debts, signed the consent. Then he went to take a photo and went up to the first game

In the first game, "Red Light, Green Light" the goal of the game was for players to reach the other end of an enclosed field, where the doll was located, in five minutes. They could move when the doll shouted "green light," but if it shouted "red light," they had to stay still while the doll watched them. Any player caught moving was eliminated. Player 010 and the other players felt the sound of a bullet, it was a player who was shot dead. He did not move so that this would not happen to him after the chaos of the first players he and none of the players moved until Seong Gi-hun told them that they had to reach the goal to survive to which he told them to hide behind another Player. After Seong Gi-hun shouted at everyone to make a run for the finish line, Player 010 without hesitation did so, he ran, managing to complete the first game.

After returning to the dormitory, the vote was held in order to determine whether or not to continue the games. He decided to vote O.

"Six Legs"[]

After the votes they gave him and the players lunchbox food: It contains egg, sausage, kimchi, white rice and black beans. The lunch boxes come with plastic water bottles and are somewhat dry for him to prepare for tomorrow.

The next morning they send him and the other players up the stairs for the next game, it is announced that the second game is "Six-Legged Pentathlon" which consists of five children's games: Ddakji (game I had already played with the recruiter), Biseokchigi, Gonggi, Paengi and Jegi, I manage to team up with the Player 061, Player 275, Player 326 and Player 356.

"One More Game" and Fate[]

After the other players' turn, it was his and his team's turn. Unfortunately they did not make it through the game and he and his team were eliminated, the guards shot them until they were eliminated.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 010 was portrayed by Kim Dong-min.

Trivia[]

He and his season 1 counterpart both made it as far as the second game and died in it.

He is likely the oldest 37th Squid Game player, as his actor is over 80 years old.

History[]

Player 011 was in tremendous debt that he couldn't pay off and chose to enter the Squid Games to win a huge cash prize. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract

Later, everyone was taken to an open area with a creepy robot doll at the front. It was revealed that the game was Red Light, Green Light. When the doll turned around, everyone ran forward, with Player 250 and Player 324 ahead of everyone, but 324 wasn't able to stop in time before the doll turned around, causing him to be eliminated. 324 then slumped over.

Player 250, thinking Player 324 was putting up an act, ran to him and asked him to stop faking, until he noticed blood gushing from 324's mouth, causing him to recoil and try to run away, but the doll, who was still looking, detected him and shot him, splattering his blood all over Player 306, causing her to scream and be shot.

Fate[]

It's unknown where he died, his icon faded in Red Light, Green Light, but appeared multiple times after. He could've died in the special game, as his corpse was seen there, and it's where he last appeared.

Trivia[]

His actor's name, Shin Seok-young, is similar to the name of the 11th Squid Game winner, Sin Seong-yong.

History[]

Player 012 decided to join the Squid Games to help with her large amount of debt. After signing the player consent form with 454 other players, she was officially signed up for the games. In Red Light, Green Light, Player 012 could be seen walking into the arena, appearing confused. Later on, she was able to survive by listening to Gi Hun, and stood still, leading her to eventually finish and pass the game. Afterwards, she could be seen looking up at the piggy bank in the dormitory and walking to the first floor. Due to the horror she had to experience, she voted "X" to terminate the games.

In the second game, Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 012 teamed up with Players 062, 099, 114, and 243. She chose to play Jegi and was able to pass all of the mini-games with her team and survive off-screen. After the game, she was seen standing next to Player 111 and Player 134, listening and watching Player 043 and Player 394 complain about how the money isn't enough for them. Later in the voting, she voted to terminate the games for a second and final time.

Fate[]

During Mingle, Player 012 was shot and killed during the second round of Mingle for not finding a room in time.

Mistakes[]

In Mingle, when trying to find a room with Player 051, they attempted to get into the same room Park Gyeong-seok and Cho Hyun-ju were running to. However, because of Gyeong-seok and Hyun-ju getting into the room before them, 012 and 051 were shot and killed for not getting into a room in time. However, this is an error as she canonically died in Mingle round 2.

History[]

Player 013 was in crippling debt, and most likely a gambling victim. Later him was given the offer to enter the Squid Games to win large amounts of money. He accepted this offer. He was picked up and sedated by Squid Game staff and transported to the island where the games take place. After waking up, Player 013 could be seen sitting up in his bed and looking around the Squid Game lobby near Seong Gi-hun and Oh Il-nam as they talked. He later witnessed the fight that occurred between Jang Deok-su and Kang Sae-byeok before the games began.

After the fight is broken up, the guards explain the rules of the game to him and the other players. Later, he signed a contract, took his photo, and proceeded to the first game called Red Light, Green Light. He managed to survive the first game. A vote was then held to decide whether the games should continue, and the majority voted to end them. However, Player 013 and most of the other players returned to the games after being given the opportunity. He then participated in the second game.

Fate[]

During Sugar Honeycombs, his dalgona tore due to the stress of shooting the other players, which led to him being shot by a soldier and eliminated.

Trivia[]

Going by numerical order, He is the second iconless player in the 33rd Squid Game.

It's possible his name was intended to be Yoon Ji-eun (윤지은 Yun Ji-eun?) due to that being the name of the 13th winner on the winners list.

Mistakes[]

Two female Player 013 corpses were seen in Red Light, Green Light.

Player 167's and Player 286's icons are the same as Player 013's icon.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 013 was portrayed by Kwon Oh-jin, Kim Soo-young and an unknown extra.

History[]

Player 014, like the other contestants, joined the Squid Games due to being in significant debt. He, along with 364 other players, made it past the first game. During the vote on whether to end or continue the games, he voted to end the games. After being forced to stay in the games, he slept and went on to the next game arena the next day. In the Six-Legged Pentathlon, he joined a team.

After Kwon Byeong-su (047) starts screaming at the "O" players after Teams 1 and 2 get eliminated, 014 adds to 047's arguments, questioning the O's decision to continue.

Fate[]

However, he and his team didn't finish on time and got gunned down during Jegi.

Mistakes[]

When Player 014 died after failing the Six-Legged Pentathlon, he was portrayed by a woman named Ha Seul-gi.

Player 014 can be briefly seen as an older man in BTS.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 014 was portrayed primarily by Park Seok-hyun but was also portrayed by stuntwoman Ha Seul-gi in the character's death scene and an unknown extra in a bts.

History[]

Player 015 was in heavy debt and chose to enter a high-risk competition to win money. She was knocked unconscious with a gas and taken to an island, where she woke up in a large room with 455 other people. She signed a contract and got her photo taken.

After 3 people died, it caused chaos. She managed to survive the initial chaos of Red Light and survived RLGL. After most of the contestants had been wiped out, Afterwards, like everyone else, she was shaken by the deaths of the contestants.

When the prize money was finally revealed, a vote was held on if the game should continue or discontinue. She voted to end the games like the majority and was sent back. However, those who were willing to return could, and she returned along with 186 other players. And went to the second game Sugar Honeycombs, presumably she picked star. After successfully craving her cookie out, she would make her way back to the Dormitory.

Fate[]

After getting her food and watching Player 271 die by Jang Deok-su, Player 015 would go to bed in fear. She would be attacked by an unknown player later during the Special Game and get stabbed to death off-screen, resulting in her elimination in The Special Game as her Icon blanks off and her corpse is seen

Personality[]

"I'll fight them with you."

Player 015 volunteering to join the revolt in "Friend or Foe"

Player 015 is a kind, empathetic, loyal, and courageous man. He is willing to put himself at risk for the sake of his family, voting O in the hope of paying off his debts and securing a better future for them.

He is also shown to have great empathy, as he was the only O voter who explained himself and shared his reasons with Young-mi while she was crying, trying to comfort her, saying he needed at least half of what he owed to get out. He showed deep remorse for having voted O, as he did not shout "one more game" and changed his vote back to X in the very next voting despite his share of the prize not being overly enough but was half of his debt, keeping his word to Young-mi.

He also proved to be loyal and brave by volunteering for the revolt in the hope of putting an end to the games.

History[]

Player 015 accumulated a debt of more than ₩500 million after his business failed. This put him and his family in a desperate state, which led him to enter the Squid Games in 2024.

Player 015 appeared in "001" as an icon, and then appeared as an error in the second game and survived it off-screen. He first physically appeared changing his vote from "X" to "O" in the second round. Hearing Kim Young-mi begging the players to vote "X", he explained the reason he has to continue playing, though he seemed to be genuinely sympathetic towards her.

In "O X", Player 015 managed to reach the fifth round of Mingle, in which the number was 2. Everyone around him formed team and he was left alone while Park Min-su was left alone after Thanos teamed up with Nam-gyu, fortunately Player 015 and Min-su saw each other, then quickly formed grasped each other and ran, he and Min-su managed to reach a room and save themselves from elimination.

In the third vote, Player 015 changed his vote back to "X" and survived the Special Game even after being attacked by Player 048 and Player 344. He later volunteered to join Gi-hun's revolt team.

Fate[]

After Gi-hun and Jung-bae found their way to the control rooms, he advised Hwang In-ho to collect the magazines from the dead soldiers along the path leading to the control room. In-ho brought him and Kwon Byeong-su after the two volunteered to go with him. Along the way, while Player 015 and Byeong-su were both standing in front of Young-il flanking his left and right, he was betrayed and shot in the chest by Oh Young-il, who was actually Hwang In-ho using an alias. He survived the shot, which gave In-ho the opportunity to use his choking sounds to fake his own death. He then shoots Player 015 in the chest again, killing him for good, which made Gi-hun think that In-ho was the one who had gotten killed. In-ho then told the guards to "wrap things up", throwing the walkie-talkie on Player 015's corpse. His body was then hung along with the other rebels, and the manager taken hostage by the Revolt team (wearing the Player 001 tracksuit) to show the consequences of attempting to take down the games.

Trivia[]

Both him and his 33rd Squid Games counterpart were eliminated during an interlude by another player, with the latter being killed in her respective game's Special Game.

During the second vote, he was told by Hwang In-ho that continuing playing might lead to his death, which won't help his family. Curiously, he was killed by In-ho after voting to end the game.

This would make sense if one counts the Revolt as a deliberate part of the game, as it counts as part of the interlude. So technically, 015 was "continuing to play" the game, which lead to his death.

Aside from Cho Hyun-ju, Park Jung-bae, Se-mi, Player 054 and Park Min-su, Player 015 was the only player who had voted O that did not chant one more game during the second vote.

He is shown to be both sympathetic and pragmatic, as he voted O in the second vote for money, but also genuinely felt bad when Young-mi began to cry due to the O's winning the vote.

Out of the four additional rebellion volunteers (072, 206, 324), he is the only one who did not participate in the bathroom fight.

Player 015 was actually trying to warn Gi-hun over the radio when In-ho fakes his death.

He was the only minor character in the rebellion that did not participate in the bathroom fight.

He is the only rebel, who wasn't a main character, to make an appearance using his canon actor in Mingle.

He is the last player in the 01X range to be eliminated in the 37th Squid Game.

If we count the events and errors, all players in the X15 died in each game of season 2. Player 115 died in Red Light, Green Light. Then, Player 415 was eliminated in Six-Legged Pentathlon after that Player 215 was eliminated in Mingle. Player 315 died in Red Light, Green Light, but later appeared in the Special Game as an error, and lastly, Player 015 died in the rebellion.

This makes him the last player in the X15's range to be eliminated.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 015 was primarily portrayed by Lee Ha-nee, and Han Dong-ui in the Six-Legged Pentathlon. He is credited as "선한남" (seonhannam), a title that literally translates into English as "good man" or "kind man".[3] This refers to his kind gestures and characteristics in the series, such as telling Young-mi why he voted O and volunteering in the Revolt.

References[]

↑ Since the 37th Squid Game began directly after Seong Gi-hun met with the Front Man on October 31, the Special Game and ensuing revolt occurred on either November 3 or November 4, as the drone pilot was stated to have "disappeared" at around three in the morning, which occurred before the fight itself, although a manager stated it was on the previous night when announcing the results of the Special Game and revolt. The revolt occurred directly after the Special Game.

↑ 015 killed this soldier in the first section, as the other confirmed extra soldier was shot by 206. One of the two confirmed dead soldiers died during the first phase of the rebellion, and the other during the second. Since 206 was hiding in the first phase, the soldier killed in the first phase could only have been killed by 015, while the other was shot by 206 in the second phase, as 015 was primarily hiding in the second phase.

↑ This alias, although at first glance it might seem like a legitimate Korean name, is known to be only a provisional name to refer to him in the extras that highlight his main characteristic, being kind and good, a situation similar to other characters like 039, 096 or 306. Furthermore, part of this alias ("Han-nam") is an insult used towards Korean men on the internet, used to point out behaviors perceived as misogynistic, which makes the use of this name even more inaccurate.

History[]

Player 016 was in heavy debt and chose to enter a high-risk competition to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, he signed a contract and took his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue, and the majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned along with 186 other players, subsequently surviving Sugar Honeycombs, as well as the Special Game that occurred between games. In the third game, he joined Team Eight and won.

Fate[]

It is unknown when he died. He is seen running towards the doors in Red Light Green Light, but he is last seen in Marbles as a filler. His icon disappears between Tug of War and Marbles.

Trivia[]

In Squid Game: The Challenge, Sam Lantz, who was Player 016, finished third overall, being one of the finalists with Phil Cain and Mai Whelan.

History[]

Player 016 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, he heard Seong Gi-hun (Player 456) screaming about how dangerous the games were. Player 016 and many other players ignored his warnings and continued the game without any worry. However, he was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. Player 016 luckily was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory with the other surviving players, Player 016 begged the guards to let him and the other players go. However, The guards instead showed everyone the massive increase in prize money that accumulated after the first game. However, after a massive increase in the prize pool was revealed, Player 016 changed his mind and decided to vote O during the first vote. Him and the other Os then cheered after they won the vote.

Later, during Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 016 formed a small team with Player 178 and Player 189. Later on, Park Yong-sik (Player 007) and his mother asked if they could join their team. Player 016 mocked them and told them to look for other players to team up with. Park Yong-sik then walked off with his mother to find a different team. During this, Player 016 equipped Jang Do-yeong and Player 416 onto the team, forming Team 1. When Six-Legged Pentathlon officially started. They were one of the 2 teams up first. They started off strong with Player 016 clearing Ddakji on his first try. However, they later got stuck on Biseokchigi after Jang Do-yeong couldn't hit the stone. Player 016 and his fellow teammates were angered by this and started to yell and scream at Jang Do-yeong.

Fate[]

After Jang Do-yeong finally manages to complete Biseokchigi, Player 016 knew that it was far to late to advance further into the game. Player 016 and his team were then gunned down for failing to complete the 5 minigames within the time limit.

Trivia[]

He seems to be very skilled at Ddakji, since he made it first try in Pentathlon and on the monitor, we can see him beating the recruiter instead of failing.

His counterpart from Squid Game: The Challenge Season 2, Sydney Belle (Player 016) was also part of the first team to be eliminated in the Six-Legged Pentathlon.

Mistakes[]

Although he died in the previous episode, during the Six-Legged Pentathlon montage in One More Game, the editor reused the clip of Jang Do-yeong finally beating Biseokchigi, where Player 016's number was visible despite the number being slightly blurred.

History[]

Player 019 was in heavy debt and chose to enter a high-risk competition to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, he signed a contract, and got his photo taken. He went to the 1st game which was Red Light, Green Light. He managed to not move and/or get pushed during the initial panic and made it across the finish line before the timer ran out.

After Red Light, Green Light, the voting was held. It is unknown what he voted but the games were terminated nonetheless and he briefly returned home. He was one of the 187 who decided to return to the games due to how hellish life outside was. 019 made it through Dalgona, although his shape is unknown, and he survived the Special Game that night.

Fate[]

During Tug of War, Player 019 was part of Team Five, which consisted entirely of men. His team faced off against Team 4. They were the second teams to compete in the game. Initially, Team 4, though weaker in appearance, managed to gain an advantage using the strategic advice from Oh Il-nam. Team 5 struggled as Team 4 nearly won the match. However, Player 194 was able to rally Team Five, giving them enough strength to begin overpowering Team 4. Just as Team 5 was on the verge of pulling Team 4 off the platform, Cho Sang-woo's quick thinking led to a last-minute plan of stepping forward. This move caused Player 194 and the rest of Team 5 including Player 019 to fall and die.

Mistakes[]

Another Player 019 was seen in Team 8.

Another Player 019 was shot for running towards the doors in Red Light Green Light.

Another Player 019 was shot for moving through the Red Light in Red Light Green Light.

Player 019's icon also disappeared in Red Light Green Light.

Another Player 019 was seen during the voting.

Before Red Light Green Light and before Sugar Honeycombs, another Player 019 was seen wearing blue glasses in the dormitory.

Other Player 019 appears in Sugar Honeycombs.

History[]

Player 019 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, Player 019 heard Gi-hun screaming about how dangerous the games were. Player 019 and many other players ignored his warnings, and continued the game without any worry. However, Player 019 was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. Player 019 luckily was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory with the other surviving players, Player 019 begged the guards to let him and the other players go. However, after a massive increase in the prize pool was revealed, Player 019 changed his mind and decided to vote O during the first vote. Him and the other Os then cheered after they won the vote.

Later during Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 019 partnered up with Player 024, Player 048, An Dong-uk (Player 247), and Player 378. Him and his team then managed to complete all 5 minigames within the 5 minute time limit . After successfully completing Six-Legged Pentathlon, him and the other players held another vote. Player 019 voted O again along with other greedy players.

Later on during Mingle, Player 019 managed to partner up with other players and pass the first round.

History[]

Player 020 suffered a severe amount of debt, unable to pay it off. He was then approached by a man in a suit, who offered him to play Ddakji. And if he won, he would receive a handsome cash prize of 100k won. He fails and get slapped repeatedly a lot of times, but eventually win and receives their money. After that, he was given a strange business card with a phone number on it with the specific date to contact it and a location. After dialing the number at the specified time and location, a van then picked him up. He entered the van, saw the rest of the unconscious players, and were knocked out by an unknown gas. He then woke up in a large dormitory with 455 other players. Confused, he woke up from his bed and witnessed the fight between Kang Sae-byeok and Jang Deok-su from afar. When the Pink Guards stepped in and stopped the fight, the TV shows multiple players being slapped. Convinced that Player 020 will receive the prize money, he signed the contract, had his photo taken and then proceeded to the first game; Red Light, Green Light. He was confused, and the arena was massive. But as the instructions were spoken by the announcer, he understood it clearly and made a bit of progress in the 1st game before the chaos erupted.

Fate[]

Following by the death of Player 306, a massive genocide began to emerge. With multiple players panicking and attempting to escape, Player 020 was one of those players who attempted to run. Unfortunately, he was shot early in the initial chaos, as we can see his icon blacked out early. We can see his body as well in the scene displaying the aftermath of the genocide.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 020 was portrayed by an unknown extra and Jeong Sin-ho in his icon. Despite his icon never being seen, it's confirmed through specific patterns that this will be his icon.

History[]

Player 020 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. After waking up, he made his way to the front of the room with all of the other players and confronted the guards about the situation. The guards then explained to him and the other players why they were there and the conditions of the games. He later watched as Lee Myung-gi's identity as a MG Coin was revealed. He looked visibly shocked at this and stared at Myung-gi. He then watched as a giant piggy bank appeared above him with the promise of it filling with prize money after every game. Player 020 was excited by this. He later signed a contract, took his photo, and walked up a flight of stairs to the arena of Red Light, Green Light.

During the 1st game, Player 020 ignored Gi-Hun's warnings and continued the game without any worry. However, after witnessing many other players get gunned down, Player 020 was horrified and ran towards the doors in fear. He can be seen panicking behind Thanos.

Fate[]

After making his way to the doors and attempting to push them open, Player 020 was shot in the back by a sniper. His dead body can be seen at the doors when Player 066 dies.

Trivia[]

Player 020 was mostly recognized by viewers because he stood behind Lee Myung-gi throughout his argument with the Pink Guards, in a several camera views. He was also visibly shocked to know Myung-gi's real identity as a former youtuber, MG Coin.

Player 020 is similar to his season 1 counterpart. They both were seen in the dormitory, panicked, and died in Red Light, Green Light. Coincidentally, both Player 020 from Season 1 and Season 2's corpses were seen right at the doors.

However, Player 020 from Season 1 was only seen from afar at the dormitory, while Player 020 from Season 2 was seen at the front.

Additionally, both Player 020s died to the doors but Player 020 from the 33rd Squid Game died facing the ground while the Player 020 from the 37th Squid Game died facing upwards.

He and Player 420 are the only X20s to not be in the top 100.

He shares the same digits with Player 002, who dies in the same game as him.

He is the only X20 to not be on Team X, due to the fact he was never involved in a vote.

Personality[]

You, are you sure he went left first?

Player 021 asking Player 453 if she is sure that Player 062 chose the left tile first during Glass Stepping Stones in VIPS Player 021 seems to be a genuine person but is easily shaken up in stressful conditions. This is very apparent when he witnesses the deaths of players in Glass Stepping Stones, as he shows the most shocked reactions. Player 021 also is shown to be reliant and trustworthy on others such as Player 453 when he was unable to remember the correct glass order in the same game.

History[]

Player 021 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, he signed a contract, and got his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue, but the majority, including 021, voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned, along with most of the other players.

He managed to survive the second game, Sugar Honeycombs, and the third game, Tug of War, joining a team including players like Player 062, and beat his partner, Player 276, in the fourth game Marbles, and survived until the fifth game, Glass Stepping Stones. For the game, he chose the number 4, which meant he would be the fourth to go.

Fate[]

When it was his turn, he could not remember the pattern that Player 062 took, and so he asked the person behind him, Player 453, for help, but she also could not remember either. The 2 players behind her, Player 244 and Player 151 argued whether it was left or right. He decided to go left, and fell off the bridge.

Trivia[]

He was the 4th person to be eliminated in the 5th game.

He got 13th place in the 33rd Squid Game. Since this is out of 456 players this means he made it to the top 3 percent of players.

His scream when falling to his death is identical to Player 360's and similar to Jung Min-tae's scream.

He had a similar death to Player 377 from Season 2/3. They were both eliminated in the fifth game because they followed another player's instructions. They placed only 4 spaces apart in the game with Player 377 placing 17th.

He is likely one of the youngest players to reach the Glass Stepping Stones game [maybe around 30 years of age], with only Kang Sae-byeok and possibly Player 062 being younger than him.

Mistakes[]

Another Player 021 is seen at the Voting where Player 045 was hugging him or holding his hand.

The other one is seen at the start of Red Light, Green Light.

Player 021 was seen grabbing the Number 03 vest and Player 062 was grabbing the Number 04 vest before Glass Bridge. During the game their vests switched.

He is seen upset that the games got terminated despite voting X.

His icon on the portrait grid and the icon in the VIP room have a little difference.

Behind the scenes[]

There is a continuity error where in Red Light, Green Light, another player can be seen wearing the 021 tag. And another Player 021 was portrayed by Jo Soo-yeon, Another known actor for Player 021 is Kang Yeon-hong who played Player 021 scanned. The actual Player 021 was portrayed by Moon Byung-Joo.

History[]

Player 022 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, he signed a contract and took his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. He was likely upset from how the organization kills players for being eliminated. While he voted to stay in the games, he was initially sent home since a slight majority voted to terminate the games.

So after the games were resumed, he and 186 other players decided to come back to win the prize money.

History[]

Player 023 was in a heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract and got his photo taken. After the death of Player 324, 250 and Player 306, it caused chaos, he managed to hold still and survived the initial chaos. He even survived Red Light, Green Light. After the first game, Like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants. When the prize money was finally revealed, a vote was held if the game should continue. He possibly voted to discontinue the games but the majority voted X. However, those who were willing to return could, he risked by returning to the games along with 186 players. He then proceeded to Sugar Honeycombs.

Fate[]

Player 023 broke his piece of dalgona which made him eliminated, likely because people were getting killed around him, leading him to panic and break the dalgona.

History[]

Player 024 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a massive dormitory with 454 other players. Player 024 watched as many other players' debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he listened to the manager explain the rules of the games, he signed a contract along with the other players, he took his photo in the photo booth, and he made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

Once Player 024 entered the arena of Red Light, Green Light, he looked around the massive room of the game. Player 024 stretched a little bit before the game began, as he listened to the instructions of Young-hee. A few moments into the game, a massive wave of panic and fear spreads throughout the entire arena as many players are gunned down and executed. Player 024, however, managed to keep his cool and stand still. He eventually makes it through the mass genocide and continues to progress through the game.

Fate[]

Not long after the mass genocide, Player 024 stumbled during a red light and lost his balance. In return, he was shot on the chest for moving.

Trivia[]

Player 024's recurring actor is the same as Player 187's actor, one of the most recurring minor players of Season 1.

Player 024's faulty icon is the same as Player 161's and Player 294's icon.

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

Personality[]

Player 024 seemed a malleable and greedy individual. Although he voted X in the first vote, he ended up changing his mind during the second vote and he joined Team O. He shows no empathy for the X voters despite being a former member of Team X, as during the Special Game he murders Player 370 for money with no hesitation.

History[]

Player 024 was in massive debt and decided to join The Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players (excluding 001). He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as the debts of many other players were revealed before him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, he was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. He was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory, many players pleaded with the guards to let them go. However, the guards instead showed everyone the massive increase in prize money that accumulated after the first game. They then explained the voting process to all of the players. Player 024 did not care about the money and decided to vote X during the first Vote. Unfortunately for him and the other Xs, More players voted to continue the games.

Later during the Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 024 partnered up with An Dong-uk, Player 378, Player 048, and Player 019. He and his team managed to complete all 5 minigames within the 5-minute time limit. After completing the Six-Legged Pentathlon, he and the other players held another vote. Player 024 changed his mind and decided to vote O instead of X, along with some other players.

Later on during Mingle, he managed to partner up with other players and passed all 5 rounds. During Round III, Player 024 tried to break a group of players and went in Room 08 with two other players. After Mingle, he and the other remaining players returned to the dormitory and had a third vote. Player 024 decided to vote O again, along with many other O players. This vote ends up in a tie, meaning they would vote again in the morning. Player 024 and the other players seem disappointed and move back to their beds. After the events of the bathroom fight, he and the other Os have a headcount and figure out that they have fewer players compared to the Xs. He and the other Os then decide to ambush the Xs during the night to put them ahead. When the lights finally go out, Player 024 and some other Os are seen sneaking over to Team X's side of the room. Eventually, Player 024 and the other Os charged into the bunks and started killing as many Xs as they could. He can be seen pinning Player 370 down and repeatedly stabbing her with a fork at the start of the Special Game. After the Special Game. He decided not to participate in Gi-hun's Rebellion and instead stayed in the lobby with all of the other players who also decided not to join. In the next round of voting, he voted O again and can be seen celebrating when they won the vote.

Later during Hide and Seek, Player 024 draws a blue ball from the gumball machine, which confirms his role as a hider. The manager later explains that he and his team would either have to survive the 30-minute timer or find an exit door to escape the maze. Later, when the guards allowed them to switch teams, Player 024 tried to switch with Player 080, but Player 080 declined the offer. He also tried to switch with Player 276. After the timer to switch teams ends. Player 024 enters the maze with his fellow Hiders and is given time to hide before the Seekers come after them. He then ran off into the maze and tried to find a hiding spot.

Fate[]

After Player 024 ran off into the maze, he was found and stabbed to death by an unknown seeker. His corpse can be seen when Seon-nyeo showed Im Jeong-dae how she found the exit door, and his blood was used to make an arrow.

Trivia[]

His ally is Player 048, which happens to be exactly double his number. Coincidentally, both are Team O's members and died in Hide-and-Seek.

Their roles are polar opposite however, as 024 is a Hider while 048 is a Seeker.

Not only that, but 024 had killed someone while 048 never managed to.

Funnily enough, his vote in the third round of voting left the O's with 48 votes.

He is the only recurring player in season three to have voted for both sides.

Additionally, his victim was also a recurring player who voted for both sides, with his and her S2 votes being flipped.

He was counted tenth in the Team O headcount.

He was the 175th to vote X in the first vote.

His actor claims that Player 442 was his killer based on info from Hwang Dong-hyuk himself.

He and his best friend were both last seen in the same place, being at a branched path in Hide and Seek. However, it was at different times.

History[]

Player 025 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract, took his photo, and was taken to the arena of the first game, known as Red Light, Green Light. He makes little progress offscreen before Player 324 dies, that's when he started to feel unease of hearing a real gunshot.

Fate[]

Player 025 was terrified after seeing three people die, he attempted to escape through the doors leading to his death, being shot by a sniper.

Player 025 shares his Red Light, Green Light actress with Player 449.

Mistakes[]

Player 025 has a total of five actors/actresses which are:

A female who portrayed Player 449 and Player 105 during Red Light, Green Light.

An older male extra in the first dormitory scene.

Another male extra during the initial chaos.

And finally a female extra on his Icon.

His icon erroneously appears in "Stick to the Team".

His icon also faded here too.

References[]

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

History[]

Player 025 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, He heard Gi-hun screaming about how dangerous the games were. Player 025 and many other players ignored his warnings, and continued the game without any worry. However, He was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. Player 025 luckily was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory with the other surviving players, Player 025 begged the guards to let him and the other players go. However, after a massive increase in the prize pool was revealed, Player 025 changed his mind and decided to vote O during the first vote. Him and the other Os then cheered after they won the vote.

Later during Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 025 decided to partner up with players 022, 037, 208, and 385. He then watched as many teams passed and failed in front of him.

Fate[]

Player 025's icon disappears after Six-Legged Pentathlon, which means him and his team were eliminated in the game.

Mistakes[]

He finished the first game and there was no blood on his shoulder, but when he approached Gi-hun, there was blood on his shoulder. Most likely, this is a mistake.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 025 was portrayed by Jin Se-won and Eun Jun.

History[]

Player 027 joined the Squid Games to help pay off her heavy debts. After waking up in a large room with 454 other players and having the rules of the game explained to her, she signed a contract, took her photo, and proceeded to the arena of the first game called Red Light, Green Light, which she managed to survive and get through. Back in the dormitory, she was seen begging for her life, and she voted X in the first voting session. However, the games were forced to continue because of Hwang In-ho's deciding vote of O.

In the Six-Legged Pentathlon, she teamed up with four men, players 265, 291, 342, and 433. She played Jegi for her team, as seen by their seating arrangement. She was seen cheering for Cho Hyun-ju's team after they managed to pass Jegi. When it was time for Player 027's team to complete the game, she and her teammates managed to complete all five minigames within the time limit. In the second voting session, she changed her vote to O.

Fate[]

During Mingle, Player 027 managed to pass the first round, as she is seen on the carousel before the second round began. She couldn't find a room and was shot to death. She could also be seen before the fourth round, but this is an error

Trivia[]

She is the first to put O with more votes than X in the second vote, leaving it 8 O to 7 X.

History[]

Not much known is about Player 028's life prior the games except she was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize and hoping to solve her financial issues. She called the number on the recruiting card and got into a mysterious car.

She then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. She then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of her. She eventually signed a contract, took her phot and made her way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

Before Red Light, Green Light, Player 028 listened to Gi-hun's alerting about the game's deadly nature although she and many other players were sceptical and ignored his warnings, so they continued the game without any worry. However, Player 028 was soon terrified as players were shot in front of her during the mass panic, luckily, she was able to control herself and stood still. She eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory with the other surviving players, Player 028 begged the guards to let her and the other players go. However, after a massive increase in the prize pool was revealed, Player 028 changed her mind and decided to vote O during the first vote. Her and the other Os then cheered after they won the vote.

"Six Legs" & "One More Game"[]

In Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 028 decided to partner up with players 013, 134, 361, and 175. She played Jegi for her team, and they then managed to complete all 5 minigames within the 5 minute timer. After successfully completing Six-Legged Pentathlon, her and the other players held another vote. Player 028 decided to vote O again along with many other O players.

"O X"[]

Later on, during Mingle, In the first round she's seen getting left without a group while the timer drops but manages to find 9 players off-screen and survive at the end of it, Player 028 meets players 116, 119, and 310 and got with them for the 2nd round while struggling with other players, during the 3rd round she struggles with multiple players but manages to survive it and get a room. Before the fourth round starts, in the platform, we can see Player 028 along with players 116, 119 and 310, who they are speculated to went with player 028 in fourth round. During fifth round, she is grabbed by Player 011 but by a possibblye anger reason to see Player 011's parch vote (X), she abandoned Player 011 and went with Player 219 instead, managing to pass the third game and made her way back to the Dormitory with Player 119 and later she and the rest of the players had a third vote. Player 028 decided to vote O again along with many other O players and she celebrates with Player 119 when Player 009 votes O again. This vote ends up in a tie, meaning they will vote again in the morning. Player 028 and the other players seem disappointed and they took a break before the third food.

During the third meal, player 028 sat next to Player 310 and possibly told her about her life, but when Yong-sik tried to convince Team O to change their vote and then Kang Dae-ho and Yeong-sam discussing, Player 028 and Player 310 are seen mocking Dae-ho with the rest of their team, making the argument escalated causing that the O voter players get angry and discuss with the players from X side in the dorm, players 028 and 310 decided to stay quiet and mocking to them in their place.

"Friend or Foe"[]

When the female announcer's voice announced the 5 eliminations, player 028 became worried while sitting next to players 116 and 310, not understanding what had happened. When Nam-gyu and some of the Team O players returned from the bathroom with blood soaked in their suits, and some Team X players returned from the other side quite injured, Player 028 stood alongside players 006 (Park Mi-wha), 116, 306 and 310 believing without question about Nam-gyu's word, who lied about how the players from Team X attacked them and killed his friend. After the events of the bathroom fight, her and the other Os have a headcount, Player 028 remained silent alongside Player 119 and figure out that they have less players compared to the Xs. The other Os decided to hide with multiple players as Team O ambushed Xs during the night to put them ahead. After the Special Game, Player 028 along Player 334 chose not to participate in Gi-hun's rebellion against the guards, so she remains in the dormitory.

Season 3[]

"Keys and Knives", "The Starry Night" & "It's Not Your Fault"[]

Following Gi-hun's failed Rebellion, Player 028 and other players noticed the pink guards carrying a coffin, containing Gi-hun's unconscious body.

When Gi-hun woke up, Player 028 gave her bad opinion about Gi-hun alongside Player 024. Gi-hun went berserk against the guards and player 028 remained silent and watched him with possible disgust.

In the re-vote, when the money won in the special game and the bathroom fight was shown in the piggy bank, player 028 watched with admiration alongside players 024, 119, and 310, possibly gaining ego by believing that she could win the next game, she remained voting O and due to a number of players in Team X were killed from the Special Game and the Rebellion, Team O won the vote and continue the games further.

During Hide and Seek, Player 028 drew a red ball from the gumball machine, which confirmed her role as a Seeker. Later when the guards allowed them to switch teams, she decided not to switch with Player 394 who was trying to convince both her and 119 to switch teams. After the timer to hide finished, Player 028 and the other Seekers made their way into the maze.

Inside, we can see Player 028 confused and when everyone moves to kill the players from blue team, we can see that player 028 goes alone in the maze. We don't know why she didn't decided to go with Player 154 and what she did inside the maze during all the 30 minutes to kill somebody.

Fate[]

Player 028 did not kill any hidere in time, meaning she was shot to death by the Soldiers. She placed 33rd-26th along with the other failed Seekers who were killed off-screen.

Trivia[]

A man named Park Pil-sam participated in and won the 3rd Squid Game in 1990 with this number. Pil-sam also had the smallest player number ever to achieve victory in the Korean squid games.

Player 028 died in the fourth game during both the 37th and 33rd Squid Games.

She is the last player in the 02X range to be eliminated in the 37th games.

Player 028 is the player with the longest hair as seen in the first vote along with Player 164.

She is the last female player between 001-100 to die.

She was counted second in the Team O headcount.

She is seen running to a room with Player 011 erroneously in the final round.

She is the only one on her pentathlon team whose player number does not contain the number 1.

Along with Player 163, she is the only Female Player On Team O to witness Seong Gi-hun Strangle Seon-nyeo except for Park Mi-hwa.

History[]

Player 029 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, signed a contract and took his photo.

Later, everyone was taken to an open area with a creepy robot doll at the front. It was revealed that the game was Red Light, Green Light. When the doll turned around, everyone ran forward, with Player 250 and Player 324 ahead of everyone, but Player 324 wasn't able to stop in time before the doll turned around, causing him to be eliminated. Player 324 then slumped over.

Player 250, thinking Player 324 was putting up an act, ran to him and asked him to stop faking, until he noticed blood gushing from Player 324's head, causing him to recoil and try to run away, but the doll, who was still looking, detected him and shot him, splattering his blood all over Player 306, causing her to scream and be shot, causing everyone to panic and try to escape. All who tried to run were killed.

He managed to survive the first game, Red Light Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue and he voted yes, but the majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned, along with most of the other players. He then proceeded to Sugar Honeycombs, it is unknown which shape he chose.

Fate[]

In the 2nd game Sugar Honeycombs, he didn't manage to carve his dalgona candy in the 10:00 minute mark on time and was shot repeatedly by a Soldier.

However, instead of voting O for a second time, Player 029 voted X after reaching the amount of money he owed. Unfortunately for him and the other Xs, more players voted to continue. Which meant they would have to continue the games.

Later on during Mingle, Player 029 managed to partner up with other players and pass the first 2 rounds without any trouble. After the second round, he made his way back onto the carousel and prepared for the third round.

Fate[]

During the third round of Mingle, Player 029 was shot after failing to find a room with the correct amount of players.

Mistakes[]

In the first vote, his vote was counted for X, but he was actually an O voter during Round 1.

History[]

Player 030 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He was likely confused and decided to make his way into the center of the room, where he watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he listened to the manager explain the rules of the games, he signed a contract along with the other players, he took his photo in the photo booth, and he made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During Red Light, Green Light, Player 030 and the other players watched as a strange man started screaming about how dangerous the games were. Player 030 and the other players ignored Gi-Hun's warnings, as they thought he was crazy and wanted the money for himself. Player 030 and the other players then continued the game without any worry. However, after sounds of gunshots ran out, and players started getting gunned down, Player 030 realized Gi-hun was serious about the danger. Luckily for him, he managed to stand still during the panic, and continued to follow Gi-hun's directions.

Fate[]

He died at some point during Red Light Green Light .Despite being seen after it and voting X and even having Team in Six Legged-Pentathlon its an error as his icon blanked out in Red Light Green Light and Player 162 was canon member of team he is in.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 030 was portrayed by an unknown extra.

Player 030 replaced Player 162 on his team during the start of Six-Legged Pentathlon.

He is the only player to die in Red Light, Green Light, but go onto erroneously appear in the Six-Legged Pentathlon, as a pose to the others, who appear in Mingle, Bathroom Fight BTS, and Special Game.

Mistakes[]

Player 030 is seen crossing the finish line, despite his corpse already being shown.

Player 030 is one of the last players to be eliminated in Red light, Green light.

Player 030 is also seen looking at the piggy bank, and even during the voting during Team X's side.

Player 030 is seen in the Six-Legged Pentathlon searching for teammates and sitting with his erroneous team. (consisting of players 171, 176, 191, and 279).

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

History[]

Not much is known about Player 031's early life, but she was a dedicated fan of Thanos. At some point in her life, she faced serious financial problems. Because of this, she made the decision to join the 37th Squid Game in hopes of winning the prize money.

Player 031 is first seen standing next to Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) when the contestants wake up inside the Dormitory. Later scene she was seen looking up at the piggy bank as it was being lowered, before eventually signing the consent form. Once all contestants were brought out of the initial room, Player 031 was one of the 10 contestants who tried to take a photo with Thanos, even though it was against the rules. Thanos promised her a photo once the games were over and their phones were returned, which made her excited. She eventually had her photo taken and then headed to the first game.

Player 031 was seen walking into the first game and later having a conversation with Player 188. During the first game, Red Light, Green Light, Player 031 manages to survive by most likely following Seong Gi-hun's advice of hiding behind larger players to reduce her chances of being detected by Young-hee.

After the first game ended, Player 031 was most likely shocked and shaken by the deaths she witnessed. Later the players were then shown the prize money that started filling up the piggy bank above them, following that a vote was held to determine if the players would like to continue or end the games. When given the chance to vote on whether to continue or end the games, Player 031 voted to end the games. Unfortunately, the majority of players decided to continue leaving her trapped in the games. Since she voted to end the games she became a member of Team X.

In the second game, Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 031 joined a team with Player 144, Player 420, Player 432, and Player 439. Her team is placed against Cho Hyun-ju's team. She plays Ddakji for the team and successfully passed the game, they were seen cheering at the finish line. However, they are not seen again.

Fate[]

Despite her team passing the second game, she was not seen again meaning that she and her teammates' passing was retconned, so they were actually shot to death instead for not completing or surviving the game in the time.

Trivia[]

Player 031 was one of the two Thanos's fans were eliminated during Six-Legged Pentathlon alongside Player 004.

Her team was the only one to have a production error passing the second game due to their actors weren't present after their characters were supposedly to survive.

She was the second female Thanos fan and the fourth overall Thanos fan to be eliminated.

She is one of the players that noticed Gi-hun was trying to remove his tooth.

She was one of the first women to successfully complete Ddakji in the Six-Legged Pentathlon, the other being Kim Young-mi.

Additionally she is also the first female on Team X to be eliminated on the right track in Six-Legged Pentathlon.

Similar to Player 310, her hair is up when she is taking her photo, but in her actual icon, it is down. 310 is the reverse of this however.

History[]

Player 033 was in tremendous debt when she was offered the opportunity to join the Squid Games. After waking up in a dormitory with 455 other players, she signed a consent form, had her photograph taken, and was transported to the first game, Red Light, Green Light.

During the chaos of the game, Player 033 managed to cross the finish line and survive the round. Following the result of the prize money, she voted X in favor of ending the games. Although the games were temporarily halted, she would later return and participate in the second game, Sugar Honeycombs, and choose a unknown shape.

Fate[]

Player 033's fate remains unknown. She was seen panicking during the initial phase of Red Light, Green Light, after which her icon disappears. However, she reappears later following the game's conclusion and is confirmed to participate up to Sugar Honeycombs. She is not shown during the dormitory segment before the Special Game, leaving her status uncertain and suggesting she may have died in the first game or second game, or she is supervised.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 033 was portrayed by Min Seo-yeon, Lee Young-hee in her icon and 2 unknown extras.

Trivia[]

A player named Bae Dong-il won the 25th Squid Games in 2012 with this number.

Mistakes[]

History[]

In her first look, she is seen looking at the piggy bank, surprised, and later she has put her life on continuing the games, just to get the money.

In her second appearance in the series, she is seen following the line for signature, moments later she is seen quite fine behind Thanos and Nam-gyu. As she is seen being polite and fine, when Thanos and Nam-gyu starts confronting Myung-gi, she's still seen quite confident for them. After the sudden chaos, she is still seemed careless.

In the first game, which is Red Light, Green Light, she is seen reacting clueless beside her fellow. And moments later, she was following Gi-hun's advice in order to survive the first game. When the game is near to end, she was seen, being scared along with 259 and 1 other player, and she ended up surviving the first game.

After the first game, players were seem afraid of the Guards due to them speaking the rules with kind words, but reckless. When the prize money increases, Player 035 was quite shock. Making her vote to continue the games. As she votes earlier, she cheers for Hwang In-ho to vote O. And he ended up making O voters satisfied.

In Six-Legs Pentathlon, which is the second game, she is seen finding teammates, making her alliance half complete as the timer dips below. After the time ends, she is along with her teammates, which includes, 339, 176, 052, and 405 as her teammates in the second game. After the second game she successfully survived along with her teammates who will die in the third game, including 035.

In Mingle, she is seen entering the arena, afraid and seem uncomfortable from the upcoming and settled game, which is the third game. During the 5th episode, Mingle was completely settled for the next surviving participants after the 2nd game.

When the platform was active and spinning around, Player 035 was seem scared again, thinking that her fate will be in early rounds. When the platform stops, Player 035 is seen forming an alliances along with players that are visible, who's likely 111, and 435. In round 2, Player 035 is seen getting abandoned by participants behind Thanos' Crew, leaving Gyeong-su and lead on his fate. This lead to Player 035 failing to find spare partners and a room in time, leading to her fate.

When the doll turned around, everyone ran forward, with Player 250 and Player 324 ahead of everyone, but Player 324 wasn't able to stop in time before the doll turned around, causing him to be eliminated. Player 324 then slumped over.

Player 250, thinking Player 324 was putting up an act, ran to him and asked him to stop faking, until he noticed blood gushing from Player 324's head, causing him to recoil and try to run away, but the doll, who was still looking, detected him and shot him, splattering his blood all over Player 306, causing her to scream and be shot, causing everyone to panic.

Player 036 managed to survive the initial chaos that occurred after Player 324 and 250's deaths and advanced a bit further.

History[]

Player 036 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He was likely confused and decided to make his way into the center of the room, where he watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he listened to the manager explain the rules of the games, he signed a contract along with the other players, he took his photo in the photo booth, and he made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During Red Light, Green Light, Player 036 and the other players watched as a strange man started screaming about how dangerous the games were. Player 036 and the other players ignored

Gi-Hun's warnings, as they thought he was crazy and wanted the money for himself. Player 036 and the other players then continued the game without any worry. However, after sounds of gunshots ran out, and players started getting gunned down, Player 036 made a run for the doors in fear for his life.

Fate[]

After listening to Gi-hun's orders, Player 036 managed to survive the panic but was shot off-screen for moving on a Red light.

Mistakes[]

History[]

Player 038, like many other contestants, joined the Squid Game to escape her debt. She is later seen in the Dormitory watching other players get slapped, before signing the consent form and having her photo taken.

During the Red Light, Green Light, as the initial chaos started, she stood still and listened to Seong Gi-hun, allowing her to successfully pass the first game. After surviving the game, she voted to continue the games and fortunately for her, many others made the same choice. She was relieved and happy as the games continued.

In the Six-Legged Pentathlon, she teamed up with Players 059, 269, 345, and 367. She played Biseokchigi for her team. When it's her team turn, her team managed to complete all the mini games within the time limit and survived. During the voting, she once again chose to continue the games.

Fate[]

In Mingle, she made it through the first round offscreen with 9 other players, as she was seen on the platform before the second round of Mingle, when the round started, she was seen trying to find a group, she was then seen with Player 164, Player 368, and Player 176. The group even in the midst of flashing lights, and mayhem, successfully secured a room in time. But in third round, unfortunately, she failed to find a room in time and was shot to death.

History[]

Player 040 was in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, he was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. He was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory, many players pleaded the guards to let them go. However, after a massive increase in the prize pool was revealed, Player 040 changed his mind and decided to vote O during the first vote.

Later during Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 040 partnered up with Player 127, Player 200, Player 213, and Player 314. He played Biseokchigi for his team and managed to complete it, along with his teammates within the 5 minute timer. After successfully completing Six-Legged Pentathlon, him and the other players held another vote. However, instead of voting O for a second time, Player 040 voted X after presumably reaching the amount of money he owed.

Later on during Mingle, Player 040 managed to partner up with other players and pass the first round without any trouble. After round 1, he made his way back onto the carousel and prepared for round 2.

Fate[]

He was shot by the soldiers for not entering a room in time in Round 2 of Mingle.

Trivia[]

Both him and his 33rd Squid Game counterpart has a line.

He is the only male 37th Squid Game player in the X40 part since Player 140, 240, 340 and Player 440 were females.

History[]

Player 042 was in debt, so he chose to enter the Squid Games after playing Ddakji with The Recruiter. He got transported to the island and the following morning, he woke up in a dormitory with 455 other people. Shortly after, he witnessed the fight between Players 067, 101 and later 456. The manager entered the dormitory and gave a speech to the players and after that, Player 042 and others have signed a contract, took their picture and entered the Red Light, Green Light game area.

He managed to survive the first game, and likely was shaken by the deaths of the contestants. After the the prize money was revealed, the vote was held whether the games should be continued or not. It is unknown what he voted, as we don't see him in that scene, but he was sent home after the majority voted X.

Although, when opportunity arised, Player 042 returned to the games along with 186 other players. 2 days after making this decision, he was proceeded to the Sugar Honeycombs game area.

Player 043

Player 042 was in a lot of debt. One day, The Recruiter played a game of Ddakji with him and got an invitation card. Later, he entered a van and slept. He then woke up in a dormitory with 454 other players. He then signed the consent form. We see him in Red Light, Green Light, and he manages to survive it. He managed to survive Six-Legged Pentathlon, and then changed his vote from O to X. However the majority voted O which caused him to continue the games. He then made his way to Mingle.

Fate[]

He managed to successfully survive the first round of Mingle but could not get into a room in time during the 2nd round, which caused him to be eliminated.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 042 was portrayed by Kang Shin-myeong.

When asked what Player 042's name was, Kang Shin-myeong stated it to be Kim Jin-soo.

History[]

Player 043 was in heavy debt like most players, and at a train station he met The Recruiter and was given a card to join the Squid Games. He accepted due to his high debt. When Player 043 woke up, he found himself in his bed in the Dormitory With 455 other players afterwards, he signed a contract and took a photo. During Red Light, Green Light, he managed to stay still the entire time even during the mass panic. At some point, He managed to make it to the other side within the time limit, Making him pass the first game.

As Sang-woo Brought up the 3rd Clause from the Contract, It was officially announced that voting would be taking place. It's unknown whether Player 043 Voted O or X. However, he left due to the majority voting X. But after sometime, he decided to return mostly likely because of his debt. It's unknown what shape 043 chose, but he managed to carve out his cookie within the time limit. Player 043 managed to survive the Special Game by either hiding or being able to defend himself against other players.

In the Lobby, Player 043 managed to get in Do Jeong-soo's team and managed to beat their opposing team, Team Two. Player 043 and his team decided to build an base around their team base in the dormitory so that other players couldn't attack them. In the morning, 043 and the others lined up and made their way to the 4th game. When the rules were announced that players needed a partner, Player 043 decided to partner with Player 407. Afterwards, Player 043 opposed against Player 407 and played an optional game of theirs.

Fate[]

In Marbles, he lost to Player 407, causing him to be shot as we can hear his elimination being announced.

History[]

Player 043 was in heavy debt, presumably higher than ₩78.8 million, so he joined the Squid Games in order to win money. Before Red Light green light, he was seen looking at Kang Mi-na and Kim Yeong-sam when they're debts we're call out. When they sign the papers, he told Jang Geum-ja and Park Young-sik to hurry up.

He survived Red Light, Green Light. Then Seong Gi-hun walked over to him and shaked him, and said he could be the next to die if he didn't leave now, but he still voted O.

During the Six-Legged Pentathlon, he teamed up with four other players and managed to win the game. He supports Im Jeong-dae by saying 78 Million Won was not enough. He voted O again.

Hold on, what? That's not even 100 million. Man, that's not even 80.

Player 043 to the Manager about the sum being too small in "One More Game"

During Mingle he was shot by Soldiers for failing to enter a room in the first round. He was left alive after being shot, but he was taken by Organ traffickers and killed by them.

Fate[]

In Mingle, he was shot in the first round for not finding a room in time. He survived the shot, and Kang No-eul walked away after looking at Number 005 and Number 007, his shooters. His organs were then removed by Kim Jung-ho.

Trivia[]

In the first vote, Gi-hun told him that he could be the next one to die. If he had said this during the second vote instead, he would be correct.

He is one of five players who came to the game with necklaces. The other four are Thanos, Se-mi, Nam-gyu and Player 400.

He has the same number as Strip "The King" Weathers, a major character in Cars.

Player 045

At some point during Player 044's life, he became burdened by financial debt. Eventually, he was approached by the Recruiter and given an invitation to the Squid Game where he could make more money. Having accepted the invitation, he was picked up, gassed, and taken to the island where he was changed into his player uniform and stripped of his personal possessions.

He woke up in a room with 455 other contestants, where many of them demanded to know where they were, either out of anger or anxiety. It was revealed all of the contestants were chosen because of their large debts. Following this, Player 044 signed his contract, took his photo, and was taken to the first game: Red Light, Green Light.

This is all useless. There's no point. Just as you didn't get to choose when you entered this world, you don't get to pick when you're going to leave it. The time and place of each one of your deaths was decided from the instant you were born. There's no changing it now. No matter how hard you try to fight it, you'll never be able to escape your fate.

Player 045

Seon-nyeo (선녀 Seon-nyeo?), also known as Player 044, was a participant in the 37th Squid Game. She was a Korean shaman who made unsettling prophecies throughout the games.

She was recruited in Cho Hyun-ju's team during the second game and helped them successfully pass. When they abandoned her later on in the competition, Seon-nyeo turned against them and formed a cult-like faction of players who followed her.

Personality

Player 456. I sense you're holding on to a great many things. You feel frozen, unable to leave or stay. There's no use trying to fight it. Your fate is decided. I see the wandering souls trapped with you unable to rest in death. You didn't come here of your own volition. Those vengeful souls dragged you here. You have bad karma, but I can help with that. As soon as we get out of here I can cleanse you with a gut ritual.

Seon-nyeo to Seong Gi-hun in "001"

Seon-nyeo is an arrogant and selfish woman who only cares about herself, even being quick to abandon her followers to die so she can save her own skin, showing that she's also a coward. She firmly believes her Shaman views and claims to be an all-seeing individual chosen by the Gods.

Seon-nyeo is also ungrateful, since she let her followers to be slaughtered by Nam-gyu and Lee Myung-gi, despite being saved by them when Gi-hun was about to strangle her.

Despite the misfortunes that led her to the Squid Games in 2024, Seon-nyeo is an unpleasant and extremely arrogant woman with an inflated ego—shaped by her past as a renowned shaman. She is selfish, outspoken, and often overwhelmed by anxiety, which causes her to lash out at others unpredictably.

Seon-nyeo has a keen ability to read people, having correctly deduced that Seong Gi-hun had previously played and won the Squid Game upon their first meeting. However, she is also quick to judge and abandon others. During the third game, Mingle, when the number four was announced, Hyun-ju, Yong-sik, Geum-ja, and Young-mi deliberately excluded her from their team due to her rudeness and irritating behavior. Left alone, Seon-nyeo ominously stared at Young-mi—who would later die in a subsequent round—hinting at her eerie ability to foresee or curse the fate of others.

Despite her flaws, her loyalty—when it exists—can be manipulative and strategic. Her alliance with Player 006, Park Mi-hwa, proved pivotal when Mi-hwa became the only player to change her vote from "X" to "O" in the third vote. This caused a split vote that ultimately led to the infamous bathroom and Special Game bloodshed.

Seon-nyeo is also deeply religious, believing that gods control the fate of every human. She often prays to deities and likely sees herself as superior due to her perceived connection to higher powers.

History

Prior to the games, Seon-nyeo was supposedly a shaman. In 2024, she somehow lost a large amount of money and entered the Squid Games to pay off her debt. Prior to the first game, she took notice of Seong Gi-hun and approached him as she revealed a bit of her shaman skills. She brought up how his fate is sealed and that there are many vengeful souls cursing him with bad karma.

She survived the first game, Red Light, Green Light staying behind Im Jeong-dae and awaited on the very top of her preferred bunk bed. She voted to continue the games. The next challenge was Six-Legged Pentathlon and players needed to pair themselves in a team of 5. Park Yong-sik, Jang Geum-ja, Kim Young-mi, and Cho Hyun-ju walked toward each other and they form a team. Since they were down a member, Seon-nyeo seized the opportunity to insert herself to the group. She approaches them with arrogance by calling them fools as she claims they should had come looking for her instead of her finding them. Their team started second after both teams of the first round failed to complete all 5 games. Seon-nyeo's group were eased by the first games until it was Seon-nyeo's turn in the 4th game "Paengi". She took notice of the blood on the ground and she started to get nervous. She struggled to wrap the rope on the spinning top. Her teammates tried to comfort her but that caused her to snap more. After a few failed attempts, she lost her composure as she started to mumble her prayers. Cho Hyun-ju noticed their team was running out of time. Hyun-ju slapped Seon-nyeo a couple of times and took the spinning top and threatened to kill her if she gave up. Hyun-ju's intimidation managed to convince her to focus again. Once Seon-nyeo regained her composure, she got the spinning top to spin, resulting in a pass. Their team with a few seconds remaining were able to cross the finish line. The whole room celebrated their victory.

The surviving players were sent back to the Dormitory where Seon-nyeo went back to her usual spot on the top bed. When the vote took place, she did a prayer to guide her decision to vote. Some players in back told her to hurry up while she responded to them to shut up. She voted to continue the games.

In Mingle, she stayed close to her former Six-legged pentathlon team. However, one of the rounds required 4 people. Her team left her behind to an open door. She managed to find Park Mi-hwa and two others to survive that round of Mingle. When the remaining players went back to the stage, Seon-nyeo stared at her former teammates for betraying her and gave a devious glare at them. The final round of mingle required two people and she paired with Park Mi-hwa to find an open door. They both survived Mingle and formed an alliance. This alliance convinced Park Mi-hwa to switch her vote from "X" to "O" to continue the games. Seon-nyeo did not participate in the special game or Gi-hun's rebellion.

In the re-vote, she voted "O" to continue the games. Before the fourth game and after Im Jeong-dae's team harassed him, she mocks Gi-hun, telling him that he will be able to hear the screams of his dead allies for the rest of his life, cackling. In response, Gi-hun suddenly lunges at Seon-nyeo, grabbing her by the neck in an attempt to strangle her. Mi-hwa and 306 quickly come to Seon-nyeo's rescue and pulled her out of his reach. The encounter leaves her visibly shaken.

In Hide and Seek, she was assigned to the Blue Team, which had to find keys to either hide or escape. Seon-nyeo, along with her followers - Park Mi-hwa, Player 306, Player 009 and Player 447 searched for an exit. When she stumbled upon a door, she decided to open it, hoping to find the exit, but on the other side of the door she saw Nam-gyu and Lee Myung-gi ready to ambush. She decided to quickly flee, leaving her followers and leading to the deaths of both Mi-hwa and Player 447. Now alone, she accidentally encountered Seong Gi-hun and told him she knows where Player 388 is, realising that's who he has been searching for, after which Seon-nyeo is let go. After she encountered a hallucinating Min-su, she fled into a room which turned out to be the exit room. However, she soon realised that she would need all 3 keys to enter. Therefore, she went in search for keys among dead players, including Player 009, one of her followers that escaped the ambush. She then encountered Im Jeong-dae who was playing dead, after being startled by realising that he was alive, she convinced him to help her use all three keys to open the exit. However, he betrayed her—pushing her away from the exit door and taking a key, trapping her inside.

Fate

How dare you... Who do you think I...

Seon-nyeo last words to Park Min-su after being stabbed in stomach twice.

Soon after she was betrayed by Im Jeong-dae, she encounters Min-su again during one of his hallucinations. Trying to scare him, she says that he "should have become a ghost a long time about, but [he] lived by leeching off others" (referring to Se-mi), insulting him for that. Mistaking her for Nam-gyu, who had also previously insulted him, Min-su stabbed Seon-nyeo, killing her.

Trivia

Seon-nyeo (From Chinese:"仙女") is Korean for "fairy" (specifically female) in Sino-Korean folklore.

After the second round of Mingle when she's betrayed, she evilly stares at Young-mi. Since Young-mi died shortly after, some fans speculate that Seon-nyeo already knew her fate.

She is similar to Player 244 from the first season of Squid Game, she was also praying to gods and became someone's minion. However, Player 244 is notably not as manipulative or insane as her. Both of their numbers end with 44 (X44).

In the Six-Legged Pentathlon, most of the antagonists played Paengi, namely Seon-nyeo, Kim Yeong-sam, Nam-gyu, Hwang In-ho.

Seon-nyeo had indeed correctly predicted multiple elements of people's deaths.

She stated to Cho Hyun-ju's team that they would all die facing each other. Cho Hyun-ju and Park Yong-sik were eliminated while facing the other members of their group, and Kim Jun-hee committed suicide while facing Seong Gi-hun, who was allied with her.

She told Seong Gi-hun that he wasn't destined to leave the Squid Games.

After being locked out by Im Jeong-dae, she called on the gods break his skull, shatter his spine and pulverize all his organs. This all occurred when he was eliminated by Lee Myung-gi in Sky Squid Game.

The reason of why Seon-nyeo took a long time wrapping the string on Spinning Top was because (apart from the pressure and hurry) she didn't tighten the string at all until her last try.

Seon-nyeo seems to be left-handed (similar to Hwang In-ho), since she votes using her left-hand, and also during Paengi, she uses her left hand to both wrap the string and throw the spin-top.

Not only that, but she was also wrapping the string counter-clockwise, which is the way left-handed people wrap the string on spin-tops so they can throw it with their left hand (which was also what Hwang In-ho did on his last attempt).

In the Round 1 in Mingle, she went to room 44 which is her number.

She was the first person who approached and spoke to Gi-hun before the start of the games.

She is the only Hider to die while not wearing her key (not to be confused with the key being removed after death).

She is the only one of the main character players in season three to not have either her elimination announced, or her icons be seen fading out.

When taking herself and Jeong-dae to the exit, they actually go down the hall that contains the other exit, as well as the marine room with Hyun-ju, Geum-ja, Jun-hee.

Since Seon-nyeo placed 37th in the competition, her 33rd Squid Game counterpart is Player 130.

She is the only player to be enemies with all of her pentathlon team mates.

She was counted 47th in the Team O headcount, and was last to be counted overall. This is because she wasn't at the floor during the head count like the others, she was the only one to stay at her bed.

She is the last female player confirmed to have played Paengi for the pentathlon.

Myung-gi is indirectly responsible for her death since if he had let Nam-gyu kill Jeong-dae, Seon-nyeo could have taken the third key from Jeong-dae's corpse easily and escaped. However Myung-gi later eliminated Jeong-dae himself.

Both of her followers have X06 numbers. (006 and 306).

She is the only hider who ended up causing her own death by insulting Min-su, since he didn't really intend to kill her.

In Mingle Round 1, she looked at Jun-hee's belly and after on Gi-hun, saying there is a reason he is still alive, predicting he is going to save Kim Jun-hee's baby

Quotes

You insolent fools! How dare you! You should've sought me out first thing. But instead I had to come to you? How insulting.

Seon-nyeo to what would become her pentathlon team in "Six Legs" I'm Seon-nyeo. Shaman of the sea.

Seon-nyeo introducing herself to her teammates. in "Six Legs" The gods of heaven and earth have abandoned us. They've abandoned us. Am I really going to die here? We're all going to die-!

Seon-nyeo just before getting slapped across her face by Cho Hyun-ju in "One More Game" You've lived longer than you were ever meant to, and now I finally see why? You're here for a reason, you were drawn by destiny.

Seon-nyeo to Seong Gi-hun after noticing Kim Jun-hee's pregnancy in "O X" Oh, you poor fool. What did I tell you? You're not here of your own volition, are you? It was the vengeful souls hovering over you that dragged you here. Do you hear that? It's the sound of your little friends screaming into your ears from the dead. Ah, but can cover them all you want, but it won't stop the noise. You can only hear them scream louder each day. And you... You're going to hear them from now until the day that you die.

Seon-nyeo to taunting Seong Gi-hun after the revote and failed revolt in "Keys and Knives" None of you can get out of here alive. Only I, shaman of the sea, can guide you to the path of life. I can see all the paths in that place from here. It is not with my eyes I see! The gods of heaven and earth are leading by the hand. Those who follow me shall continue to live. Anyone that gets in my way shall die!

Seon-nyeo to Park Mi-hwa, Player 306, Player 009, and Player 447, before Hide and Seek. in "Keys and Knives" Shush! I don't rely on my eyes to see the way. I follow the voices of the souls who died in here. Either follow me quietly, or get lost if your faith is lacked in me!

Seon-nyeo to her followers during Hide and Seek in "The Starry Night" No! You goddam bastard! You shall be cooked in the fires of hell! The gods of heaven and earth will smash your skull, shatter your spine, and pulverize your organs!

Seon-nyeo after being locked out of the exit by Im Jeong-dae in "The Starry Night"

History[]

Player 045 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, she signed a contract, had her photo taken, and went upstairs to the arena of the first game called Red Light, Green Light. She managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, she was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue, and the majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and she returned along with 186 other players.

History[]

Player 050 was in heavy debt and chose to enter a high-risk competition to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people. she signed a contract and took her photo.

Later, everyone was taken to an open area with a creepy robot doll at the front. It was revealed that the game was Red Light, Green Light. When the doll turned around, everyone ran forward, with Player 250 and Player 324 ahead of everyone, but Player 324 wasn't able to stop in time before the doll turned around, causing him to be eliminated. Player 324 then slumped over.

Player 250, thinking Player 324 was putting up an act, ran to him and asked him to stop faking, until he noticed blood gushing from Player 324's head, causing him to recoil and try to run away, but the doll, who was still looking, detected him and shot him, splattering his blood all over Player 306, causing her to scream and be shot, causing everyone to panic.

Fate[]

Player 050 panicked and ran towards the doors in the first game, she was then shot by a sniper. Her icon was blacked out before we could even see it, indicating her early death in the initial chaos. Meaning, we can say that Player 050 had died around the early panic.

Trivia[]

Player 050 shares her icon with Player 341 and Player 149.

She never appeared in Squid Game.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 050 was portrayed by Im Go-un.

History[]

At some point before Squid Game, Player 053 gathered a lot of debt, leaving him desperate for money. He eventually met a man in a suit who offered to play ddjaki with him. The man then gave him a card with a phone number to join the Squid Games, He made the call and then went to an address given to him. Suddenly, a van showed up. When he went inside, sleeping gas was released, making him fall asleep.

Player 053 then woke up to classical music in a jumpsuit on a bunk bed, in a creepy warehouse called the "dormitory." Then the "Guards," came in, telling him the instructions and that they were in a competition. He then signed a contract and proceed to walk into a giant room with multiple staircases, with classical music following the instructions. He then took his picture, following the guards into the first game: Red Light, Green Light.

Player 053 could be seen confused and doubtful about the giant doll, and an announcer explained the game rules, and so, The game begun. He and many other players ran, but the player that was right in front of him, Player 324, ran too fast and couldn't stop in time, followed by a loud bang and him dropping to the ground. This death made Player 250 scared and try to run away in panic, before getting shot, with his blood landing on Player 306's face, which made her scream and also get shot. After witnessing the death of 3 players, a lot of players tried to run to the doors but were shot. Player 053 was one of them, but it was an error.

After witnessing the death of 3 players, A lot of players tried to run to the doors but were shot and eliminated from the game. Although Player 053, along with many other players, managed to survive the initial chaos, and so the game continued, and Player 053 stood still and passed the finish line.

During the voting, its unknown what Player 053 voted, since he wasn't shown in this episode. But it can be assumed that he returned to the games after players voted to end the games since he is shown in the following episode.

After Player 053 came back into the games, he went into the same giant room with multiple staircases to get to the second game, Sugar Honeycombs. He walked into the second game with 186 other players. The announcer instructed the players to choose one of the four shapes on the wall and line up in front of it. The four shapes were, the circle, the triangle, the star, and the umbrella. He was thinking about what shape he was gonna choose until he decided to choose a unknown shape. He decided to position himself near the umbrella queue. When Player 369 died, he was seen shocked at his death.

Fate[]

Despite panicking in Red Light, Green Light he's also seen in dalgona, and it's currently unknown which is his canon fate

Just keep your damn prize money I don't care! Let me just go home that's all I want!

Player 066 begging to a Manager in "Hell"

While not much is known about him, his time spent in Squid Games shows that he values his life more than the money they offered. Furthermore, he was one of many to confront the employees about their style of elimination and decided to not return after voting for the Squid Games' termination.

History[]

Player 066 was in heavy debt and decided to participate in the Squid Games. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract and took his photo. He and 200 other contestants survived the first game Red Light, Green Light and was disgusted and scared by the style of elimination the Manager was talking about. When he was in main lounge with the remaining players, he stood in front when the manager and employees congratulated them for winning the first round. He was one of few contestants to speak out against the manager. He demanded the manager take him home and keep the money. He also agreed with No Sang-hun that police will be tracking their phones to save them (although the Guards most likely have some way of preventing that). Fortunately, Cho Sang-woo remembered the third clause which allows the players to vote on terminating the Squid games. He and 100 other contestants voted to terminate the Squid Game and he celebrated with those who were excited that the games were over. He was sent back to his hometown and did not return.

Fate[]

He was one of the 14 contestants to not return to Squid Game after the voting. The front man orders one of his manager to supervise those who did not return.

Trivia[]

Actor Won Choon-gyu is only credited for his appearance in "Hell". Won Choon-gyu did not return to do more episodes after episode two. Furthermore, no extras wore the 066 suit in episode 3 or later. This provides more evidence of Player 066 leaving the Squid Games after game's initial termination.

A player named Sin Seong-yong won the 11th Squid Games in 1998 with this number. This means that his number is the only confirmed one that have survived the games twice.

Mistakes[]

History[]

Player 066 was in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games happening in 2024 after being contacted by staff. In Red Light, Green Light, when Seong Gi-hun (Player 456) tried to tell the other players that if they moved they would be killed, the players thought Gi-hun was crazy and 066 said that he thought Gi-hun was trying to scare them so he could keep the money for himself.

Fate[]

Player 066 was among the many that ran to the doors after panic spread through the back-right portion of the field following Lee Eun-ju's death. Player 066 realized those who weren't moving weren't being shot and he abruptly stopped, but he already broke the rules of the game and Soldier 11 shot him in the head when he stood still.

Trivia[]

Both he and his counterpart from the first season had lines among the few supporting characters.

Ironically while his season 1 counterpart managed to survive the games by voting to leave and never coming back, he himself didn't even manage to make it to the first voting round.

Both him and his season 1 counterpart was deeply mistrustful of someone, Season 1's being the game organizers and Season 2's being Gi-hun.

A player named Sin Seong-yeong won the 11th Squid Games in 1998 with this number.

He's the only known player to be killed by Kang No-eul during the panic.

He is the last player eliminated in the mass panic.

It is somewhat probably based on his attitude to Gi-hun about the money that he would have voted 0 if he had survived this game but this can not be said for certain.

Kang Sae-byeok (강새벽 Gang Sae-byeog?), also known as Player 067, was a participant in the 33rd Squid Game, as well as one of the finalists of the competition and one of the 2 Deuteragonists (alongside Cho Sang-woo) of Season 1.

Chronology

Next player

Player 066

Player 068

Sae-byeok was a North Korean defector, and fled the country with her parents and younger brother, leading to her father's death and her mother getting caught. She originally worked with gangster Jang Deok-su, but decided to go independent, creating animosity between them. Sae-byeok agreed to enter the Squid Game to compete for the prize money to pay a broker and bring her mother to South Korea and get her brother out of the shelter. After surviving the first round, she is among the minority of players who vote to continue the 33rd Squid Game despite the risk of death, and she later voluntarily returns when the Squid Game resumes. She finds herself attacked by Deok-su during the Special Game, and joins an alliance with Seong Gi-hun, Cho Sang-woo and Ali Abdul in part to gain protection from him.

Sae-byeok displays her cunningness throughout the 33rd Squid Game, at one point sneaking into a bathroom air duct to spy on the 33rd Squid Game organizers and obtain information about upcoming competitions. She eventually befriends Ji-yeong, who sacrifices herself during a game of Marbles to allow Sae-byeok to advance to the next round along with the others who had survived. Her and Ji-yeong's short encounter leads to a deep bond to form between the two of them. Sae-byeok also becomes friends with Gi-hun and they both help each other through the 33rd Squid Game. Sae-byeok is one of the last three survivors of the 33rd Squid Game, along with Gi-hun and Sang-woo, though she suffers a serious injury when she is stabbed in the abdomen by a large glass shard during an explosion of glass in the fifth game.

Sae-byeok dies after Sang-woo stabs her in the neck while Gi-hun was at the door, begging for emergency help because she was losing a lot of blood from being stabbed by a glass shard after the fifth game. She placed 3rd overall, becoming the highest female finisher of the 33rd Squid Games. After winning the 33rd Squid Game, Gi-hun kept the promise he made to Sae-byeok to look after her family by putting Kang Cheol in the care of Sang-woo's mother and giving the two of them some of his winnings.

Personality

Kang Sae-byeok is very stoic and usually barely expresses emotions. She is shown to be very determined during the Squid Game, in the end becoming a finalist. She mainly kept to herself in the first three games, acting as a loner, and was initially very wary of trusting people, for example after being dropped off on the mainland after the players voted to leave, she initially didn't trust that Gi-hun wouldn't hassle her for the money she pickpocketed. She is also level-headed and can stay calm in dire situations.

Physical Appearance

Kang Sae-byeok has a slender, athletic and tall build. She has a messy dark wavy bob with short, uneven bangs that often fall over her large brown eyes. Her light-tanned skin is accented by soft freckles across her nose and cheeks, while her sharp facial features, full lips, and a small scar on her left cheek.

Sae-byeok displays her cunning nature throughout the 33rd Squid Game, at one point sneaking into a bathroom air duct to spy on the 33rd Squid Game organizers and obtain information about upcoming competitions.[2] She eventually befriends Ji-yeong, leading to a deep bond forming between the two of them.[3] When Ji-yeong sacrifices herself in Marbles so Sae-byeok could advance to the next round, Sae-byeok is shown crying. She also warmed up to Gi-hun, telling him the right tile to go on in Glass Stepping Stones.

Sae-byeok is one of the last three survivors of the 33rd Squid Game, along with Gi-hun and Sang-woo, though she suffers a serious injury when she is stabbed in the abdomen by a large glass shard during an explosion of glass in the fifth game.[4][5] During her final moments, she trusts him for his promise to take care of her little brother before she dies.

History

For a comprehensive history, see Kang Sae-byeok/History.

Backstory

Sae-byeok with her brother Kang Cheol

Kang Sae-byeok was born in North Hamgyong Province, North Korea. She is the middle child of three children. When she was young, her older brother and grandparents died from a plague. She and her family defected from North Korea but only she and her younger brother Kang Cheol were successful; her father was killed during the attempted escape, and her mother was captured in China and was sent back to North Korea. Her brother stayed in a shelter, while Sae-byeok worked as a pickpocket and attempted to save enough money to buy a home for her brother and bring her mother to South Korea.[6]

Sae-byeok originally worked with a gangster named Jang Deok-su, but decided to "go independent", creating animosity between them. She agreed to enter the Squid Game to compete for the prize money to pay a broker and bring her mother to South Korea and get her brother out of the shelter.

Sae-byeok encountered The Recruiter who played a game of Ddakji with her, later giving her an invitation to the 33rd Squid Game. Prior to entering the game, Sae-byeok accidentally bumps into Seong Gi-hun as he is running from loan sharks, unaware of Sae-byeok walking in front of him. Gi-hun stops to help her, only to later realize she had robbed him of his newfound money. Sae-byeok accepted the offer to join the game is driven to the games arena and wakes up in a room with 455 other people. Gi-hun (Player 456) recognizes Sae-byeok (Player 067) as the pickpocket who stole his money. She is being attacked by Jang Deok-su (Player 101) a vicious gangster, until Gi-hun steps in to stop the fight.

The guards enter the room and welcome the players, explaining that they will play six games over six days, and that whoever wins all six games will win a lot of money. Some players express disbelief of the games, to which the guard says that they know the players are in large debts and that they need the money the games offer them to have a better life. They lead all the players through multiple staircases to the room for the first game, Red Light, Green Light. The game starts off in a room resembling a field with trees with a large doll and a finish line. At the starting line, a voice announces the rules of the game: they can move when the doll sings "무궁화 꽃이 피었습니다 (the hibiscus flower is blooming)" but must stop when it finishes singing. Moving when it's not singing or not making it to the end in five minutes will result in being eliminated.

Once the game begins, players 324 and 250 run quickly, determined to win first. Player 324 accidentally moves when the doll is quiet, causing him to be eliminated as a bang is heard when he falls to the floor. Player 250 checks on him and sees 324 dying and coughing up blood, making 250 run away and get shot as well. When his blood lands on Player 306's face, she screams in horror and is then killed for moving. This leads to a bunch of players trying to run away in panic as they see what "elimination" truly means, with only some surviving due to them staying in place. Eventually, everyone is either still or dead, with the voice once again reminding of the rules of the game.

The game resumes, but every player is too afraid to move forward, with the exception of Oh Il-nam, Player 001, who is enjoying himself despite the carnage. Eventually, other players start to follow his lead, with those who are careless getting eliminated. Sae-byeok creeps up behind Deok-su and threatens to kill him in revenge by pushing him to make the doll catch him. He begs for mercy as she taunts him, but she pulls him to the ground while the doll is looking the other way and overtakes him. Eventually, some players reach the finish line, including Sae-byeok, Deok-su, Sang-woo, Il-nam, Gi-hun and Ali Abdul.

Sae-byeok voting to continue the game

After the first game, all the surviving contestants are brought back to the dormitory. The guards enter and congratulate the players for winning the first game, stating that 255 players were eliminated. At this, several players beg to be let go from the games, promising that they will pay off their debts. A guard clarifies that the point of the games is not to punish the players for their debts, but to give them a second chance.

After being reminded that players who refuse to participate will be killed, Sang-woo invokes the third clause of the consent form that says the game can be ended if the majority vote to leave. The guards agree to the voting but show the cash prize first, with a gigantic transparent piggy bank being lowered from the ceiling that begins to be filled up with stacks of cash totaling ₩25 billion. They reveal that each contestant is worth ₩100 million and that the total prize pot will be ₩45.6 billion. The guards further explain that the players can make a choice between leaving or staying and set up a voting machine with two buttons - a circle to continue and an X to leave. If they leave, they don't get any of the prize money. Sae-byeok votes to continue the games, as do many others including Sang-woo. The vote remains neck-and-neck all throughout, as some players want to end the games, but others are desperate to win the prize money. A fight nearly breaks out as the contestants who want to leave get angry with those who want to continue, necessitating intervention from the guards. The counterargument to leaving is that their lives outside of the game aren't going to improve; at least in the games, they have a chance to get the money. It's Player 001, the old man with the brain tumor, who gets to cast the deciding vote and break the 100–100 tie. He selects to quit the game.

With that, everyone is dropped off back on the mainland, with the promise that if a majority of people want to continue the games after a few days, the games will be restarted. Sae-byeok is dumped with Gi-hun, the man who had his money stolen by her. Sae-byeok visits her little brother Cheol, who is staying in a children's home as she can't afford a bigger place for them both to stay in. Cheol complains to his sister that the other children pick on him and tells her that she abandoned him at the orphanage. Sae-byeok consoles her brother, promising him that she will get him out of the orphanage and rescue their mother out of North Korea. She visits the broker she hired, only to find out the deed has absconded with her money. Ultimately, almost everyone decides to return to the games, waiting on the street at midnight to be picked up by the cars.

As the workers now wheel the players and change their clothes, Sae-byeok, who was pretending to be unconscious, secretly steals a knife from one of the workers. The players then wake up in the familiar facility. During bedtime, Player 212 (Han Mi-nyeo) and Sae-byeok go to the bathroom. Sae-byeok goes to the vents to sneak in and finds workers cooking something while Mi-nyeo makes a deal with her to distract the soldier outside. The next day, Sae-byeok tells Mi-nyeo and Sang-woo that the workers were melting sugar. The players are taken to the next game, which will happen inside a room which resembles a playground. In the room, there are four doors with a shape each: a circle, a star, a triangle, and an umbrella. Each player must choose a shape and stand in a line in front of the corresponding door. Sae-byeok follows Sang-woo's choice and they both get a triangle candy. Then, the announcer says the next game is Sugar Honeycombs. Both Sae-byeok and Sang-woo pass, along with Gi-hun, Ali and Il-nam.

Thirty minutes before the Special Game, Sae-byeok is approached by Gi-hun, offering that she can come to him for safety, although she rejects the offer. After the start of the Special Game, Sae-byeok gets choked by one of the members of Deok-su's team, Player 040. Deok-su goes after Sae-byeok, trying to grab her. She manages to stab him in the leg. He then pushes her back towards the row of beds, nearly breaking her arm. He attempts to choke Sae-byeok, before she kicks him in the groin. She climbs over the bed and is cornered by Deok-su before being pushed over by Player 331. Deok-su manages to stab him repeatedly in the arm. Sae-byeok finds Gi-hun and runs to him, now accepting the offer to join his team. Deok-su appears behind Sae-byeok, and Gi-hun pushes her out of the way to grab Deok-su. Sae-byeok kicks Deok-su, before getting a bottle cracked on her head by Player 303. Sae-byeok, Gi-hun, Sang-woo and Ali manage to protect themselves from Deok-su's team, surviving the game. Player 001, on top of a high bunk bed, screams that he is scared and pleads for the riot to stop. The Front Man notices this and tells the staff to end game.

Later that morning, the players are dividing into teams of 10 for the next game. Sang-woo tells Gi-hun that they need more men for the game, and they look for 5 more players to join their team. Ali meets with Player 276, and they join as a team as they realize their similarities as foreigners. Sang-woo then convinces Player 196 to join his team. Gi-hun asks Player 244, a pastor, if he can join his team, and 244 agrees. Sae-byeok, looking for another member, finds Ji-yeong by herself, so she asks 240 to join her team. The team is short of a member, with Mi-nyeo complaining that their team is weak and that they'll end up with people who got kicked out. Mi-nyeo hears this, and walks into the circle, joining the team, saying that she's better than Sae-byeok and 240 because they're wimpy. The timer then runs out, and the game starts.

The teams get led outside to another room. A guard reveals that they will play Tug of War, explaining the rules of the game. The guard then draws lots, deciding which teams will play in the game. Team 4 (Gi-hun's team) and Team 5 then get chosen for the second round. Player 001 notices his teammates are scared and gets to motivating them, explaining that Tug of War is more than just raw strength - it takes good teamwork and strategic thinking, but his ideas are dismissed by Player 244 and Player 196 due to his old age. Gi-hun tells them to just listen to what the old man has to say. Il-nam explains his method - at the front, a good leader is important, as the rest of the team relies on the leader to be confident in themselves; with an unreliable leader, they don't have as much a hold. In the back, a strong and dependable teammate is placed as an anchor. Meanwhile, the rest of the players should be on opposite ends of the rope per player, both feet should face straight forward, and the rope should be held in their armpits so players can balance and put in all of their strength. Finally, they must hold their ground and lean back for 10 seconds. If done right, this will tire out the opposing team. The two teams get ready as the guards chain them to the rope; Gi-hun is chosen as the leader, while Ali acts as the anchor.

When the round starts, Team 4 holds their ground and Team 5 is unable to make much progress. Sure enough, Team 5's leader slips, and Team 4 immediately starts pulling the rope back. However, right as Team 5 is about to fall off their platform, they pull themselves together at the last second and gain the upper hand. As Team 4 is on the edge of falling, Sang-woo saves the team by thinking of a last-second strategy. As they were being dragged and were on the verge of falling to death, he told his team to take three steps forward to knock down their adversaries, allowing him and his teammates to win the game.

Sae-byeok keeping watch with Gi-hun

The 40 remaining contestants must survive the night, even though no one particularly trusts anyone. Later, while eating dinner, Sang-woo recalls the previous night's riot and advises his team to be prepared in case it occurs again. While his team decides what to do, Sae-byeok informs them that she witnessed a player die in front of her during the disturbance, his neck being snapped by an ally. She inquires about the team's trust in her and informs them that she does not trust any of them. Sae-byeok is seen assisting Ji-yeong as their group moves sections of their beds after Gi-hun urges them to set up a barricade. While on guard duty alongside Il-nam, Gi-hun appears to be ill. Gi-hun is offered a bottle of water by Sae-byeok, who has just awoken. Gi-hun tells Il-nam that Sae-byeok can go back to sleep, but she reminds him that they planned to keep guard in pairs. Gi-hun expresses gratitude for the bottle of water and promises to repay her the following day.

The surviving players proceed to the next game and have to pick a partner. As the players walk through the staircase room, they notice the bodies of Byeong-gi and his co-conspirators strung up. The Front Man then says over the intercom that the game was created with equality in mind and reiterates that there is no tolerance for cheating in the games. Sae-byeok and Ji-yeong decide to pair up for the game. They are then introduced to the fourth game, Marbles. To win the game, the players have to try to steal all of their opponent's marbles without violence while playing a sub-game with them. The person who ends up with no marbles is killed off and eliminated. They have a time limit of 30 minutes. If no one wins by then, both players will be eliminated. Their opponent in the game is who they chose to be their partner. This comes as a shock to everyone as they had partnered up with someone they trust, not knowing what the game really was.

Saebyeok playing Marbles with Jiyeong

Sae-byeok and Ji-yeong start talking. Neither of them wants to participate in the game, so they spend the next 30 minutes talking to each other. They start revealing their pasts to each other, with Sae-byeok telling Ji-yeong that a plague in her home village in North Korea had killed her grandfather, grandmother, and older brother. Sae-byeok explains that her family decided to escape to South Korea, seeking a better life, but only she and her younger brother crossed the border successfully, as her father was shot and drowned attempting to cross and her mother was caught and deported back. Ji-yeong reveals that she and her mother were abused by her father, who was a pastor and would pray for forgiveness every time he abused them. One day, after coming home from school, she found her father had murdered her mother, and Ji-yeong killed him out of retribution. She had received the Squid Game card the same day she was released from prison. Ji-yeong asks Sae-byeok what she would do if she won, to which Sae-byeok replies she'd get her mother out of North Korea, buy a nice house for herself and her family to live in, and maybe go on a vacation to Jeju Island. Ji-yeong chides her for having such a basic vacation in mind, telling her to aim for something more extravagant and promises to take her out on a girls' night out shopping before somberly remembering their situation. Ji-yeong being killed by a Soldier as Sae-byeok looks away in tears. As the game's timer starts running out, Sae-byeok and Ji-yeong play the game. They decide that whoever throws the marble closest to the wall near them, wins. Sae-byeok throws her marble and it lands reasonably close to the wall, but to her immense shock, Ji-yeong simply drops her marble, allowing her to win. When Sae-byeok angrily confronts her, Ji-yeong explains that ever since they started opening up to each other, she realized that she had nothing left to fight for in the outside world, while Sae-byeok still had a reason to live, and tearfully requests for Sae-byeok to live her life to the fullest if she is ever able to leave alive. As Sae-byeok is led away, Ji-yeong calls out to her one last time, and emotionally expresses her gratitude towards Sae-byeok for playing the game with her before getting shot dead, while Sae-byeok cannot bring herself to look at her friend in her last moments, only being able to listen in anguish and devastation.

File:Sae-byeok is hit by exploding glass.webp In Glass Stepping Stones, Sae-byeok, Gi-hun and Sang-woo safely make it across the bridge just as the timer runs out, and the remaining glass panels are shattered, sending sharp glass shards among the three remaining players. She is then impaled by a large shard of glass from when the bridge exploded. While changing into her finalist uniform, she painfully removes the glass shard from her abdomen and quickly tears off her shirt to wrap it around the wound to prevent further bleeding.

The finalists are given a nice steak dinner in the lobby as a prize for having come this far. Gi-hun and Sang-woo tear into their meals, eyeing each other down, while a clearly weakened Sae-byeok barely touches her food. After the meal, workers clean the table and leave the players' steak knives. The players keep the knives and go to their beds.

Fate

I think I wanna go. I'd like to go home now.

Sae-byeok's last words to Seong Gi-hun

Sae-byeok's final conversation with Gi-hun

During the Final Dinner, the finalists rest on their beds. Gi-hun goes over to Sae-byeok, who readies her knife but Gi-hun assures her that he's not going to harm her and hides his knife in his jacket. They talk about what will they do after winning the money and their families and promise each other that they will take care of them should one die. Gi-hun notices Sang-woo falling asleep and takes out his knife, but Sae-byeok stops him, telling him that he is not a killer. Gi-hun then hears Sae-byeok slump over in her bed, and uncovers her wound, which is bleeding profusely. Sae-byeok deliriously asks to go home. Gi-hun quickly runs to the door and begs for help.

The doors finally open and the lights turn on but instead of help, the Workers walk past Gi-hun, carrying a coffin. Gi-hun turns around and sees Sang-woo covered in blood near Sae-byeok's bed. Gi-hun runs over to a lifeless Sae-byeok and cradles her in his arms, before discovering a stab wound in her neck. Realizing that Sang-woo had killed her with the knife in his hand, he furiously grabs his own knife to attack Sang-woo but both are quickly brought down by Soldiers. As the other Soldiers slowly carry Sae-byeok's corpse into her coffin, Gi-hun wails in agony. Sae-byeok placed 3rd overall, becoming the highest female finisher of the 33rd Squid Games. She was later cremated.

Legacy

Sae-byeok's corpse being placed into a coffin by two guards.

During the titular Squid Game, Sang-woo claimed he killed Sae-byeok as she was already in a lot of pain, and wanted to end her suffering. However, Gi-hun dismissed this, saying that she could've been saved. Sang-woo then admitted that he killed Sae-byeok because he thought Gi-hun would've ended the game just to save her. After winning the 33rd Squid Game, Gi-hun kept the promise he made to Sae-byeok to look after her family by putting Kang Cheol in the care of Sang-woo's mother and giving the two of them some of his winnings.

In "Bread and Lottery", a dream sequence scene shows Gi-hun looking over four cameras watching some parts of his local area, only to be met by Front Man repeatedly ringing his doorbell. As Gi-hun grabs his gun and slowly approaches his door, a card slips under his door, potentially inviting him for the next Squid Game. As Gi-hun opens his door, he is greeted by the Front Man, who shows the heads of Sang-woo and Sae-byeok, asking if Gi-hun was "looking for these?" Gi-hun then repeatedly fires his gun at the Front Man in fear and retaliation until he wakes up from the nightmare.

In "△", Gi-hun prepares to follow the Front Man's advice and kill the other remaining adult players in their sleep so that he and Kim Jun-hee's baby (who has taken her deceased mother's place as Player 222) can leave safely as dual winners of the 37th Squid Game. Before Gi-hun begins to do this, he experiences a vision of Sae-byeok telling him that he is not a murderer. This convinces him to spare the players and let the next game happen.

Trivia

Her name, Sae-byeok (새벽) means "dawn" in Korean. A track also named "Dawn" plays when Gi-hun finds out that she has been eliminated.

Since her actress is 5'9.3, Sae-byeok is one of the show's tallest female actors.

She was the only female character, apart from Sang-woo's mother, who appears in all 3 seasons.

The other characters that appeared in all 3 seasons were Seong Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho, Hwang Jun-ho, Park Man-cheol, Kang Cheol, Park Jung-bae, and Gyeong-taek.

Kang Sae-byeok is similar to her Season 2 counterpart, both injured a main antagonist, both were killed by a O member and both were killed in the dormitory.

Sae-byeok has a scar on the side of her neck, by which Gi-hun recognizes her as the pickpocket who'd stolen his bet money.

Some think that she's related to Kang No-eul, having the same surname and birth location. And "Sae-byeok" and "No-eul" in Korean mean "Sun rise" and "Sun set" respectively. Yet, there's no direct evidence to prove that, especially considering Sae-byeok does not mention having a sister when talking about her family.

She is the last player to die in the dormitory, being the 30th player who dies in the dormitory, after Player 069, the 27 killed in the Special Game and Player 271.

She was the only Finalist in the 33rd Squid Game to die with her jacket on.

She is the only finalist shown dressing into her tuxedo.

Ironically she's the only one to be a woman, and do it alone.

Behind the scenes

Kang Sae-byeok was portrayed by Jung Ho-yeon, Lim Tae-hoon (stunt), and a unknown extra during the Red Light, Green Light panic. In the English dub of Squid Game, Sae-byeok was voiced by Vivian Lu and French dub she voiced by Olivia Nicosia.

After the show's airing, Jang Ho-yeon Jung said she was really crying during the scene where Ji-yeong died in "Gganbu". Additionally, she was also truly crying during the hallucination scene in △ , and after filming the scene, she stated how she "just arrived on set and [she's] already a sobbing mess!"

Quotes

Don't join him. This guy's a damn dumbass. He liked to pick all of his little minions' pockets just so he could fill up his own. He got bold enough one day to go after his head honcho's pockets, but now he's in here. 'Cause he was stupid and got caught. You know what people in my hometown would call you, huh? A damn revolutionary asshole.

Sae-byeok: Just in case either of us... can actually make it out of this hellhole somehow, we'll look after each other's loved ones, okay? Gi-hun: Don't say that. Come on. We'll beat Sang-woo, and then, we'll get out of here together. Sae-byeok: I still want you to swear, though. [quiet sob] I need you to swear that you'll look after him.

Personality

Excuse me. I was wondering... would you like to do this together?

Young-mi's asking Cho Hyun-ju to team up with her in "Six Legs"

Young-mi is a very anxious and emotional person. She sees her "unnie" as her dearest friend who helps in finding her confidence. She's reliant on her team- particularly Hyun-ju, and is loyal to them. She tries her best to keep going during the games and is hopeful that everyone will survive. She is described as "very brave" from Hyun-ju when they first encountered each other. Although prone to panicking and stressing, she sticks with her team. As said by Park Sung-hoon, he said that Young-mi was "like a wet Shih Tzu", and that she looks like a puppy and she's really cute.

History

Young-mi was in a giant debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize by playing Ddakji with The Recruiter. After failing the ddakji and constantly getting slapped, she finally managed to beat The Salesman and got ₩100,000 and a recruiting card that reads ○△□ and a phone number on the other side. After that, she called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. She then woke up in a giant dormitory with 454 other players. After that, she stayed on her bed watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of her. Later on, she signed a contract and made her way up a flight of stairs to the first game off-screen.

During the first game, she was soon terrified as players were shot in front of her offscreen during the mass panic. She was able to control herself and stand still. She then eventually completed the first game, Red Light, Green Light thanks to Gi-hun's commands and strategy off-screen. After returning to the dormitory, many players pleaded the guards to let them go. However, after a massive increase in the prize pool was revealed, many people changed their minds. As the guards decided to have the first vote, Kim Young-mi doesn't care about the money and voted X which resulted into the Os winning the vote.

She makes her first appearance in the 4th episode when she pairs up with Cho Hyun-ju in the second game. Her team also consisted of: Park Yong-sik, Jang Geum-ja and Seon-nyeo. Prior to their round, she began panicking, but Hyun-ju reassured her. Her game to play was Ddakji, which she succeeded in on her 4th attempt after her friend's help. She and her team managed to pass the game in the last second.

After the challenge she has a talk with her friends from the team except Seon-nyeo, where they discuss their lives. She refers to Hyun-ju as 'Unnie', a Korean honorific term meaning 'older sister' or a way to address a woman older than you. As the voting process begins, Jang Geum-ja invites her for dinner after the game is over before they discover how closely they live to each other. Young-mi asks Hyun-ju if she will join them, noticing her friends silence, to which she agrees. In the second voting she proceeds to vote "X" once again. After seeing how many people want to stay, she breaks down crying, pleading for everyone to let her go home. When majority decided to stay, she is upset, but forgives Hyun-ju for voting "O". Hyun-ju explains how she was ostracized after her decision to transition, and how she needs the money to finish it and move to Thailand. After Yong-sik mentions Thai trans women, and Hyun-ju refers to them as beautiful, Young-mi calls her beautiful too, causing Hyun-ju to break down.

After the night they proceed to the 3rd game. Whilst walking there, Hyun-ju stops Young-mi to apologize for voting "O", Young-mi reassures her that it is okay, and they will leave after the next round.

In the game Mingle, the first round is 'ten' and her team joins with Gi-hun's team of five, grabbing Seon-nyeo for their final player. When round two is revealed to be 'four', the four of them quickly abandon Seon-nyeo for a room, only for her to survive and become their enemy. The third round is 'three' so Young-mi and Hyun-ju split into a pair to find their final member, they are saved at the last second by Park Gyeong-seok who pulls them into a room. Young-mi refers to him as a 'Knight in shining armor' for saving them, a notion Geum-ja agrees with and thanks him for saving them both.

Fate

Unnie...

Young-mi's last words to Cho Hyun-ju in "O X"

Kim Young-mi's dead body

In the fourth and penultimate round, the players are told to form groups of six. Her team of four are joined by Kang Dae-ho and Kim Jun-hee, but as they run towards a room, Young-mi is pushed by Player 051 while he and Player 073 are pushed by Player 249 and Young-mi falls to the ground, Hyun-ju tries to save her but Lee Myung-gi pushes her inside and closes the door before time runs out, leaving Young-mi outside but saving the group by joining them.

Young-mi starts to cry and looks at her Hyun -ju through the hole in the door. She repeatedly calls out for Hyun-ju, using the word 'Unnie'. Hyun-ju tries to open the door without success, then Young-mi is shot in the back and dies, leaving her friends and Hyun-ju especially devastated, Hyun-ju blames Myung-gi for Young-mi's death but Myung-gi defends himself, saying that it's not his fault and that thanks to him she is alive, Hyun-ju declares in anger and grief that it is because of Myung-gi that Young-mi is dead, but Myung-gi responds that there was no time and that Hyun-ju would have died when she left the room and the group would have died because they were missing a player. Myung-gi asserts that everyone is alive thanks to him and asks the group if he is telling the truth and Jun-hee and Dae-ho reluctantly say that he is right and that there was no time. Hyun-ju is left devastated and heartbroken over the loss of her friend.

Young-mi's dead body is put in a box to be either incinerated or her body was used by The Masked Officer for his organ trafficking business and her death affects the members of her team, especially Hyun-ju, who becomes despondent and votes "X" after the round because of her. Seon-nyeo gloats about her death and threatens the rest of her allies, saying they are next. Because of her irrational behavior, Geum-ja told Hyun-ju, Yong-sik, and Gyeong-seok to be free from her curse, so that they won't meet their fates.

Indirectly attempted by abandoning her during the 2nd Round of Mingle; alongside Yong-sik, Hyun-ju and Geum-ja.

Trivia

She has the same number as Lightning McQueen, the main character in Cars.

Kim Young-mi shares a name with the actress of Player 440 in Season Two and Three.

Young-mi's death may have been foreshadowed before being eliminated. In Mingle after the end of the second round, Hyun-ju's team was stared at evilly by Seon-nyeo, in which Young-mi was the main one. This may confirm that Seon-nyeo knew her fate, or cursed her before being eliminated.

In "One More Game" Young-mi reveals that she lives in Sillim-dong.

Young-mi was often mistaken for Jun-hee by fans, and before Season 2 aired, many people thought the girl outside the door was Jun-hee.

Player 238 seems to have the same hairstyle as her.

She's the only one in her team to not have any direct, attempted or caused kills.

Young-mi's actor Kim Si-eun and Geum-ja's actor Kang Ae-shim, both starred in the drama Move to Heaven. She and Park Yong-sik are the only main characters from the 37th Squid Game to die via being shot.

Coincidentally they're both from Hyun-ju's team.

Behind the scenes

Kim Young-mi was portrayed by Kim Si-eun. In the French dub, she was voiced by Estelle Darazi.

As long as I can remember, I've been hiding behind people when I got scared. My life has been this thing that I've never really been able to truly control. And I tried to act like I wasn't afraid, but I was. And now, as always, I'm choosing my number last after everybody else here. I wanna get at least one last chance to claim ownership of my life. Personality[]

But then, how do I tell which is the tempered one?

Player 096 asking a Manager for advice on how to pass Glass Stepping Stones in VIPs Player 096 has always been a cowardly man who has hid behind people. In the 5th game, though, he wishes to change his attitude and take the lead. His attitude quickly though understandably reverts to cowardly once he realizes what the game is.

History[]

Player 096 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, he signed a contract and took his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue. His vote is unknown as we don't see him voting, but it's presumed he voted X due to his personality, still unconfirmed. The majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned, along with most of the other players.

He managed to survive the second game, Sugar Honeycombs, and the third game, Tug of War, and beat his partner, Player 229 in the fourth game Marbles, and survived until the fifth game, Glass Stepping Stones. For the game, the remaining players each had to choose a number beforehand. When Player 456 wanted to take number 1, Player 096 asked to let him take it instead, wanting to take control and make his own decision in life for once. However, it was soon revealed that the game was Glass Stepping Stones and as he chose the number 1, he would be the first to go.

As such, the odds were completely against him, making his decision an extremely poor one with hindsight.

Fate[]

Trivia[]

Both him and his season 2 and 3 counterpart made it as far as the fifth game and died in it.

Funny enough, the deaths of both were related to Seong Gi-hun. Although this Player 096's death was an indirect and unintentional death.

If Player 096 had maintained his cowardly attitude, he would have most likely been a finalist.

He used to be often mistaken with Park Jung-bae. It is confirmed by director Hwang Dong-hyuk that he is actually Jung-bae's long-lost twin brother.

Given his haggard and tired expression before the Glass Bridge game it is possible he was very close to his Marbles team-mate Player 229.

Mistakes[]

In Red Light, Green Light, a different man is seen behind Player 250 wearing the 096 tracksuit.

Another Player 096 can be seen panicking in the chaos during Red Light, Green Light.

Player 101

Im Jeong-dae (임정대 Im Jeong-dae?), also known as Player 100, was a participant of the 37th Squid Game who was in extreme debt. He was one of the finalists of the competition.

He acted as the de facto leader of Team O, a faction of players that continually voted to keep playing, and came into constant conflict with Seong Gi-hun, who had entered the games in an attempt to end them.

Hey, 456. Tell me something. Was this part of your plan the whole time? Oh, that's it, isn't it? You get everyone to join your little rebellion so you could get rid of them all at once.

Im Jeong-dae mocking Seong Gi-hun's failed rebellion in Keys and Knives

Im Jeong-dae is an aggressive old man who constantly demands players to continue the games. He showcases immense greed, willing to convince others to continue playing for his own benefit. Furthermore, he is quick to judge others like he did with Seong Gi-hun (Player 456). In addition, he is shown to value money over human lives and even his own, as after the second game, he was disappointed that so many people had survived, reducing the share of the money available in the prize. He has shown to be unremorseful as shown when he betrayed Seon-nyeo in Hide and Seek upon finding the exit, taking one of the keys for himself to lock her in the maze. He is shown to be capable of rallying groups, getting half of the contestants to vote "O" on at least one occasion. However, when his life is truly threatened, he does beg for mercy or help, though he'll quickly revert back to his aggressive self once he is out of danger.

History

Backstory

Presumably a businessman of significant repute,[1] Im Jeong-dae took out a loan totaling ₩10 billion and was unable to convert it into profit, putting him in deep debt. With few options, he decided to participate in the Squid Games.

He was one of the many players to have their names and amounts of debt called out in front of players; as expected, this led to a plethora of reactions among the contestants, none positive. This caused him to erupt in front of the players to gloat about the fact he was able to pull off a ₩10 billion loan voicing his views on it as being something to brag about.

Squid Game

He played Red Light, Green Light as the first challenge. He took no notice of Seong Gi-hun warning of the consequences of getting eliminated until people started dying around him. All the players eventually followed Seong Gi-hun orders and formed multiple straight lines to avoid being caught by the motion-tracking system of Young-hee. The player in front of him, Player 237, got shot but he was able to survive the first challenge. When the surviving players went back to the lobby, Im Jeong-dae hid underneath the bed, he stayed in place until the prize money was shown for winning the first game. He can always be seen in the company of Kim Yeong-sam. During the voting, Seong Gi-hun tried to convince the players to vote "X" to stop playing and Im Jeong-dae started to question him because he kept shouting during the game, he even accuses the Pink Guards of putting Seong Gi-hun in the game to scare them, but Park Jung-bae tells the bitter old man to shut up and that thanks to Seong Gi-hun they managed to survive the game.

When Seong Gi-hun reveals he's been in the games before and Thanos suggests using his experience, Im Jeong-dae tries to convince everyone to have Seong Gi-hun help them win. He celebrated the continuation of the games with Player 240.

For the second game he partnered with Kim Yeong-sam, Player 023, Player 285 and Player 428. Im Jeong-dae was tasked on completing Jegi. His team completed the games and headed back to the dormitory. When Seong Gi-hun's team came back, he was disappointed that more people passed the second challenge making the prize money smaller. When the voting took place for the second time, he convinced players to join his side to continue the games. He got a crowd to chant "One more game".

During Mingle, he's shown during the 6 people limit, where Im Jeong-dae and Kim Yeong-sam push out Kang Dae-ho and his group out as they already had 6 players at their location. He survived the third game. When 2 people were required per door, he went to a door with his ally Kim Yeong-sam.

Once the third game was finished, a vote was held and the result was a tie. Im Jeong-dae and the players who voted to continue games sat with each other for the remainder of the day. When a fight took place at the bathroom, he wanted to know how many people died on his side and the other. Once they completed counting, they devised a plan to take out players who voted to leave. The lights of the dormitory went out and his side slowly crept up to their opponents. More players from "X"'s side were taken out. After the special game, he was seen him about to attack Player 359, but was stopped by the guards. The special game also was from Gi-hun's plan to start a riot and steal the Soldiers' guns.

After the events of the rebellion, during which Seong Gi-hun was handcuffed, Im Jeong-dae and his team laughed at him; suggesting that Seong Gi-hun's cries to be killed were all lies. As the fourth game began, Im Jeong-dae was assigned to the blue team, tasked with hiding and finding the exit using three keys. He was nearly pissed when he hears Kim Yeong-sam arguing with the guards about the game being unfair to the Red Team, in which the team Im Jeong-dae was in nearly had an advantage. He was nearly discovered by Nam-gyu, but had a clever plan, he smeared blood on his face to appear dead, successfully evading capture. Seon-nyeo intervened and helped him escape, but Im Jeong-dae decided to leave and lock Seon-nyeo behind, to be killed by Park Min-su.

He voted "O" for the fourth round of voting. In the fifth game, Jeong-dae was visibly nervous after being introduced to Jump Rope, but he eventually managed to make progress. He was seen clapping for Gi-hun when he managed to cross the bridge while carrying a baby. Player 096 blocked Im Jeong-dae from completing the challenge and threatened to push him off the rope. Im Jeong-dae tried to negotiate with Player 096, but it never worked. After 096's death, Im Jeong-dae advanced as one of the final players for the sixth game.

When eight players returned to the dormitory, the guard announced there were actually nine present. The group was confused, insisting there were only eight, until Jun-hee's child was counted as Player 222, bringing the total amount of Players to nine. This caused Lee Seung-won to be enraged, as he stated that the eight of them had to go through deadly games to advance, while a baby could just join in. The loss of 640 million won due to the baby's inclusion led everyone to attempt to kill the child, though their efforts ultimately failed.

The group then shared a dinner at the Squid Game dormitory, followed by the final vote ever. During bedtime, Im Jeong-dae was about to be stabbed by Gi-hun with the knife given to him by In-ho while he was sleeping, but survived due to Gi-hun's hallucination of Kang Sae-byeok telling him to not kill Jeong-dae, referencing Season 1.

Im Jeong-dae chose "O" one last time, determining his fate in the games. With the vote split 2-5 in favor of a larger team, he planned to eliminate the "X" players in the final game. The "O" team reached an agreement and advanced to the next stage, initially targeting Gi-hun before shifting their focus to Min-su for elimination. Afterwards, Lee Seung-won attempted to attack Gi-hun, but was overpowered. Gi-hun threatens Seung-won that if he doesn't surrender now, he will be pushed off. Just before Lee Seung-won could do anything, Lee Myung-gi immediately uses a metal rod to push the former off the platform, causing him to die. In the second round, the group tried to form another agreement to stop Gi-hun and the baby, but their plans failed, causing Kim Gi-min, and Kim Yun-tae to be killed off, leaving only five remaining players: 039, 100, 333, 456 and the baby. Lee Myung-gi and Seong Gi-hun immediately turn to Im Jeong-dae, who attempted to play the victim, by acting like he is on their side, pointing to a dead Kim Gi-min saying, "Well done guys! You did the right thing! That trash should've died a long time ago!". Unconvinced, Myung-gi and Gi-hun both walk up to Jeong-dae in defense.

Fate

What... what's up? Is it still too low? That's fine. Ten billion won, that's all I need! I'll give you the rest of it, okay? 1.4 billion! Then you can sh... sh... sh... share it between yourselves! It's all yours! Okay?

Jeong-dae offering to share the rest of his shares with Lee Myung-gi and Seong Gi-hun in " △ "

Im Jeong-dae finds himself cornered by both Lee Myung-gi and Seong Gi-hun. In a desperate attempt to save himself, Im Jeong-dae tries to convince the pair not to kill him, offering a series of excuses. He first urged them to finish off Player 039, who was already severely injured, hoping to buy himself more time. However, Myung-gi refused. Undeterred, Jeong-dae then promised that if Myung-gi and Gi-hun eliminate Player 039 and vote "X" to leave immediately, the three of them plus the baby would each earn 11.4 billion won. Jeong-dae even offered to give an additional 1.4 billion won for Myung-gi and Gi-hun to split between them. Myung-gi declined the offer, pointing out that if Im Jeong-dae dies, the prize money would rise to 15.2 billion won, with no need to share it with him. Myung-gi ultimately pushed him off a ledge using a metal rod and fell to his death from a great height.

Trivia

Im Jeong-dae is the only Hider seen using the exit in Hide and Seek, though Cho Hyun-ju and Seon-nyeo also had the opportunity to do so before willingly turning back or being locked out, respectively.

Im Jeong-dae is the only finalist to not have a confirmed act of direct physical murder, as everyone else was a Seeker in Hide and Seek, meaning that the other finalists (not counting the baby) all committed at least one murder.

He was counted 46th in the Team O headcount.

To pay off his debt, Im Jeong-dae would need to survive and be among the final four players left standing. He ultimately failed in this by finishing 5th overall in the game. His Season 1 counterpart would be Player 360 based on ranking.

His quote "One more game!" and the scene where he rallies his fellow O Team to vote for the game to continue had become a meme in the Squid Game community, with people even dubbed him as "Mr. One More Game".

He is the last player in the 10X range to be eliminated in the 37th squid game and in the South Korean Games as a whole.

Also the last X00, the last group range from 100 to 199 and the last elderly player to die.

Just like Player 453, he smashed his skull on the impact of his fall.

Behind the scenes

Im Jeong-dae was portrayed by Song Young-chang. He was credited as "백억남", which translates to "ten billion won man", and "negative millionaire" in some languages.

Player 102

Jang Deok-su (장덕수 Jang Deog-su?), also known as Player 101, was a participant in the 33rd Squid Game, as well as one of the few semifinalists in the competition.[2][3] Prior to his entry, he was a gangster running from gambling debts and the secondary antagonist of Season 1.

During the games, Deok-su formed a gang of players, which he was the leader of. He frequently clashed with Seong Gi-hun and members of his team, especially Kang Sae-byeok and Han Mi-nyeo.

Personality

Once the lights are out, sit quietly in a corner. Don't even breathe. If I hear you breathe... I'll come for you.

Deok-su warning Byeong-gi about the Special Game he will cause in Stick to the TeamDeok-su is a brutal and low-functioning sociopath who terrorizes and murders other players, taking delight in specifically targeting weaker contestants, regardless if it's to improve his odds or just out of pure rage. Deok-su's cruelty is so great that even contestants like Cho Sang-woo are shown to be absolutely disgusted by how vile he is. Even in instances where his teammates were horrified by their actions (after the Tug-Of-War game), Deok-su can be seen remorselessly laughing as he kills more players. Deok-su is even more evil than Oh Il-nam, the Front Man and the Masked Officer, who are controlling the games, as he lacks any redeeming qualities, is actually sadistic and eager to get his hands dirty.

Despite relying on his strength most of the time, Deok-su is also intelligent and capable of strategizing. He starts a riot to eliminate the competition as soon as he realizes that there is no punishment for killing other players in between games. This also shows he is an utilitarian, believing that the game will end earlier if he massacres most of the contestants, and also opportunistic too, since he use the flaws in the rules to his advantages. He keeps the members of his team close to him, including the doctor to give him information about the games, but is constantly doubtful about his allies as he is aware that any of them might betray him. During the Marble game, as he is about to lose to Player 278, he is the only player who recalls the rule of equality among the contestants, which was briefly mentioned earlier, and uses it to save his own life by asking the masked soldier to switch the game.

Deok-su show signs of an ungrateful individual, since he ditches Han Mi-nyeo in the Tug of War game over stronger men without a second thought, even though he only survived the Dalgona game thanks to her help and would have most likely died without it.

Deok-su is also a massive hypocrite, since despite having no loyalty to anyone, he gets really angry when someone betrays him, like brutally stabbing his henchman, mistreating Sae-byeok, and laughing at Player 278 after beating him (since Player 278 was not loyal to Deok-su). Another time is him demanding Player 151 to make Player 244 move when the latter stopped to pray, only to later stop and demand others to either moving in front of him or everyone would die when the time ran out.

Deok-su is shown to be a massive cheater, with instances like rallying his men to storm the game's facility to steal the prize money, to allying with Byeong-gi only for the information about the next game, and killing other players only to improve his odds of winning.

Deok-su shown numerous signs of a individual with no moral standard or empathy whatsoever, which is evidence by him being the only one to smirk after killing the adversary team in the Tug-of-War game and after finding out that Player 069 hanged himself, opposed to his allies being visibly shocked and distraught. He's also the only one to show no remorse after winning against Player 278, if not ecstatic about it, contradicting to everyone being saddened by their allies's death.

However, although pretending to be tough and dangerous, Deok-su is ultimately a coward who is afraid of death. He is also so egotistical that he'd rather die with the rest of the players than sacrifice himself for them. His cowardice and paranoia are shown multiple times, including when he intended to start another riot, but hesitated out of fear after Seong Gi-hun warned him of the possibility of his minions betraying and killing him.

History

2020

At some point in his life, Deok-su fell into bad standings with his criminal boss in Incheon and accumulates large gambling debts with loan sharks from the Philippines. He agrees to enter the Squid Game to escape those pursuing him and to win enough money to pay his debts. Following the vote to end the games after the first round, he plots to infiltrate the Games and steal the prize money, so he tries to assemble a crew outside, but his reputation is so badly damaged that he is unable to do so and therefore he has no other choice but to return to the games.[4]

After returning to the game, Deok-su forms and leads a gang with several other contestants, including Byeong-gi, Player 278, and Han Mi-nyeo. He repeatedly tries to assault Kang Sae-byeok, a contestant who once worked for him prior to the Squid Game, and at one point his gang starts a nighttime brawl that results in the deaths of several players.[5]

Deok-su initially includes Mi-nyeo in his gang after she helps him survive one of the rounds, and they have a brief sexual relationship, but he later expels her from the group and replaces her with physically stronger men after he learns from Byeong-gi that the next round is a game of Tug of War.[5]

For the fourth game, Marbles, Deok-su teams up with Player 278. Player 278 initially starts winning, but just as he's about to beat him, Deok-su demands to switch the game, which a guard approves. He ends up winning from a crazy stroke of luck, which causes Deok-su to blaringly cheer. Player 278, much to his despair, tries to escape, but runs into a dead end and gets gunned down as he curses at the guards.

Fate

Deok-su falling to his death

You goddamn bitch!

Deok-su's last words before being killed by Han Mi-nyeo in "VIPS"

Deok-su survives until the fifth game, Glass Stepping Stones, during which he refuses to progress when he is at the front of the line unless other players move ahead of him. Mi-nyeo, who had earlier vowed to kill Deok-su if he betrayed her, makes good on her word by grabbing Deok-su around the waist. Deok-su tries to pry her off of himself and begs her to let him go, but Mi-nyeo mocks him and pulls them both off the bridge in a murder-suicide, causing them to fall to their deaths.[6]

Behind the scenes

Jang Deok-su was portrayed by actor Heo Sung-tae. He serves as a major antagonist throughout the majority of season 1 and is the main antagonist amongst Seong Gi-hun's fellow Squid Game participants up until his death. His actor had to gain weight for the role of Deok-su.

Trivia

He was the highest placing player in the 33rd Squid Game whose number begins with 1.

Despite voting for X, Deok-su is the only X voter who doesn't celebrate the games ending.

He is the evilest X voter.

The only reason he voted X was to plan a rebellion by making his outside world gang gather weapons and forcing the guards to give up the location to the Squid Game, he was also had a plan to steal all the money in the piggy bank, but ultimately it all failed and never happened.

Jang Deok-su is one of the seven characters confirmed to be a smoker. The others are Seong Gi-hun, Park Jung-bae, Cho Sang-woo, Han Mi-nyeo, Thanos and The Masked Officer.

He has the highest kill count in the 33rd Squid Game, plus indirect kills.

He is the only Squid Game player seen also killing someone outside of Squid Game. This is seen in "Hell" where he kill gang member (his former subordinate) on Bridge at night.

He is the only shown player to laugh at his Marbles partner after passing the game.

It is confirmed by director Hwang that Deok-su wanted to be a rapper like Thanos but was forced to be a gangster by his father.

He is the only one of the main nine S1 player characters to never have his number announced.

He was possibly in affiliation with Player 202 from the 37th Squid Game as he is a gangster, and 202 also seems to be a gangster due to his tattoos.

History[]

Player 105 was in heavy debts, so he decided to enter the games to pay it off. He woke up in a room with 455 other players, he signed his contract and took his photo. After that, he was led to the first game, Red Light, Green Light. After passing the game, a vote was held and the majority voted to leave, after being sent back for a few weeks, he returned along with 186 others and was led to Sugar Honeycombs in which he also passed. Player 105 also survived in the Special Game that took place prior to Tug of War. While choosing for a team, Player 105 and 9 others formed Team 2.

Death[]

Player 105 was in Team 2, where they lost against Team 6 or Team 8, he fell to death with 9 of his teammates.

Trivia[]

His Red Light, Green Light actor also plays Player 060 in Tug of War.

His Tug of War actor also plays Player 057 in the photoshoot area.

History[]

No Sang-hun had a debt of ₩1,390,000,000 that he couldn't pay. The Recruiter offered him to play Ddakji to win money and gave him an invitation card to the Squid Games to win more money and pay off his debts, so Sang-hun decided to participate in the games as Player 119 and was picked up by a van during the night.

Sang-hun woke up in a huge dormitory with 455 other players and the Pink Guards arrived. The guards mentioned the debts of some players, among whom was Sang-hun, who was looking at his player number and he got surprised to see the video of him playing with the Recruiter. Sang-hun signed a contract and took his photo. During the first game, Red Light, Green Light, it was revealed that losing players would be killed, causing panic and the deaths of hundreds of players, but Sang-hun managed to follow the rules and was 1 of the 201 players who managed to win the game and survive.

Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants. He first called out the staff by questioning the types of games they play and type of elimination. After a few other players confronted the staff, he also add that the police will be looking for them since hundreds went missing. Thankfully, Cho Sang-woo remembered the third clause which allowed players to vote on the Squid Game's termination. During the voting process, No Sang-hun voted no, and was calling all the people who voted yes monsters. While the majority voted no and the games ended, those who were willing to return could, and he returned, along with most of the other players. Most likely due to his debt.

Fate[]

Such a young kid. How did you end up like this?

Sang-hun to a young manager before committing suicide in "The Man with the Umbrella"

In the second game, he was supposed to cut out the umbrella from his piece of Sugar Honeycombs, but he accidentally broke the dalgona. When a guard went to execute him, No Sang-hun attacked the guard by poking a needle in the guard's eye. Then, he stole the soldier's gun, grabbed a manager, shot him, and held him at gunpoint, threatening to shoot. He demands the guard to remove his mask, which he did. Immediately after, No Sang-hun kills himself by shooting himself in the head due to his disbelief that someone so young could commit such atrocities. The young manager is then shot by the Front Man, reminding that they will be killed if their identities are revealed.

Personality[]

You assholes! Fuck this! What kind of a sick game is this?! Why do some get an easy shape when others are stuck with difficult ones?! Don't come any closer, you assholes! I'll kill this bastard. I'll really kill him!

No Sang-hun asking the guards why the games were so brutal after failing Dalgona in "The Man With The Umbrella"

Sang-hun was a man who values his life over money and was willing to fight for what is morally right. When the bloody nature of the Squid Games was revealed, Sang-hun got dismayed to discover that the losing players would be killed, so he wanted to leave immediately, Sang-hun also scolded the players who wanted to continue with the sick games. Sang-hun was also a brave subject who was willing to save his own life by himself. In Sugar Honeycombs, Sang-hun confronted the Soldier who was going to kill him, took his Smith & Wesson Model 19 and took Manager 007 to confront the Pink Guards, Sang-hun got surprised to see that the Manager was a very young man and got shocked to see someone so young commit such atrocities, which made him feel so devastated that he committed suicide.

Manager 007

Forced him to remove his mask in order to reveal the true identity of the pink guards; shared kill with Hwang In-ho

Trivia[]

He is one of few named characters to have a unique family name, being 'No'.

He shares a surname with only one other character in the series: No Hyun-woo, who is the winner of the 1st Squid Game competition.

The gun that Sang-hun used to threaten Manager 007 was a Smith & Wesson Model 19, which is ironic since Sang-hun's player number is 119.

He is the first player to die by suicide.

He is also 1 of the 4 people to die from suicide in Season 1, the other 3 are Player 069, Han Mi-nyeo and Cho Sang-woo.

Sang-hun indirectly saved Hwang Jun-ho by causing the execution of the Manager who was supposed to meet him, preventing Jun-ho's identity as an infiltrator from being discovered.

After showing his contempt for the atrocious and sick nature of the Squid Games and having faced off against the Pink Guards. Fans believe that if Sang-hun had participated in the 37th Squid Game, it is very likely that he would have joined Seong Gi-hun and his team in the Rebellion.

In order for his debt to be paid off, Sang-hun would've needed to be among the last 17 players and survive Marbles.

He was the first player to rebel against the guards, excluding the ones who voted O in the voting round.

Though the source of his debt is unknown, given it is very high and he returned to the games despite being perhaps the player who hated them the most, it is possible it is related to medical care for a loved one similar to Gi-hun/Player 246 and Park Gyeong-seok/Player 246.

His Season 2 counterpart is Kwon Byeong-su (Player 047) since both players valued human life over financial gain, but also understandably having a quick temper with people who commit inhuman actions.

His BTS Actor also portrays Player 379 in Season 2.

He is the only known player to break his dalgona after carving it.

He and Player 296 of the second and third season are the only players to defend themselves after losing a game: they actually both did quite well with Sang-hun overpowering two guards, taking one of them hostage and stealing a gun while Player 296 very nearly killed VIP Richard [then disguised as one of the Pink Guards] and if he had, he could have taken a gun or even disguised himself as one of the guards and maybe escaped that way. Player 278 in the first season also tried to escape after losing the Marbles game but despite making some progress the guards still killed him too.

Mistakes[]

No Sang-hun's icon disappears too early during the distract in Sugar Honeycombs, but he last died in Sugar Honeycombs.

His icon shows as a different man with glasses who is portrayed by an unknown extra.

A female Player 119 can be seen in Red Light, Green Light.

When his corpse is seen when Hwang In-ho kills Manager 007, his player number appears to be mirrored backwards, though this could be to show that In-ho is left-handed.

History[]

Just like most of the other players, Player 119 was in significant debt. Because of this, she was approached by the Recruiter before playing at least one game of Ddakji with him, where he gave her a card with a number on it which she could call if she at the time would've wanted to compete in other children games such as Ddakji for an even larger cash reward. She listened to the instructions the man gave her, and called the number leading to her beng recruited into the Squid Games as a quick way to settle her financial problems. After waking up in the dormitory with 454 other strangers.

Before the beginning of Red Light, Green Light she was very close to Player 310, and were both shocked as they heard several players, including Im Jeong-dae's debt as the Manager was explaining the motives behind the games. After this, she signed the player consent form and headed to the game hall before she took her picture.

In Red Light, Green Light, Player 119 listened to Seong Gi-hun's warnings to the her and the other players before the game started, appearing confused. After the game started, she followed Gi-hun's orders of staying still. During the chaos, she ran away along with several other players, but luckily, she wasn't detected most likely because Young-hee's eyes were focused on tracking the motion of many other players during the panic, and she managed to stop in time. Later in the game, she was able to make it past all of the red lights and survived by crossing the red line before the time ran out. She stuck close with Player 310, with them being together at the finish line. After surviving the first game, she was one of the players who was begging for her life to the guards to let her and the other 364 players leave before looking at the Prize money. Afterwards in the voting, despite the dangerous circumstances of the game, she voted "O" to continue the games most likely due to her potentially high amount of debt.

During the second game, Player 119 wanders around with Player 310, and both are able to find their partners for the the Six-Legged Pentathlon; though, both were on different teams. She teamed up with Player 164, Player 179, Player 187, and Player 346. When Seon-nyeo shouts at Cho Hyun-ju and her teammates, Player 119 could be seen looking back at her dumbfounded with her team, then going back to talking with her partners. All of them managed to complete the minigames off-screen. In the voting, she voted to continue the games for a second time.

In the first round of Mingle she teamed up with Player 310, Player 116 and seven unknown players. In the second round she was separated whilst going back to the carousel, however she soon made her way over to Player 310, Player 131 and Player 116. Despite them having four players Player 131 left them for Player 042's group resulting in Player 116 dragging her and 310 to find another player. As he put his hand up another unknown player reached them and they ran to a room. In the third round of Mingle she was standing on the platform on the right of Player 310, when the number three was called she, 310 and 116 quickly teamed up and ran to a room. In the fourth round she is seen exiting room 42 with Player 405, Player 310, Player 344, Player 370 and Player 376. In the fifth round she was next to 116 and 310 on the carousel but went with Player 376 securing her survival in Mingle despite the difficulty and horror of the game. She voted to continue the games again later on in the voting after the game.

After the bathroom fight incident, the players on the opposing teams formed headcounts to see how many players died. Due to the "X" team having the advantage, the "O" members planned an attack to kill the "X" members during the night. During the night, or Lights Out, Player 119 hid along with Player 310 and chose not to attack like most of the members on the "O" team. Because of this, she was able to survive and is seen standing next to Player 310 while Gi-hun starts to form the rebellion.

During the re-vote, Player 119 remained voting "O" to stay in the alliance. In Hide and Seek, she drew a red ball meaning she was going to be a seeker. Player 394 tried to switch teams with her, but she refused and stayed on the red team.

Fate[]

Player 119 was not seen after the fourth game, implying she did not kill a hider in time and resulting her getting shot to death by a Soldier or one of the VIPs after the time limit was up. She placed between 33rd and 26th along with the other failed seekers who were killed off screen.

Trivia[]

She shares her player number with No Sang-hun, a supporting character in Season 1.

Her actress and Player 310's actress became friends during the filming of the season and are always seen together.

Even though she and Player 310 are seen wandering about arm in arm together in the Six-Legged Pentathlon looking for a team, they were not on the same team. The reason as to why is unknown.

She was seen running in the chaos, but later on seen running towards the finish line.

This could work in-universe however, considering that Young-hee's eyes may have been occupied on scanning different players.

During the time of filming in between Seasons 2 and 3 the hair of her ponytail changed styles.

She is the last player in the 11X range to be eliminated in the 37th squid game.

She, Player 080, Player 105, and Player 134 are the only season three players that go uncredited.

She may be the female player screaming at the end of Hide and Seek when Dae-ho opens the trapdoor for a second time, although the reason as to why is unknown.

She was counted first in the Team O headcount.

Mistakes[]

In one of the season 2 posters, Player 310's actress, Yu Ji-hye appears using the 119 tag.

She was seen running during the mass panic in Red Light, Green Light.

History[]

Player 120 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract and took his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue, and the majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned along with 186 other players, subsequently surviving Sugar Honeycombs, along with the Special Round that occurred between games.

Fate[]

Player 120 was shown with Team 7 who then lost to Team 1 in Tug of War.

Trivia[]

Player 120 has the same number as one of the main characters in Seasons 2 and 3.

Everything was fine before I told everyone who I really was. Sure, some people thought I was a bit strange, but I never had too many issues. But then... as soon as I said I was living as a woman now, and started my transition, everything was different. Mom was always crying. My dad cut off all contact. I was let go from my job. My friends stopped calling. And I still needed treatment and surgeries. But now I was out of work. My debt started to grow. I finally felt like myself, but life... life got a whole lot harder.

Player 119

Player 121

Cho Hyun-ju (조현주 Jo Hyeon-ju?), also known as Player 120, was a participant in the 37th Squid Game. She appeared prominently in Season 2 and Season 3.

Hyun-ju was a soldier in the Special Forces who ended up in debt after she began open living as a transgender woman. She joined the games so that she could win enough money to finish transitioning.

During the games, Hyun-ju formed alliances with several players, becoming a part of a team alongside Jang Geum-ja, Park Yong-sik, and Kim Young-mi during the second game. She eventually joined Seong Gi-hun's wider alliance and participated in a rebellion in an attempt to escape the games.

Personality

Listen. From the very second you asked to play together, I believed in you. I could feel you were very brave, Young-mi. Now I need you, to believe in yourself the same as I do. Can you do that?

Hyun-ju encouraging Young-mi to believe in herself. Hyun-ju has shown to be kind, caring and hospitable towards most players she has crossed paths with. She is loyal, brave and protective to towards the close friends she makes during the games. Examples include such as when she risked her own life to help a man with Gi-hun during Red Light, Green Light. As someone with a military infantry background, she is extremely disciplined and skilled in combat and isn't afraid to fight or threaten those who are threats to others she cares about or herself, like against Kim Yeong-sam and Player 202 in the Hide and Seek game, as well as in the failed rebellion she contributed to and participated in. Despite this, she appears to be shy and unconfident in herself, likely due to the fact her life took a downturn upon transitioning. Through her resilience, she seeks to break down stereotypes.

History

Early Life

Not much is spoken of Hyun-ju's early years and pre-transition, outside of how much support she got from her family and friends. Growing up, Hyun-ju often played games such as ddakji, which she was particularly good at. As an adult, Hyun-ju joined the army and rose through the ranks to become a staff sergeant. Though, Park Sung-hoon and Hwang Dong-hyuk have given a bit more information. She never really felt correct around others, and she thought that if she joined the army, it would help her step into a manly Cho Hyun-jun, but it didn't fix her problems, rather only excepting who she was, and becoming Cho Hyun-ju.

When Hyun-ju began her transition as a woman, she was abruptly fired from her job and ostracized by her family and friends. With no steady income or social support, Hyun-ju started going into debt. She continued her transition and began developing trust issues. At some point, she moved out to Gwangmyeong.

Excuse me. If we're just playing games here, then why'd you basically kidnap us? How can we trust you now?

Hyun-ju asking the guards before the start of the games With her debt standing at ₩330 million, Hyun-ju decided to participate in the Squid Games, with the ultimate goal of winning enough Prize money to move to Thailand and finish getting the surgeries which would complete her transition.

After waking up in the Squid Game dormitory, Hyun-ju is one of many players who raises questions the staff. Her name and debt amount are read aloud and footage of her playing Ddakji is shown to the assembled players.

Hyun-ju is seen as the photo booth prior to the first game. Not far away, she is judged by Jang Geum-ja who wonders about her choice of transition. During Gi-hun's warnings of the game's sadistic nature, Hyun-ju can be seen among the few listening to him rather than mock him. After the deaths of Kang Mi-na and Lee Eun-ju and the beginning of the scare, Hyun-ju appears shaken, but manages to keep it together, later on, she manages to pass the finish line. After Kim Nam-du gets shot in the leg, she went back to help Gi-hun in carrying him to safety; she then succeeds the first game. However, the given prize not being enough, and Hyun-ju votes to keep going.

Before Six-Legged Pentathlon begins, Hyun-ju is one of the few unable to find a team of five, with said teams either full or players judging her. While searching further, she encounters the nervous Kim Young-mi, who wants to team up with her. She accepts and soon is joined by Park Yong-sik, Jang Geum-ja, and Seon-nyeo. As the game begins, she is able to give Young-mi confidence, helping her pass ddakji by advising her to throw with the thicker side down.

Cho Hyun-ju threatens to kill Seon-nyeo before her gods do

During the Six Legs, Hyun-ju spends most of her watching time stopping Seon-nyeo from disturbing the others. As Seon-nyeo is unable to complete Paengi Chigi, she then has one of her religious-themed breakdowns. This causes Hyun-ju to snap, slapping Seon-nyeo hard twice - enough to make her nose bleed - and threatening to "kill her before her gods do". Seon-nyeo then succeeds in her game. Before Hyun-ju kicks the jegi, she reveals her shy personality and underlying gender dysphoria by requesting no one to look. They oblige, and she succeeds, causing the team to win the game.

If you give up now, I'll kill you before your damn gods can.

Hyun-ju encouraging Seon-nyeo to keep trying after failing Spinning Top Hey. What's going on? Is she sick?

Hyun-ju asking Geum-ja about Jun-hee in the bathroom. Cho Hyun-ju (right) with her teammates and new friends

Hyun-ju becomes an official team with Geum-ja, Yong-sik, and Young-mi, spending time with them after the game. They share details of their lives, although Hyun-ju is reluctant, and Young-mi begins referring to her as 'Unnie'. Geum-ja invites Young-mi and Hyun-ju to her and Yong-sik's house to eat, and despite initially not answering, Hyun-ju accepts. During the vote, Hyun-ju decides to keep going once more, causing friction between her and her team, especially Young-mi, who breaks down crying during the vote and emotionally begs the crowd to let her leave. This visibly moves Hyun-ju. After the vote, Geum-ja questions Hyun-ju about her decision. She then emotionally confesses her backstory and goals; before her transition, Hyun-ju was confident, well-surrounded, and a strong sergeant in the army, which she all lost upon transitioning, making her life more challenging, alongside accumulating debts. She then reveals her wish to gain enough money which will be enough to move to Thailand and live a new and comfortable life among the LGBTQ+ community. Young-mi calls her beautiful, causing Hyun-ju to become emotional, and Geum-ja is more accepting to her transition. Later on, during the night, she decides to accompany Kim Jun-hee and Geum-ja to the bathroom, where Geum-ja states she can, as she is also a woman, and she calls herself down in the mirror. Soon after, she helplessly watches a scared Jun-hee break down sobbing for fear of her and her baby's lives. Later in the morning, she joins her team for the next game, Mingle, and whilst walking there pulls Young-mi aside to apologize for voting "O". Young-mi happily forgives her and says they will escape after the next game.

During the first round of Mingle, Hyun-ju saves Seon-nyeo from death by taking her into a safe room, only to witness the latter's another religious breakdown. On the second round, she survives by joining her team and abandoning Seon-nyeo, who subsequently turns on her former teammates. She survives the third round off-screen after Park Gyeong-seok saves her and Young-mi. However, on the fourth round, despite finding a room for her team, Young-mi is tripped by another player. In an attempt to save her, Hyun-ju rushes outside with mere seconds left, but her life is saved when Lee Myung-gi enters with her. A scared Young-mi pleads Hyun-ju to open the door to no avail, and she witnesses her friend being shot dead in front of her. Devastated, Hyun-ju lashes out on Myung-gi, until the latter scolds the group that he saved their lives, with Jun-hee and Dae-ho reluctantly defending him. In the fifth and final round, a distraught Hyun-ju is able to survive due to the intervention of Gyeong-seok. Back in the dorms, Gyeong-seok joins her group, while Seon-nyeo threatens Hyun-ju, stating she will join Young-mi soon. During the vote, Hyun-ju changes her vote out of respect for Young-mi and decides to leave the games. She is later comforted by Geum-ja.

Cho Hyun-ju teaching the revolt group how to use the MP5 submachine gun

In the aftermath of the bathroom brawl, Gi-hun decides to launch a revolt against the staff in hopes of confronting the Front Man. Hyun-ju, being in the "X" Camp, agrees. During the dorm massacre, Hyun-ju does as told and hides behind a bed with Gyeong-seok until the lights come back on. Faking death, she pounces and picks off a weapon from a pink soldier which she uses to kill the other staff, showcasing her sharp military expertise. After teaching the other players how to use the weapons they took, she explains to a curious Gyeong-seok that she was in the special forces. She accompanies Gi-hun as they advance to find the Front Man, tasking everyone to gather the most ammunition possible, and she is able to destroy the cameras. As they begin the revolt, she becomes the leader and is able to easily kill most of the soldiers due to her immaculate accuracy. When the group approaches the Front Man's office, Hyun-ju and other members become stuck and begin to run out of ammo. After tasking Kang Dae-ho to return with ammunition, Hyun-ju returns to the dorm when he fails to come back to find him trembling. As she leaves, another group of pink guards intervene and immediately put an end to the rebellion. Hyun-ju prepares to shoot, but Geum-ja persuades her otherwise, to which she agrees.

Hyun-ju looks back at Gi-hun who falls into hard depression.

In Season 3, she saw guards bringing a coffin into the dormitory; after they laid down the coffin, Hyun-ju decided to check what's inside, only to receive a minor shock upon seeing Gi-hun inside. After realizing that he was still alive, she asked to put him in to bed to recover, in which Gi-hun later wakes up. Gi-hun asked as he looked around the dorm about the other rebels, to which Hyun-ju shakes her head, telling him they're all dead (except Gyeong-seok, although she had no way of knowing this), including Park Jung-bae. I'm sorry. I should've done more... to bring the ammo back to you.

Hyun-ju apologizing to Gi-hun for failing to bring the ammunition on time. Hyun-ju apologizes to Gi-hun for failing to bring back the extra ammo to him. She voted "X" once more during the re-vote, she was seen at the start when Player 448 unwillingly changed her vote to O she was seen looking down in disappointment at her cowardness. (with 41 Os to 18 Xs) The games were forced to continue. She then apologized to Gi-hun for not bringing back the magazines in time, but Yong-sik tells her it was Dae-ho's fault. For the fourth game, she drew a blue ball, putting her on the Blue Team for Hide and Seek. She decided to team up with Geum-ja and Jun-hee. Due to a stroke of luck, the three of them were holding all three differently shaped keys (a circle, triangle, and square, respectively), allowing them access towards any room. After Kim Yeong-sam found Hyun-ju with her allies, they were forced to flee for their lives. Jun-hee tripped and fell down the stairs whilst running away, badly injuring her ankle and allowing Yeong-sam to catch up to them. Hyun-ju defended Jun-hee and Geum-ja from Yeong-sam - who wanted her to step aside so he could kill either of the two behind Hyun-ju. After realizing that Hyun-ju was not going to budge, Yeong-sam attempted to attack Hyun-ju with his knife, but Hyun-ju swiftly disarmed him before killing him in defense.

After she found a room for them to hide, Hyun-ju assessed Jun-hee's injury, deciding that was most likely a fractured ankle. Moments later, Jun-hee's water broke and Geum-ja and Hyun-ju aided in giving birth to a baby girl. Soon after, Player 202 came in and - bewildered by the baby - spotted Hyun-ju's knife that she had taken from Yeong-sam. They then had a fight; Hyun-ju eventually managed to overpower and kill Player 202, though not before sustaining a wound to the leg in the process.

Fate

I found the exit. We can get out of here together. Come on, hurry.

Hyun-ju's final words before being stabbed in the back by Myung-gi in "The Starry Night"

Hyun-ju's corpse

Shortly afterwards, Hyun-ju found the exit which required all 3 different types of keys; after opening it to confirm that the door was an exit, she selflessly decided to bring the others with her (Jun-hee, her baby, and Geum-ja) instead of going through the door. She limped back to their room and excitedly reported finding an exit and that they should follow her, however before they could escape, Hyun-Ju was fatally stabbed in the back two times by Myung-gi, who, did not realise that it was her and that she was protecting Jun-hee, before she fell a tear ran down Hyun-ju's face possibly due to her not knowing who her killer was and possibly thinking they would go on to kill her two friends as well. This left Jun-hee and Geum-ja devastated at the loss of their dear friend. She placed 40th in the competition.

Legacy

Hyun-ju's murder permanently strains the relationship between Myung-gi and Jun-hee. In Jump Rope, Myung-gi (Jun-hee's ex-boyfriend and her baby's biological father) insists that he help her and says that he didn't mean to kill a friend of hers, but she angrily responds that she wants nothing to do with "scum" like him. Jun-hee states: 'That person saved me and the baby.'

Relationships

Park Gyeong-seok

The two of them don't interact until Mingle, in which Gyeong-seok saves Hyun-ju two times from being eliminated. In the third round both Hyun-ju and Kim Young-mi become safe when Gyeong-seok joins them in a room, while in the fifth and last round, when Hyun-ju was devastated about Young-mi's death and doesn't even try to find a partner, Gyeong-seok shows up and takes her hand to run into a room together.

They are later often seen beside each other, especially when the X Group members discuss and take decisions.

When the rebellion starts, they team up to take down the masked guards.

At one moment, Hyun-ju notices that Gyeong-seok doesn't know how to properly use a gun, so she steps forward and shows everyone how the weapon works. In this moment Gyeong-seok looks at her in amazement and astonishment.

Gyeong-seok then asks her out of curiosity where all her knowledge about weapons comes from, and Hyun-ju says to him that she used to be a Special Forces sergeant (by doing so she implies that she previously was a male, as this occupation couldn't be done by any female).

Gyeong-seok looks surprised, but, not wanting to sound judgmental, he smiles at her.

Their last interaction takes part during the final moments of the rebellion. Hyun-ju realizes that something happened to Dae-ho who didn't return to bring the ammos, so she decides to go back and check. Gyeong-seok thanks her and covers her from being shot by the guards.

Gyeong-seok is able to escape the island thanks to No-eul's help, but he doesn't mention anything about the games when he returns home.

Kim Young-mi

Young-mi is perhaps her closest ally. Both of them had been allies since the beginning of the second game. After the eliminations of teams one and two, Young-mi was clearly shaken. In the moment, Hyun-ju held Young-mi's hands and told her how brave she was. This caused her to gain the courage for the pentathlon.

During her minigame, while Seon-nyeo screamed at her, Hyun-ju gave her helpful advice that helped her pass her minigame.

Once the second game concluded, Young-mi refers to Hyun-ju as 'Unnie,' a Korean term for big sister, cementing their bond. After the second vote, Young-mi was clearly annoyed at Hyun-ju for continuing to vote O, but was silent. After Hyun-ju's heart to heart with her and her teammates, Young-mi stated Hyun-ju's beauty, showing that she clearly forgave her.

During Mingle, Hyun-ju and Young-mi remained together in all the rounds. It was in the forth round that tragedy struck, and Young-mi was left out of a room. In her final moments, she used them to cry out to Hyun-ju, with Hyun-ju trying to bang down the door. Her attempts were in vein, and Young-mi was killed. Hyun-ju is put into a fury of grief, and within the final round, she did not attempt to survive. She just stood, only surviving because of her other close friend, Gyeong-seok.

Although the games continued, Hyun-ju can clearly be seen in a state of mourning, only pulling it together in time for the revolt.

Jang Geum-ja

Geum-ja first spots Hyun-ju before they actually meet. Geum-ja appears confused and unconfutable about Hyun-ju being transgender, even when her son shuts her down. The two first officially interact with each other when forming teams for the pentathlon. The two team up, as nobody wanted either of them for what they were. When it was their turn, Hyun-ju and Geum-ja worked together, with Hyun-ju shutting Seon-nyeo up so Geum-ja could focus, and Geum-ja turning herself and her allies around so Hyun-ju could to jegi. With their team work, they and their friends managed to complete the game, rejoicing together.

When back in the dorms, they began to get to know each other better. Geum-ja asked questions to do with Hyun-ju's transition, though the questions she asked were quite inappropriate, causing her to be shut down by Yong-sik once more. After the second vote, Geum-ja grew disgruntled at Hyun-ju for voting O, but she held back most of her words. Hyun-ju went on to explain what she had gone through, and how people had treated her in the past. Geum-ja began to understand her decision, being a true moment of acceptance.

The two stuck together throughout Mingle, with Hyun-ju protecting her, as well as strategizing methods to ensure both of their safety. During the forth round, when Young-mi met her end, they were the two to show the most grief for her death, but they both managed to keep it together, passing the game.

After Seon-nyeo 'cursed' Hyun-ju and the others, Geum-ja was sure to remove it from them. After Hyun-ju voted in the third vote, Geum-ja walked over to comfort her, as Hyun-ju was still going through grief. As the revolt began, Hyun-ju looked back at her friends, with Geum-ja holding up a sign for luck. Near the end of the revolt, Hyun-ju planned to attack the guards that entered the dorms, but it was Geum-ja who stopped her, knowing she would die. As per her request, Hyun-ju stood down.

As the fourth game began, Hyun-ju made sure to take both Geum-ja and Jun-hee under her wing in order to keep them safe. She guided them through the maze, even killing Yeong-sam to protect them. Later on, when in the marine room, Hyun-ju assisted Jun-hee's birth when requested by Geum-ja, the two working together to help Jun-hee.

When Player 202 entered, Hyun-ju pounced to keep her friends safe once more. After defeating him, Hyun-ju had the opportunity to escape, but she decided to return to save her friends, although this would cause her demise. After Hyun-ju had died, Geum-ja held her, shutting her eyes in hopes she rested in peace.

Trivia

Hyun-ju may have gone through breast augmentation surgery, given comments made by Jang Geum-ja. However, it could also be a result of hormone replacement therapy.

She has shown to have much physical strength and endurance compared to the other characters, likely due to her past as a soldier.

Jang Geum-ja prayed for her passing at the end of her life.

She ranks as the second-strongest player in the 37th Squid Game, only inferior to Hwang In-ho boasts outstanding combat IQ and physical strength, having snatched a knife to kill Kim Yeong-sam and take down the equally powerful Player 202

Indirectly, Kang Dae-ho was the reason why she survived the Rebellion plan that ultimately failed (because they ran out of magazines) which resulted in the remaining members of the rebel team being killed (excluding Gi-hun).

Her player number is a factorial number. (5!)

She is the only transgender character in Squid Game.

According to Park Sung-hoon, Hyun-ju might've been a victim of the Jeonse deposit scam, just like Park Min-su, which would explain her debt being ₩330 million.[2]

Coincidentally, both their player numbers are in the range of the 120s.

In "One More Game" Hyun-ju reveals that she lives in Gwangmyeong.

Her death can be foreshadowed in Keys and Knives. When Nam-gyu points his knife at Myung-gi, the camera seems to be at an angle where it makes him look like he's pointing at Hyun-ju, showing how he would indirectly cause her death.

Hyun-ju, along with Player 015, Player 054, Min-su, & possibly Gyeong-su and Se-mi did not chant one more game despite voting O.

Cho Hyun-ju was the only woman to be apart of Gi-hun's Revolt.

Before season 3, Park Sung-hoon stated in an interview that her character's biggest regret was not taking a look behind her to see who was there after opening the door.

She shares similarities with Ali Abdul: both are kind, caring and selfless characters who are determined to save anyone, both helped Gi-hun in Red Light, Green Light, and both were killed by a main character in the fourth game.

According to Park Sung-hoon, Hyun-ju's former name was Cho Hyun-jun.[3]

The move that Hyun-ju used on Kim Yeong-sam is a classic judo throw called Seoi Nage (肩車 / Shoulder Throw).

Originally, Roh Jae-won was going to play Hyun-ju instead of Nam-gyu but the role was given to Park Sung-hoon so Roh Jae-won went with the role of Nam-gyu.

Hyun-ju killed two people (Yeong-sam and Player 202) in the game, but when adding 8 guards to the kill count, she killed 10 people overall, more than anyone other player in the series (excluding Seong Gi-hun and Hwang In-ho). Despite this, she is still one of the most kind hearted characters, killing the other seekers just to protect her friends and the other hiders.

She is also the only known blue team member in Hide-And-Seek to have killed red team members.

When Hyun-ju killed Kim Yeong-sam she also indirectly avenged any X player who Yeong-sam attacked or killed during the Special Game.

She outlived her 33rd Squid Games counterpart by one game.

While Hyun-ju herself got her name and debt displayed on the TV by the guards in 001, one of her victims, Kim Yeong-sam, and her killer, Lee Myung-gi, also get their names and debts revealed on the same TV.

Fans have also pointed out that unlike most of the characters when their debt is revealed on the screen, who are at a relatively populated locations like a city or most commonly a subway station, Hyun-ju is instead in what seems to be in the middle of nowhere. Some fans theorize that, since transgender people aren't that well accepted in South Korea, Hyun-ju was on an isolated place, either on a field or just in the middle of nowhere.

Hyun-ju is the first player to talk to the Guards in Season 2.

She is tied with Seong Gi-hun for the most amount of kills from players in Im Jeong-dae's team, with Hyun-ju killing Kim Yeong-sam and Player 202, and Gi-hun killing Player 096 and Kim Gi-min.

Hyun-ju's killing style seems to involve aiming for the chest, as she kills both Yeong-sam and 202 this way, as well as Choi Hyuk.

Among all the rebels, she has the highest O to X voting ratio, with half of her votes being O votes.

False leaks before Season 3 circulated claiming she helped Gi-hun break into the VIP room. She riskily hid a gun and entered the Hide and Seek game. Finally, she was discovered and shot in the head by Kang No-eul.

She is the only main character player in the 37th Squid Games to have her icon be seen facing out, but not have her elimination announced.

The same music occurs during both her death scene and Gi-hun's death scene.

Both Player 120's deaths are shown/announced.

She shares similarities with Ali Abdul: both are kind, caring and selfless characters who are determined to save anyone, both helped Gi-hun in Red Light, Green Light, and both were killed by a main character in the fourth game.

Something that makes Hyun-ju's death sadder is that she likely died thinking that the Seeker who ended her life would kill Jun-hee, Geum-ja, and the baby as well, which would have been the case if that Seeker were Nam-gyu. Fortunately, it was Myung-gi, and he hid them away from Nam-gyu, knowing that they would all die if he knew where they were.

Hyun-ju's death is foreshadowed by when Nam-gyu points his knife at Myung-gi, the camera is in an angle that make it look like he's pointing it at her, showing that his idea of killing more Hiders than necessary would lead to her death.

Like Kang Sae-byeok and Han Mi-nyeo in Season 1, Hyun-ju also tagged along with Geum-ja and Jun-hee to the bathroom at night.

Hyun-ju assisting Gi-hun in helping Kim Nam-du cross the finish line in the last few seconds of Red Light, Green Light was a callback to her season one counterpart, Ali.

Since Hyun-ju placed 39th in the competition, her 33rd Squid Game counterpart is Player 360's partner (likley either Player 089, Player 115, or Player 187).

She was possibly the only player who had to make her bed even though she knew she was going to die in the fourth game.

She is the last female player confirmed to have played Jegi for the pentathlon.

Additionally, one of her indirect victims was also a woman who played Jegi.

Her name's meaning follows the lines of 'beauty,' while her deadname is closer to 'handsome.'

Behind the scenes

Cho Hyun-ju is portrayed by Park Sung-hoon, who was cast due to the fact that there are few transgender actresses who are open about their gender identity. She was created to represent those who are marginalized in South Korea similar to Ali Abdul. More specifically, she was meant to bring light to what transgender individuals face within South Korea. While they are allowed access to gender affirming care, members of the military are discharged on the spot and finding work is difficult for them.

Park Sung-hoon was casted for Hyun-ju because the director Hwang Dong-hyuk saw Sung-hoon act in a short drama from 2021 called Hee-Soo. Although in the drama Sung-hoon played the role of a father, the reason of why the director picked specifically him to play a transgender character is unknown, since Sung-hoon hasn't asked the director.[4]

During filming, Park Sung-hoon was told by the director to shed a single tear when she died. He was able to do this, as he can cry on command.

Cho Hyun-ju is based off the real Sargent Byun Hui-su, the first Korean transgender soldier. Hyun-ju's dream of moving to Thailand may have been inspired by Byun, as she had her gender reassignment surgery there. The exploration of how Hyun-ju is discriminated against is also based off Hui-su, as she was discharged when she came out and started transitioning. Byun Hui-su tragically took her own life in 2021 at the age of 22 years old.

In the English dub, she was voiced by Nicky Endres, in the French dub she was voiced by Virginie Emane, and in the Latin-American Spanish dub she was voiced by Coco Máxima.

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

History

Background

Before the games, Nam-gyu worked as a club promoter at Club Pentagon, where he became acquainted with the rapper Thanos. He regularly brought him drugs and got him free drinks through his position at the club. He was an active drug user as well, having tried nearly every street drug he could obtain through the clubbing scene.

In 2024, Nam-gyu invested large amounts of money in a cryptocurrency called Dalmatian, on the advice of the YouTube channel MG Coin. Unfortunately, the currency turned out to be a scam, and Nam-gyu lost over ₩300 million when the rug was pulled. This led him to participate in the Squid Games, where he hoped to find a quick way to settle his financial problems.

Squid Games

Throughout the Games, he forms a relationship with Thanos. Thanos seeks revenge on Myung-gi (MG Coin), the crypto influencer whose greed caused him a huge financial loss. Together they plan to take down Myung-gi, whom they blame for their respective downfalls. Their alliance is not only based on a desire for vengeance but also on the desperation they both feel after losing everything in their lives.

Nam-gyu sitting with Thanos's Team after The Six-legged Pentathlon

Nam-gyu was among the players who passed through the first game successfully. In the second game, the Six-Legged Pentathlon, Thanos and he teamed up with Gyeong-su. Together, they proceeded to recruit Se-mi and Park Min-su to form their team for the Six-Legged Pentathlon, despite Nam-gyu's apprehensions about the latter due to his timid nature. Whilst waiting their turn, Nam-gyu takes some drugs, and insults Min-su for watching, Se-mi defends her friend leading to Nam-gyu insulting her 'attitude' and expressing annoyance at having her as an ally. Nam-gyu played Paengi and eventually, their team managed to pass the second challenge successfully.

At the Dormitory, Nam-gyu expressed his dismay at the high number of players who had survived. He then ordered Park Min-su to count the players who made it through. However, Se-mi interrupted, saying that the guards would soon arrive to announce the results. Irritated, Nam-gyu's tension with Se-mi began to rise, but Thanos intervened to defuse the situation. He shifted the conversation by asking about his team's respective ages. Gyeong-su was the youngest, while Se-mi was the eldest. Nam-gyu and Min-su were the same age. Thanos then demanded that Park Min-su stop taking orders from Nam-gyu and insisted that Nam-gyu refer to Se-mi as noona.

In the vote, despite Park Min-su wanting to end the game and previously voting "X", Nam-gyu works with Thanos and Gyeong-su to pressure him into changing his vote. Nam-gyu also votes "O", successfully continuing the games.

Later, in the bathroom, Nam-gyu and Thanos confronted Lee Myung-gi, accusing him of being a "traitor" for voting X and choosing to leave the game. They questioned how he planned to pay off their debts with how little the accumulated prize money were and pressured him to stay in the game. Lee Myung-gi, in turn, remarked about Thanos' forgetfulness and his incident at his concert, which greatly annoyed him. Before Thanos could retaliate, Seong Gi-hun's team entered the scene, notably Young-il and both teams ultimately decided to leave Lee Myung-gi alone for the time being.

In the third round 'Mingle', Nam-gyu survived the first round, but on the second the number is 'four'. Thanos physically kicks Gyeong-su away before fleeing to a room with Nam-gyu, Park Min-su and Se-mi following together. When Park Min-su asked what happened to Gyeong-su, Nam-gyu angrily insults him stating they will never be friends or equals. The next number is 'three', with Nam-gyu and Thanos proclaiming together that whoever wins rock paper scissors can join them, Se-mi instead tells Park Min-su to join her, but he betrays her and joins them. They survive the next round of 'six' then the final round is 'two' in which Nam-gyu and Thanos abandon Park Min-su and survive together by violently pushing out a pair who had already reached a room. Yo! Yo, "O" Gang! Hey! Listen! In the bathroom, all of a sudden the Xs started attacking us outta nowhere! We were just standing there. Those assholes went after us! They killed my friend, and a bunch of people on our side too. They're all dead!

Nam-gyu telling Team O after the Bathroom fight in "Friend or Foe" After the game is over, Thanos and Nam-gyu discover Park Min-su survived, and they hug him, expressing pride in his betrayal of Se-mi, despite her survival. Nam-gyu notices Lee Myung-gi and Kim Jun-hee talking, and deduces they are likely a couple, after watching Kim Jun-hee further he also suspects she is pregnant. Nam-gyu again attempts to pressure Min-su into voting "O". When Se-mi switches her vote to "X", Nam-gyu insults her, and she gives him the middle finger upon noticing his continued abuse of Park Min-su. Park Min-su switches his vote to "X", infuriating him. When the vote ends in a tie, Nam-gyu and Thanos follow Park Min-su to the bathroom, and Nam-gyu scales the stall to physically force Park Min-su into changing his vote. Lee Myung-gi sees this and attempts to stop them, leading to the bathroom splitting into "X" and "O", after Nam-gyu brings up Kim Jun-hee, the confrontation turns violent. Lee Myung-gi kills Thanos with a fork, the same fork which Nam-gyu then uses to murder several other players. After Nam-gyu stabs 331, 067 rips off a urinal divider and picks it up. He shatters the divider on Nam-gyu's back, and 2-3 more Urinal divider sounds are heard off-screen. If the bathroom fight had gone on any longer, 067 would have nearly killed Nam-gyu.

During the Special Game Nam-gyu faces Se-mi (Player 380), and attempts to kill her with the fork. Park Min-su attempts to help her by throwing down a glass bottle from above, but she misses Nam-gyu, and despite Se-mi's retaliation with the glass shards, Nam-gyu brutally kills her.

Throughout the season, Nam-gyu's relationship with Thanos and his hatred for Myung-gi continue to shape his decisions, but by the end of the season, Nam-gyu is one of the few survivors of the game. The alliance between the two characters disintegrates when Thanos dies in "O X", leaving Nam-gyu alone in his struggle for survival.

You can do it, my bro, Min-su. Min-su!

Nam-gyu to Park Min-su, while imitating Thanos's voice in "Keys and Knives"

Before Hide and Seek, Nam-gyu takes some pills, gives Thanos's drug necklace to Park Min-su for him to try one, and vents out his anger of Thanos, even impersonating his accent. Then he walks up to his former enemy, Lee Myung-gi (who just switched sides with Jun-hee) and asks if they could form an alliance. He agrees, but doesn't take the drugs.

During the game, the two of them go on a rampage. After Lee Myung-gi makes the suggestion to stab the player together so that both of them benefit, they go on a rampage, killing Players 235 and 411, passing the game. When Seon-nyeo betrayed her group and left them out to die to the red players, Nam-gyu stabbed Park Mi-hwa. When Myung-gi kills Hyun-ju and realizes her connection to Jun-hee, Nam-gyu asks him if he saw anyone in that room. Lee Myung-gi denies it.

After completing Hide and Seek, Nam-gyu realized that the drug necklace was missing and desperately tried to go back to retrieve it but was stopped by the soldiers. He lost the will to continue and voted X in the resulting vote, then looked in anger as Min-su deliberately voted O to spite him.

Fate

Nam-gyu's corpse.

I'm sorry, dude! Please, I mean it. I'm sorry for everything! I can't do this without that shit!

Nam-gyu pleading to Min-su to give him back the drugs. in "It's Not Your Fault"

In Jump Rope, he crumbled in anxiety upon seeing how high he is above the pit at the bottom. When Min-su confronted him and revealed that he took the necklace, he tries to snatch it back and cowardly apologized for his actions, only for Min-su to throw the necklace onto the Jump Rope platform, forcing him to be the first player to attempt the game. As he nervously crossed the platform while jumping over the rope, he retrieved his necklace and opened it to take the drugs, only to find out it's empty since Park Min-su took the last one. Nam-gyu realized that Min-su had deceived him, Nam-gyu got shocked and the rope hit him, falling to his death and making him pay for being an imbecile with Min-su and killing Se-mi. His body was presumably incinerated after Jump Rope, he placed 24th in the competition.

Legacy

Nam-gyu makes a posthumous appearance in the episode " △ ", alongside Thanos, as a hallucination experienced by Park Min-su during the Sky Squid Game.

Personality

After all the free drinks I give him at the club, that fucking asshole kept walking all over me, and calling me Nam-su, fucking dickhead. "Hey Nam-su." It's Nam-gyu, Nam-su, Nam-gyu, dude Nam-gyu, Nam-gyu, Nam-gyu, Nam-gyu, Nam-gyu! I fucking told him till blood gushed from his ears, asshole.

Nam-gyu in Hide and Seek to Lee Myung-gi how he was used to be called and bullied by Thanos

Nam-gyu is shown to be a more violent, cruel and sadistic person, more than even Thanos is. While Thanos treats his teammates with respect and is even upset by Gyeong-su's death. Nam-gyu shared even more traits among other O voters especially greed. He openly showed his disappointment that in Six-Legged Pentathlon that not enough players died. Even after Mingle where the prize money was enough to pay his debt, Nam-gyu still voted O just so more players will die and he will get more money becoming overconfident. Nam-gyu is indifferent and uncaring towards the lives of other contestants showing no remorse for anyone who dies, other than Thanos. Like many Os this includes his team members, Nam-gyu bullies both Se-mi and Park Min-su frequently, to the point where even Thanos calls him out for it. His hatred for Se-mi is to the point where he brutally murders her even enjoying it. He even admitted that he was deliberately looking for Min-su to kill as well but couldn't find him.

While not nearly as unhinged as Thanos, Nam-gyu is still somewhat mentally disturbed. Unlike Thanos, he doesn't care about using other people to his advantage and sees them as disposable. He also shares Thanos' vengeful nature, and sees any comrade who opposes him as a traitor. He can also act very rudely towards others people and displays crude and inappropriate behaviour. The extent of Nam-gyu's psychopathic nature is shown in Hide and Seek where he gleefully accepted his role as a Seeker showing excitement during the game. He showed himself to be a complete sadist relishing when he killed several players just to increase the prize money. He enjoyed watching the other players die and life fade from their eyes in front of him, he also smartly pointed out by killing additional hiders they were also killing seekers showing Nam-gyu could be observant as he also noticed Jun-hee was pregnant.

He feels some resentment towards Thanos' treatment of him so it's questionable how genuine their friendship was. Feeling as though he was inferior to him. Following his death, as a way to try to hide his grief, he curses Thanos for believing he was an idiot, and takes his cross necklace, he surprisingly praised his former enemy Myung-gi for killing Thanos, taking Thanos' place as the main spokesperson of the group. In line with his reckless behaviour, Nam-gyu states that he believes an individual can escape the fear of death by telling themselves they don't care about whether they live or die.

However, he also appeared to be a coward as he heavily relied on taking the pills to suppress his fears in the games. After he asked the guards where he left his necklace in Hide and Seek and asked to retrieve it, this causes him to surprisingly vote X for the only time and begged Park Min-su after knowing he took the drug necklace. As he depended so much on them yet only for him to throw the cross at the Jump Rope platform. This caused his addiction to get the better of him as when he retrieved the necklace he was more focused on the necklace being empty rather than focusing on the rope. Albeit his cowardice, Nam-gyu is shown to have extreme anxiety, shown through his shaking hands and ability to rely on the pills to gain confidence. More evident showings of his anxiety is his trembling nature whenever his reliance is challenged.

Nam-gyu also seems to be very manipulative, changing his personality and tone of voice simply so that Min-su feels some empathy for him, but after seeing Min-su walk away with the drugs in his hand, his first instinct is to run and try to take them from him without even asking. He even begs both Min-su and the soldier when explaining that he needs the drugs, using a more melancholic voice before abruptly switching to an aggressive demeanor.

Trivia

Nam-gyu's scream as he falls to his death is identical to Player 244's from the 33rd Squid Game.

During the rebellion, in the scene of a shootout with security in the players area, Nam-gyu is not visible among the players.

Nam-gyu is touchy with other players, particularly Thanos and people he's familiar with.

This became his disadvantage, as Park Min-su (one of Nam-gyu's closest allies) was uncomfortable being around him, as well witnessing his friend's death. But without the cross, Park Min-su finally got his revenge on Nam-gyu for his false touchy-feely act.

Nam-gyu didn't want to continue the games after losing Thanos' pills, another insight on his drug addiction and anxiety. This could also be because he had previously said to Min-su "We'll play one more game, get that 1 billion then get the fuck out of here" making him one of the few members of Team O to keep his word.

Nam-gyu's vote in Round 5 was therefore an unexpected revelation to the viewers.

However, in the first round of voting, he wasn't on his drugs and didn't know about it before. Yet, he still voted O this was likely his greed motivating him.

At one point during The Starry Night Nam-gyu started singing a real-life song "Love Scenario" (사랑을 했다 Sarang-eul haetda?), by the South Korean boy band group iKon.[4]

A club similarly-named to Club Pentagon, "Club Octagon", exists in Seoul.

Thanos had predicted his death in episode 4 of season 2 of Squid Game. Thanos says that the pills are "fucking crazy" as they are really strong and that if a person takes the pill they will go into severe withdrawal and Nam-gyu was so addicted to the pills in the cross that, he crossed the bridge only to learn that Park Min-su had taken the last pill and this caused Nam-gyu to die in the fifth game.

When Nam-gyu gets nervous, his legs shake a lot, this was seen in both the Six-Legged Pentathlon and Jump Rope.

In the BTS of Six-Legged Pentathlon, when Nam-gyu fails in Paengi, Se-mi insults him, being in part a small revenge for insulting Park Min-su but also showing us that the relationship between them would end badly.[5]

It's also unknown if he completed Paengi on his first try. The BTS footage shows him failing and then succeeding, but the Six-Legged Pentathlon Montage shows him completing it on his first try. Ironically, the clip used for Nam-gyu throwing the Paengi is the one where he fails, but it gets cut to the one where he succeeds.

Nam-gyu shows up physically in the most episodes of any Team Thanos member, appearing in every episode from "001" to " △ ".

Like Player 096 in Season 1, he was the first eliminated player in Jump Rope.

As an O player, he took the longest to change his vote to X.

Nam-gyu's debt was over ₩300 million meaning his debt was covered after Mingle. After Hide and Seek the prize money covered his debt almost six times over. In exact maths terms his debt was covered once there were only 114 players alive.

He was one of 5 O players to cast the vote that gave the team the majority in voting, the other 4 being In-ho in the 1st, Player 426 in the 2nd, Kim Yun-tae in the 4th, and Im Jeong-dae in the 5th.

According to namuwiki his surname is Kim but this cannot be 100% confirmed[6].

During Season 2, Episode 3, when the players are shown taking their photos, all the displayed players have the same pose in both the scene and their icons. Nam-gyu, however, is the only one with a different pose: while he is shown taking the photo with his head raised, in his icon he looks at the camera in a threatening manner.

Nam-gyu has a total of 7 tattoos on both arms.

He is the only player in Jump Rope who didn't watch Gi-hun jump with the baby.

The actors of the two players Nam-gyu killed along with Lee Myung-gi appeared in Season 1 of All of Us Are Dead, a show which Roh Jae-won is set to star in for Season 2.

He was originally planned to portray Hyun-ju.

Nam-gyu is shown to have below-average fighting skills as he was overpowered by Player 331 in the bathroom fight, Se-mi in Special Game, and Player 235 in Keys and Knives despite having a knife and the element of surprise. This is a sign that Nam-gyu is a wojak.

Nam-gyu, along with Player 296, No Sang-hun and Byeong-gi, are the only known participants who attacked a guard without having participated in the Rebellion; besides the three, he is the only one who managed to come out alive from this interaction.

During mingle round 2 he is shown to very briefly hesitate when Thanos decides to exclude Gyeong su from the group, briefly hopping up and down on his feet. However he then runs away leaving Gyeong su anyway.

He was counted 23rd in the Team O headcount.

He was also at the center of the rows.

He is Lee Sang-jin's favorite character.

Considering Namgyu's horrible fighting skills and also because he needed people to help him, he most likely would've lost and died in every fight he was in if he didn't have luck or anyone to help him.

Since Nam-gyu placed 24th in the competition, his 33rd Squid Game counterpart is Player 028.

During the Special Game, when Nam-gyu is next to Kim Yeong-sam, it can be seen that Yeong-sam is all covered in red in the thermal scan, which means he is under stress or extremely nervous, while Nam-gyu is purely covered in green, meaning that he's extremely relaxed. This is due to the drugs he took earlier.

The position of his corpse is similar to the recovery position, a position used for people who have taken too much alcohol, or drugs.

Behind the scenes

Nam-gyu was portrayed by Roh Jae-won, who also played Ha Sang-min in A Killer Paradox, Oh Min-u's investigator in Season 2 of D.P., Gu Dae-hong in Doubt, Kim Seo-wan in Daily Dose of Sunshine, Han-soo in Uncle Samsik, Kim Yu-jin in Can This Love Be Translated, and his upcoming role as Han Du-seok in Season 2 of All Of Us Are Dead, etc.. In the English dub, he is voiced by Kevin Matsumoto, and French dub he is voiced by Sébastien Baulain.

History[]

Player 125 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, she signed a contract and took her photo.

Later, everyone was taken to an open area with a creepy robot doll at the front. It was revealed that the game was Red Light, Green Light. When the doll turned around, everyone ran forward, with Player 250 and Player 324 ahead of everyone, but Player 324 wasn't able to stop in time before the doll turned around, causing him to be eliminated. Player 324 then slumped over.

Player 250, thinking Player 324 was putting up an act, ran to him and asked him to stop faking, until he noticed blood gushing from Player 324's head, causing him to recoil and try to run away, but the doll, who was still looking, detected him and shot him, splattering his blood all over Player 306, causing her to scream and be shot, causing everyone to panic.

Fate[]

After witnessing the deaths of three players, a panic spread and she was one of the people to panic, running for the exit, she was shot by a Sniper.

Trivia[]

She has the same player number as one of the main characters from Season 2 and 3.

Additionally, to this, her erroneous icon displays a man similar to the appearance of her counterpart.

Nam-gyu(Player 124)

Player 126

Park Min-su (박민수 Bag Min-su?) also known as Player 125, was a timid and nervous young man who became a participant in the 37th Squid Game. He eventually became one of the finalists of the competition.

After being recruited into the Thanos Team, Min-su formed a bond with his teammate Se-mi, who often defended him against the other team members. Following her death at the hands of Nam-gyu, Min-su was left devastated and guilt-ridden for failing to save her.

Personality[]

Min-su was timid, insecure and used to do what others told him. His cowardly nature made him unwilling to challenge anyone who seemed threatening, but he also felt attachment to people who were good to him and wanted to help them. Due to this attachment, he was shown to be very dependent on said people, often staying by them for safety.

When Min-su teamed up with Se-mi, he became very close to her and decided to listen to her when she told him what to do and what not to do. When Thanos kicked Gyeong-su out of the team, Min-su worried about him and upon arriving at a room, Min-su asked Nam-gyu about Gyeong-su. Min-su got also easily scared by the sight of the pools of the blood of the eliminated players, which made that Thanos have to make him react. Min-su's worst actions were usually caused by fear and stress, which prevented him from thinking clearly, like when Se-mi told him to go together and Min-su left with Thanos and Nam-gyu, leaving Se-mi alone. Upon seeing that Se-mi managed to survive, Min-su felt both relieved and guilty for leaving her alone.

Despite being a coward, Min-su was capable of being brave, like when he decided to vote for X in the third voting to protect himself from Thanos and Nam-gyu, who were pressuring him to vote for O. When Thanos and Nam-gyu threatened him to join them in the next voting and Lee Myung-gi protected him along with Team X, Min-su hid among the team and he fled to the Dormitory when a fight started. Min-su also showed fear and possibly guilt upon hearing that people died in the fight. After the riot he was noticeably one of the X voters who stuck with their vote instead of switching to O unwillingly in fear showing Min-Su was not a complete coward.

When a riot broke out, Min-su grabbed a bottle to protect himself and he hid. Seeing Se-mi being attacked by Nam-gyu, Min-su threw the bottle to help her and he froze in fear while Nam-gyu killed her. After the riot ended, Min-su cried over Se-mi's death and he felt guilty for being too cowardly to save his only friend in the games.

Min-su felt completely resentful towards Nam-gyu for killing Se-mi and he got annoyed by his teasing against him and Se-mi. This shows that despite his cowardice, he still wasn't tolerant of Nam-gyu's behaviour, showing that he has a reasonable moral compass. In Hide and Seek, Min-su found Thanos' drug necklace, which Nam-gyu dropped and remembering his teasing, Min-su decided to take a drug to gain the courage he needed to beat the game and make Nam-gyu pay, which allowed Min-su to kill Seon-nyeo when she mocked him and Se-mi's death. Due to being on said drugs, his anger was more prominent and active of his decisions, making him mildly impulsive.

Min-su also proved to be cunning, since in Jump Rope, Min-su tricked Nam-gyu by using Thanos' necklace, which Nam-gyu was desperately seeking, Min-su threw the necklace onto the bridge, which forced Nam-gyu to go for it and when he discovered that the necklace was empty, Nam-gyu realized that Min-su tricked him and he fell to his death, making him pay for everything that he did, to which Min-su is visibly satisfied. During the game, Min-su was shown to be more confident than before, showing fearless and almost giddy behaviour due to the drugs.

In Sky Squid Game, Min-su had a hallucination with Se-mi in which she told him to come with her and Min-su agreed to do so before falling to his death, allowing him to rest in peace after avenging his friend. This showed that Min-su was still haunted by his guilt of Se-mi's death, wanting to believe that she wasn't upset with him.

History[]

Backstory[]

Min-su was a victim of the Jeonse deposit rental scam, leading to immense amounts of debt he could not sustain. At some point in 2024, The Recruiter approached him and invited him to join the Squid Games to win money and pay off his debts, so Min-su decided to participate in the 37th Squid Game as Player 125. On the night of October 31, 2024, Min-su was picked up by a van and taken to The Island where the games were being held.

"001"[]

Min-su woke up in the Dormitory along with the other Players, he signed a consent form, took his player photo and was taken to the hall of the first game. The first game was Red Light, Green Light and Min-su managed to stay still along with the most of the players when it was revealed that those who lost would be killed, Min-su followed the instructions of Seong Gi-hun (Player 456 and winner of the 33rd Squid Game) and was 1 of the 365 who managed to win the first game. Upon returning to the dormitory, a Voting was held to decide whether to continue or end the game. Min-su voted for "X" to end the games, divide the money among everyone and leave, but the vote ended 182-183 by Hwang In-ho (Player 001; who was the Front Man of the Squid Games and entered the games as "Oh Young-il") and the games continued.

"Six Legs"[]

During the second game, Six-Legged Pentathlon, Se-mi (Player 380) approached Min-su to team up. Se-mi asked Min-su what his name was and why he was in the games. Then Choi Su-bong / Thanos (Player 230), Nam-gyu (Player 124) and Gyeong-su (Player 256) arrived and Thanos started talking to Se-mi, Thanos told Se-mi to join his team (Team 56) since she was attractive. Nam-gyu didn't want to have a woman on the team, but Thanos made him shut up and told Se-mi that she would be safe with him. Se-mi considered the offer after discovering that Thanos was a famous rapper, but she mentioned that she was talking to Min-su about joining her, to which Thanos said that it was no problem, that Min-su could join and he asked who he was. Se-mi stepped aside and introduced them to Min-su. Thanos asked Min-su his name and Min-su introduced himself, Nam-gyu thought that Min-su looked like an idiot, but Thanos made him shut up and welcomed Min-su to the team.

After the deaths of Teams 1 and 2, Min-su noticed that Nam-gyu was taking a drug and Nam-gyu asked if there was a problem, to which Min-su said nothing. Nam-gyu asked Min-su to tell him his name again, so Min-su repeated it and Nam-gyu told him, Se-mi and Gyeong-su not to be cowards, that way they can survive, win the money and get out of there. Se-mi told him to worry about himself and that he was a prick who needed to get high so he wouldn't get scared, which annoyed Nam-gyu.

"One More Game"[]

Min-su chose to play Gonggi and accidentally made a mistake, which angered Nam-gyu, but fortunately, Min-su managed to complete the minigame eventually and the team managed to win the second game. Back in the Dormitory, Nam-gyu begins insulting the other surviving groups and asks Min-su to count them. Min-su reluctantly agrees but is stopped by Se-mi, she candidly insults Nam-gyu, pointing out the Guards will soon tell them how many died. Thanos stops the argument by talking to Min-su and pointing out both he and Nam-gyu born in 1997 and were 27 years old, so he does not have to follow his orders. When voting begins, Min-su is pressured by his team, apart from Se-mi, into voting "O".

Once voting has ended and "O" wins, Min-su approaches Se-mi and refers to her as "Noona", asking why she chose to vote "O". Then she reveals that she fears the outside world more and she tells him not to call her "Noona" since she was born in 1998 and Min-su in 1997, but asks him not to tell the rest of the team.

The next morning, Min-su sees Thanos and Nam-gyu taking drugs, Se-mi arrives and tells Min-su not to even think about taking a drug, because once you take it, you never go back to normal again. Min-su nods and Se-mi tells him that if he can get out of there, never to get involved with those assholes again. Min-su asks her why she wanted to be with Thanos and Nam-gyu, to which Se-mi tells him that because people like them are easier to deal with, then Min-su asks her what about him and why she wanted to team up with him, to which Se-mi tells him that she thought that he wouldn't deceive her. Se-mi adds that she will leave when the Prize money reaches ₩200,000,000 and suggests Min-su think about if he wants to leave, since she doesn't think that he will last long in that place.

"O X"[]

In the third game, Mingle, Min-su survives the first round of groups of 10, by staying with Thanos, Nam-gyu, Se-mi and Gyeong-su. In the second round the number is 4, Thanos thinks about which members of his team to take and Gyeong-su tries to beg for his life, but then, Thanos kicks Gyeong-su to kick him out of the team and yells the team to run. Thanos and Nam-gyu run toward the rooms while Min-su worries about Gyeong-su, but Se-mi sees that they have to leave quickly or they'll die, so she grabs Min-su by his arm, takes him with her and they run after Thanos and Nam-gyu. Thanos' team makes it to Room 41 and closes the door.

When time runs out, Min-su asks Nam-gyu about Gyeong-su, to which he angrily hits Min-su and says "Talk to me like I'm your friend again and I'll leave you out there next time.". Then Thanos (after his drug wears off) asks the team where Gyeong-su is, suddenly shots start to be heard and Thanos realizes that Gyeong-su stayed outside. Thanos pushes Nam-gyu away, looks through the peephole and screams in horror; regretting leaving Gyeong-su alone. Gyeong-su is shot in the chest and is eliminated. Stepping outside, Min-su is frozen and shocked by the pools of blood, but Thanos brings him back to reality by telling him to come with the team.

In the third round the number is 3, Nam-gyu asks Thanos if he would choose Min-su or Se-mi and Thanos tells them to play Rock paper scissors to choose who comes with them, Se-mi tells Min-su to come with her and extends her hand, but Min-su panics due to the pressure of the moment and extends 2 fingers; making it look like scissors against paper. Thanos and Nam-gyu tell Min-su that he won and take him with them, leaving Se-mi alone while she and Min-su are shocked by what happened. Min-su, Thanos and Nam-gyu leave Room 35, Min-su sees that Se-mi survived by joining Players 400 and 418 and entering Room 31, they both look at each other. Se-mi walks away and Min-su feels guilty for leaving her alone.

In the fourth round the number is 6 and Min-su manages to survive alongside Thanos and Nam-gyu. In the fifth and final round the number is 2, Thanos grabs Nam-gyu and Min-su is left alone, but fortunately, Min-su joins Player 015 and they manage to get to a room in time.

Upon returning to the Dormitory, Thanos is glad that Min-su is still alive, hugs him and tells him that he was worried about him, Nam-gyu mentions when Min-su beat Se-mi in rock, paper, scissors and they tell him to play one more game, but Min-su is distracted thinking about Se-mi. Then the Pink Guards arrive, announce that there are 100 Players left and the third vote begins, Se-mi decides to join to the side of Gi-hun and votes for "X"; which angers Thanos and Nam-gyu. Thanos tells Min-su that he wants to play just one more game and Nam-gyu assures him that he convinced Min-su to play one more game and leave that place. Min-su's turn comes and Nam-gyu pressures him to vote for "O" (allegedly for the final time but Nam-gyu previously stated the third game would be the last they stayed for and has now proved he lied about that) while Se-mi sees what Nam-gyu is doing and she shows that idiot the middle finger. Min-su's fear makes it difficult for him to choose, but he finally decides to do what Se-mi told him, he joins Gi-hun's side and votes for "X". Nam-gyu gets shocked to see Min-su protecting himself from them and he votes for "O" while Se-mi is happy that Min-su stood up for himself.

Min-su goes to the bathroom to hide from Thanos and Nam-gyu, but they find him and try to intimidate him into voting with them. Fortunately, Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) arrives and defends Min-su. Myung-gi asks Team X for help and warns them that Thanos and Nam-gyu threaten Min-su to join them, Thanos asks Team O for help and declares that Team X wants to attack them. Then Min-su leaves the cubicle and hides among the Team X, Thanos tells him to come, but Myung-gi gets in the way to protect Min-su. Afterwards, Thanos and Nam-gyu mock Kim Jun-hee (Player 222) which makes Myung-gi furious and ignite a fight between Team O and Team X, giving Min-su the chance to escape to the dorm. During the fight, Thanos tries to kill Myung-gi but Myung-gi stabs him with a fork in the chin and neck, which causes Thanos to bleed to death, freeing Min-su, Myung-gi and Jun-hee from Thanos forever.

"Friend or Foe"[]

In the dorm, Min-su hides between the bunk beds and it's announced that the fight claimed the lives of 5 players, making it 95 players left and the prize increases to ₩36,100,000,000 (making it ₩380,000,000 for each player), the survivors of the fight arrive at the dormitory and both teams blame each other for starting the fight. Then, teams count their players and discover that 2 players from Team X died and 3 players from Team O died, which means that Team O has 47 players left and Team X has 48 players left. As a result, Team X has the advantage in the vote and they believe that if no one changes their mind, they will be able to go home.

When the lights went out, Team O attacked Team X to kill them and gain more votes. Min-su slipped between the bunks, grabbed a glass bottle to protect himself and hid in a high bunk. Min-su saw Se-mi being attacked and cornered by Nam-gyu, so Min-su threw the glass bottle to help Se-mi, the bottle falls to the floor, breaks and Min-su quickly hid, Nam-gyu turns to see who threw the bottle and gets distracted, allowing Se-mi to grab the shards and fight, but Se-mi is overpowered and Nam-gyu stabs her to death, much to the horror of Min-su, who freezes in fear.

When Gi-hun incites a revolution and goes off with a group of players to find the Front Man, Min-su stands over Se-mi's corpse, crying silently.

Season 3[]

"Keys and Knives"[]

During Hide and Seek, Min-su pulls out a red ball, which means that he has become a member of the Seekers. The Hiders are given a key, the Seekers a knife and the guards allow players to switch teams should they wish to do so.

Min-su remains seated and anxious when Nam-gyu approaches him and asks if he has ever killed anyone. Nam-gyu tells Min-su that if he can't, then he should change teams since he's very good at hiding, Nam-gyu tells him that he looked for him during the riot and couldn't find him. Nam-gyu tells Min-su that he made the right choice by hiding and mocks Se-mi for treating him like an idiot. Min-su then turns to look at Nam-gyu and realizes that it was Min-su who threw the bottle and that he saw him kill Se-mi. Nam-gyu mocks Min-su for hiding like a coward and watching Se-mi die, declaring that she liked him. Nam-gyu gives the advice to Min-su to "be a man this time" before walking away.

"The Starry Night"[]

When the game begins, Min-su begins walking through the maze and finds the corpse of Park Jae-cheol (Player 235); who was killed by Myung-gi and Nam-gyu. Min-su remains too scared to kill anyone when he suddenly finds Thanos' cross (which Nam-gyu dropped). Min-su remembers what Nam-gyu told him about that he was too cowardly to help Se-mi and to act like a man, so Min-su takes 1 of the last 2 pills to gain the courage that he needs to win the game [as well as taking the cross and final pill with him].

Min-su, having begun to hallucinate intensely from never having used drugs before, begins searching for Se-mi to protect her from Nam-gyu. Min-su meets Seon-nyeo (Player 044) and asks her if she has seen Se-mi. Min-su describes Se-mi and begs Seon-nyeo to help him find her to protect her from Nam-gyu, Seon-nyeo panics and hides in a room, so Min-su leaves. Seon-nyeo discovers that the room contains an exit door and that she needs all 3 types of keys to open it. She teams up with Im Jeong-dae (Player 100), only for Jeong-dae to betray her by pushing away from the door, taking away the circle key when he leaves and closing the door, leaving the shaman trapped. Seon-nyeo panics, desperately tries to open the door and curses Jeong-dae for betraying her, grabbing Min-su's attention, who enters the room and asking the woman if she has seen Se-mi.

With 3 minutes left, Min-su tells Seon-nyeo that Nam-gyu is trying to kill Se-mi and begs her to help him find her, Seon-nyeo tells Min-su that he should have died a long time ago, but he survived, taking advantage of Se-mi and she insults him (like Nam-gyu). Then Min-su starts hallucinating that Seon-nyeo is Nam-gyu and that he insults him for hiding and watching Se-mi die, declaring that she liked him, Seon-nyeo arrogantly asks Min-su who he thinks she is and how dare he, which enrages Min-su, Seon-nyeo demands Min-su get lost, but then Min-su stabs her with his knife, thinking that she's Nam-gyu. Min-su stabs Seon-nyeo twice, killing her and inadvertently passing Hide and Seek as a seeker. Min-su then hallucinates a bloodied and dying Se-mi in the place of Seon-nyeo's corpse, freaking out after thinking he killed her. He even hallucinates the Announcer announce "Player 380 eliminated" (instead of "Player 044 eliminated") repeatedly, with her voice becoming increasingly demonic.

"It's Not Your Fault"[]

In the 5th voting round, Min-su watches Nam-gyu voting "X" and after some hesitation, votes "O" in contempt, most likely wanting Nam-gyu to die for killing Se-mi. Later on in Jump Rope, he asks Nam-gyu if he is doing okay. When he was met with hostility from Nam-gyu, Min-su then revealed he had the cross in his hands. Despite Nam-gyu desperately apologizing for everything, Min-su throws the cross onto the bridge and dares Nam-gyu to cross the bridge and retrieve it, also calling Nam-gyu a "fucking loser". Nam-gyu chases after the cross, hoping to get his fix again. After haphazardly crossing the bridge and reaching the necklace, he is horrified by the revelation that it is empty, causing him to get tripped by the rope and fall to his death. Min-su stares down at Nam-gyu's corpse and smiles, having exacted his vengeance on Nam-gyu for bullying him and killing Se-mi.

After this, Min-su stands idly on the Jump Rope platform behind Lee Myung-gi and Player 306 for a long while. Immediately after killing Nam-gyu, he looks at the last pill he has, but doesn't consume it yet. He is horrified by Kim Gi-min sadistically kicks Player 349 off the platform to her death as she tried to forfeit her attempt at playing the Jump Rope game after the path was blocked by Player 096. Min-su got terrified enough by this that he finally made the choice to consume the second pill. After Kim Gi-min passes, Min-su begins his attempt to cross the bridge with his shoes taken off and held on both of his hands, stalling at the gap. He then hallucinates Cheol-su smiling at him, joyous at the sight and finally crossing the gap and passing when he sees Seong Gi-hun waving at him to hurry up.

Afterwards, Min-su is among the 9 finalists and returns to the dormitory with both of his shoes still in his hands. As a result of taking the last of Thanos' drugs, Min-su starts to show signs of withdrawal, being shaky and anxious at the sight of the other Players being angry at Kim Jun-hee's baby being made a player and drinking copious amounts of wine and eating nothing for the final dinner. After the clue for the Sky Squid Game is given, a vote is held, with him voting X after forced to vote by an impatient Im Jeong-dae after Min-su hesitated. He goes to sleep with the other remaining players except Gi-hun to play the final game tomorrow.

On the 6th game, Min-su is reduced to a nervous wreck, going to the corner to the opposite of Gi-hun and Jun-hee's baby while Myung-gi and the other O voters decide the strategy to win the game. He hallucinated Thanos dangling over the edge, offering him pills. Suddenly the hallucination switches to that of Nam-gyu, attempting to drag him down to the abyss and cursing him out for stealing Thanos' cross, demanding its hand-over, with Thanos now starting to talk down to him for using drugs and calling him a coward. Min-su responds by stomping on their faces (in reality stomping on thin air), which is noticed by Myung-gi.

Fate[]

Death of Min-su

Se-mi... I'm sorry... I'm sorry, Se-mi...

Park Min-su's last words to a hallucination of Se-mi in " △ "

After Myung-gi manipulates the other finalists into sparing the baby and Gi-hun [for the first round], he convinces the group instead to set their sights on Min-su. The majority of players decide they want to vote him out for the first round, as he is suffering from drug withdrawal and is seen as weak, isolated and too unstable to be left alone for too long without further repercussions. That and since they tried to kill an innocent baby they really have no morals whatsoever.

Min-su starts begging for his life and frantically apologizes to the O voters, before cursing them out and snapping at them for him being treated poorly. He proves to be too uncooperative to simply jump off the platform himself when he curses at Im Jeong-dae and Kim Yun-tae for asking him to commit suicide, snapping at them for treating him poorly. Kim Gi-min demands that someone push Min-su off, only to realise that nobody, himself included, is willing to finish the job. A ton of time passes and Im Jeong-dae starts to freak out as the timer reaches the 3 minute mark.

Myung-gi apologizes, admitting that he was reluctant to kill him, in response to Min-su pleading for his life after grabbing the pole of the centre of the tower and assuming responsibility for killing him. Suddenly, he hallucinates Se-mi stepping towards him, causing him to stop fearing for his life. He becomes emotional upon seeing her again, while she puts her hand out for him to take, telling him to come with her. Min-su grabs the pole in Myung-gi's hands heading at him, thinking that it's Se-mi's hand while being comforted by his apparent second chance from her, leading him to get pushed and fall off the tower to his death below. He placed 9th in the competition.

His body and those of the other finalists were incinerated in the island's explosion.

Nam-gyu (Player 124)

Attempted to drop a glass bottle on his head in an attempt to save Se-mi.

Trivia[]

He was the first of the finalists to die. His 33rd and 28th counterparts are Player 067 and Player ???.

The only finalist to die with their jacket still on in the 2020 edition of the games was Kang Sae-byeok, the circumstances of whose death parallel that of Min-su's in ways noted above.

Min-su is the only post-Mingle player to change his vote to O willingly and not out of fear or manipulation.

He is the 1st player to have said his name to another player in the 37th Squid Game

Him and 333 are the 2 players to have voted X 4 times and O 2 times

In most of the votes their votes are opposite: 333/Myung-gi votes O in the first and sixth vote, Min-su votes X in those. Min-su votes O in the second and fifth vote, Myung-gi votes X in those. The only votes they vote the same way are the third and fourth votes.

In an error, Min-su in a BTS scene in Six-legged pentathlon appears with an O patch, despite he is seen with a X patch in the episode.

Nam-gyu and his number being 124 and 125 plays a factor

In Season 2, Nam-gyu remains voting O while Min-su reverts to X after Mingle.

However, in Season 3, they have opposite votes after Hide and Seek, such as Nam-gyu voting X and Min-su voting O.

Nam-gyu is the first player to die in Jump Rope due to Min-su luring him by throwing the necklace on the bridge and indirectly causing his death as he retrieves it.

Min-su is the first player to die in Sky Squid Game after getting pushed with a metal pole by Myung-gi.

Their reactions in the first seconds of the 5th and 6th games are also very similar, both look down at the ground as they are experiencing withdrawal; but it is unknown why Nam-gyu was looking down, as Min-su was hallucinating getting more drugs as well as people he detested [either other players from the Squid Game or people Nam-gyu knew before the Games]. However, Nam-gyu could've also hallucinated the same thing, giving a sort of twisted symbolism that Min-su will end with the same fate as Nam-gyu.

Min-su is the only shown main character to not speak in an entire episode, the episodes being "Friend or Foe", "Keys and Knives" and "222".

If Min-su survived Sky Squid Game's first round somehow, he likely would have been the lunchbox, making it a somewhat good thing that he died first instead of dying painfully.

Min-su and Lee Seung-won are the only finalists to never learn the fact that Lee Myung-gi is the father of Kim Jun-hee's baby before their deaths.

Min-su was the smartest player in Jump Rope because he took his shoes off and spread his arms out as a technique for extra balancing, and managed to indirectly kill Nam-gyu by using his addiction: drugs.

Min-su shares his given name with the winner of the 7th Squid Game in 1994, Kim Min-su.

Min-su is the only finalist who never had a direct interaction with Gi-hun. The closest they come to interacting is when Gi-hun helps Min-su pass jump rope in order to try to reach Jun-hee, but he passes off-screen when she watches Myung-gi enter the bridge to cross it. Gi-hun also does nothing to help him after the last vote despite them being the only 2 X voters or in the final game.

Min-su is the highest-placing member of Thanos' team. Ironically, Se-mi warned him previously he wouldn't last long in the games and he then outlives her by two games.

It's possible that Min-su was very skilled at gonggi. When he failed, the timer marked 3 minutes left, but when Nam-gyu was playing Paengi, the timer marked 2 minutes left. If we consider the time players take from getting from one point to another (which is around 8 seconds), the fact that they cheer when each member completes a minigame (which is around 2-4 seconds), and the time Nam-gyu takes to wrap the string around the Paengi (which is unknown, but the Behind-The-Scenes footage shows him wrapping slowly), Min-su potentially completed gonggi in less than a minute.

When Player 435 dies, we can see him on the bridge with shoes on. After 353, 039 and 203 pass, we see him barefoot, holding his shoes.

Both of his kills are major characters.

Funnily enough, they both have unknown surnames.

They also both played the Paengi/Spinning Top game in the Six-Legged Pentathlon.

His name (not counting his surname) starts with the letter M, which is the thirteenth letter of the alphabet. Similarly, Nam-gyu starts with N which is the letter after M. In this case, Nam-gyu's number is smaller than Min-su's which means he joined earlier [it is likely though NOT CONFIRMED that the player numbers are in order of who phones the Recruiter's number first and agrees to be in the games so Gi-hun was the last player to do that in 2020, Player 455 second last and so on and so forth], meaning that this was possibly a coincidence considering the fact that it's the other way around. This also symbolizes the fact that Nam-gyu is always first at everything, N (Nam-gyu) comes in front of M (Min-su), he's the 124th player to join while Min-su is the 125th, as well as him going first in Jump Rope [though that last part wasn't really Nam-gyu's decision and was only because he wanted the drug back]. Another exception to this is that Min-su plays the third mini-game in the Six-Legged Pentathlon, Gong-gi while Nam-gyu goes after him with the fourth mini-game Spinning Top/Paengi. To add on, Nam-gyu's actor, Roh Jae-won, even said that his main motivation was "the thrill of being number one," which is ironic considering that being "number one" (going first in Jump Rope) cost him his life.

When he puts his X patch on in the final vote, it is lopsided. He also does not fix his bowtie before the final game, all due to his drug withdrawal.

He is the last player in the 12X range to be eliminated in the 37th squid game.

He is the last player to vote X in the series and in the Korean Squid Games as well.

He is the only pill user to not speak English words, As Nam-Gyu and Thanos are both shown speaking English on the pills

Since Min-su placed 9th in the competition, his 33rd Squid Game counterpart is Player 407. Both of them are responsible for the deaths of a very religious player [Player 044/Seon-nyeo and Player 244 the Christian pastor, respectively]. They also have some slight personality resemblances, both being very nervous and somewhat twitchy [in Min-su's case particularly in the final game] and both killed the religious player quickly and impulsively [though it was necessary for Min-su to live in his case and in Player 407's case 244 had just killed another player and may still hold up the line in Glass Bridge].

Min-su and his Hide and Seek victim, Seon-nyeo, are each the 8th last player of their respective gender to die in the Games. The 7 male players who outlive Min-su are Player 336 [Lee Seung-won], Player 353 [Kim Yun-tae], Player 203 [Kim Gi-min], Player 100 [Im Jeong-dae], Player 039, Player 333 [Lee Myung-gi/MC Coin/The Amazing Myung-gi] and Player 456 [Seong Gi-hun of Ssang Mung-dong]. The 7 female players who died after Seon-nyeo are Player 028 and Player 119 [both were failed taggers who were eliminated when the timer in Hide and Seek ran out], Player 149 [Jang Geum-ja], Ms. Player 163, Player 349, Player 448 and Player 222 [Kim Jun-hee].

His votes are xxxox. If you don't count the tiebreaker, his votes changed every time he voted, probably making him the player with the most votes changes.

His face when his corpse is shown upclose, appears to be smiling, likely due to that Min-su thought he was finally with Se-mi.

Since Min-su placed 9th out of 456 players, he made it to the top 2 percent [1 out of 50] in the ranking of players and how long they were alive/in the game.

It's unknown what would have happened to Min-su if Gi-hun had accepted and killed the other finalists. While In-ho said to "kill the trash who want to kill you and the baby", Min-su is the only other contestant who voted X and didn't intend to murder the baby. But, In-ho did say that only Gi-hun and the baby will remain, making Min-su's fate unclear. Since it seems the Sky Squid Game could not be played with only three players either Min-su could probably have survived this way and In-ho was just being forgetful: the reason he gave to Gi-hun to kill the other players because they were going to kill Gi-hun and the baby doesn't apply to Min-su because he voted X and wasn't part of the group of six visibly and obviously talking on the other side of the room.

Min-su was the only O voter after Jump Rope and before the final vote that didn't shout desire to kill the baby.

Min-su has the characteristic of being hidden or distant in several scenes; when Thanos and his group wanted to recruit Se-mi they didn't notice him because Se-mi was covering him, during the headcount he is barely visible, when the teams in Hide and Seek were first completed and at several moments in Jump Rope he is somewhat hidden and when the finalists take the elevator he is hidden between Yun-tae and Gi-min; this reinforces his role as a player who usually goes unnoticed.

Behind Player 453, Player 084, Player 260, and Kim Jun-hee, he was the fourth player not to scream when falling to his death. Players 453, 084, and 260 all died off screen, and Jun-hee intentionally fell from the platform.

Min-su is played by a replacement actor during Six Legged-Pentathlon. Same as Se-mi. It's very likely that his actor, Lee David, wasn't present during the filming of those scenes. Hence why an extra is there.

He is the second last player [of the taggers] known to pass Hide and Seek [only Player 456/Seong Gi-hun passed after him] and also the second last player to pass Jump Rope with only Player 333 [Lee Myung-gi/MC Coin/The Amazing Myung-gi] going in Jump Rope and passing it after Min-su completed it: this is the opposite of Player 096 who was the second player to pass both Hide and Seek and Jump Rope.

Se-mi's warning that he would not last much longer in this place was quite ironic since Se-mi only survive one game [the third game, Mingle] after that interaction while Min-su survived the third, fourth and fifth games and became a finalist, beating here out by two games and roughly 80 player spaces.

Behind the scenes[]

Park Min-su was portrayed by Lee David and an unknown temporary replacement extra during the Six-Legged Pentathlon. In the English dub, he is voiced by Koo Park and French dub by Marc Maurille.

History[]

Chae Gang-sun was born on August 31, 1971 to his parents Chae Bo-seong and Kim Il-ju. He attended Yangju Technical High School and graduated in February 1991. He found work as a transport driver for Haeil Packaging before quitting or being terminated around 1998. He also incurred a significant amount of debt from gambling in March of that year.

He began a second job as a driver for Rainbow Moving but lost it after being arrested for a hit-and-run committed while drunk driving in November 2005. He spent eight years in prison before being released in 2013. He eventually landed another job at Bangi Manpower sometime after. By this time, his debts had increased significantly as he hadn't to pay any of them off while incarcerated, so he took out private loans in an attempt to deal with them in December 2014.

Chae Gang-sun was unable to settle his debts despite these efforts. In 2020, decided to join the Squid Games in an attempt to win money to pay them off.

He survived Red Light, Green Light. He was likely terrified from the deaths of the contestants. A vote was then held to end the games. Despite being terrefied and having begged to go home he voted O because he feared the loan sharks that were after him, he returned for the prize money. In Sugar Honeycombs, he picked an unknown shape.

Fate[]

In Sugar Honeycombs, he failed to cut his dalgona out and got shot in the head by a guard.

Trivia[]

According to his player file, Chae Gang-sun resides in the neighborhood of Dasan-dong in Namyangju, Gyeonggi Province, and his resident registration number is 710831-1228714.

The photo in Player 134's file and the photo in Player 134's icon are different.

Mistakes[]

Though his birthday is listed to be August 31, 1971, Chae Gang-sun is erroneously shown to be 45 years old on the information sheet displayed in the control room, and his parents are both listed as being 66. This is most likely a mistake on the editors' parts.

Chae Gang-sun seems to have the same player portrait as Player 126, Player 138, and Player 377. This is most likely a mistake on the editors' parts.

Player 134's icon is the same as Player 380's faulty icon.

Chae Gang-sun was portrayed by Bae Dong-yun, Hyun-ju in his Icon, and two unknown extras.

[↑] Under the Korean age system, which was in effect at the time, Chae Gang-sun would've been 50 years old in 2020.

[↑] In South Korea, the eighth and ninth digits of a person's resident registration number signifies their place of birth, with "22" indicating Gyeonggi Province.

[↑] Assuming the remaining games all occurred on consecutive days after the Squid Games resumed, Sugar Honeycombs most likely took place on June 26, with the final game happening on June 30.

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

3 Trivia

Confirmed non-returns[]

Player 066[]

He appeared in the Red Light, Green Light and Hell episodes, confronted a manager with a few others, and celebrated that the games ended.

No other extras/actors wore the 066 suit in The Man with the Umbrella or later, so Player 066 was never seen after the temporary termination of the Squid Games.

However, his icon faded amongst the panic in the first game.

Player 090[]

Was last seen in the voting and voted for X, judging by his reaction seen below.

However, his icon also faded in the first game, though he wasn't seen in the game.

Possible non-returnsers[]

Possibly last seen in the voting:[]

Player 117[]

She also appeared in the Red Light, Green Light and Hell episodes.

She was seen in the background during the voting session.

Player 117 was never seen or mentioned after the temporary termination of the games, after she voted for X, judging by her reaction after the termination of the games.

Although her icon faded in Sugar Honeycombs, her actress was seen before Sugar Honeycombs, we however don't know if it's her, as no tag is seen.

Player 333[]

Tag was last seen in the voting.

He was also seen panicking in Red Light, Green Light, where his icon faded.

He voted to continue the games, judging by his reaction when the games were terminated.

His actor was seen in the food lines in Episode 3, but we don't know if it's him.

Weren't seen in Episode 3[]

Player 073[]

Was seen in the voting, where she begged to be released, and didn't appear until the Special Game with a stunt along with being announced 'pass' in Sugar Honeycombs and her icon fading after the Special Game.

Player 081[]

Was seen in the voting and then didn't appear until the Special Game.

He then disappears again until Marbles, where he had a major scene.

Weren't seen from Episode 3 to Episode 5:[]

Mun Jang-ho (Player 002)[]

Was seen in voting and didn't appear until his death in Marbles.

Could have died in Marbles as his icon faded there and his elimination was announced, with having a major death scene too.

Was seen cheering after the voting ended, despite voting to continue the games.

He was seen dying twice in Red Light, Green Light however, which makes his fate ambiguous.

Player 414[]

Was seen in the voting and didn't appear up until his death in Marbles.

However, could've died in Marbles as his icon faded there and his elimination was announced, with having a major death scene too.

Voted X during the voting, he then cheered too when the games were terminated.

Miscellaneous:[]

Player 036[]

He was last seen on the Red Light, Green Light finish line.

His icon was lit up until after the Special Game.

Trivia[]

The non-returner list can be updated once one of those players is discovered appearing in episode 3, an example being Player 008.

It's possible that some of them did want to return to the games, but they were caught by their creditors before they could, as almost happened with Jang Deok-su.

It is also possible that some of the supervised players were killed by loan sharks, and that is why they did not return to the games.

History[]

Player 141 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, signed a contract and took his photo.

Later, everyone was taken to an open area with a creepy robot doll at the front. It was revealed that the game was Red Light, Green Light. When the doll turned around, everyone ran forward, with Player 250 and Player 324 ahead of everyone, but Player 324 wasn't able to stop in time before the doll turned around, causing him to be eliminated. Player 324 then slumped over.

Player 250, thinking Player 324 was putting up an act, ran to him and asked him to stop faking, until he noticed blood gushing from Player 324's head, causing him to recoil and try to run away, but the doll, who was still looking, detected him and shot him, splattering his blood all over Player 306, causing her to scream and be shot, causing everyone to panic.

Personality[]

Whoa, hey. You immature little dipshits, who taught you that kind of shit was okay?

Player 145 to Thanos and Nam-gyu before the bathroom fight in "O X"

Player 145 is a loyal, brave and trustworthy man. He voted O in the first vote because he needed the money, but his second and third vote shows he has determination to leave the games once he has enough money. Before the Bathroom Fight when Thanos and Nam-gyu were pressuring Park Min-su to change his vote to O Player 145 intervened and calls both of them "immature dipshits" for threatening other X players during the Bathroom fight he throws Player 299 into a mirror and kills him in an unknown manner as he avengers Player 401. He then hid during the Special Game eventually when the riots ended he joined Gi-hun's Rebellion but even though they lost the battle he kept fighting until the end proving his bravery and loyalty.

History[]

Player 145 was in heavy debt so he decided to join the Squid Games. He was able to make it through the first three games: Red Light, Green Light Six-Legged Pentathlon (teaming up with Kim Gi-min, Player 206, Lee Seung-won and Player 238), with his team passing the game, and then playing Mingle . He voted O in the first vote, and X in the second and third vote, and later appeared in the bathroom , he scolded Thanos and Nam-gyu for pressuring Min-su to change his vote, right after Myung-gi warned him and the rest of Team X about what they were doing, and standing up for his teammates.

Quiet, the adults are talking!

Player 145 telling Player 442 to have some manners during the Bathroom Fight in "O X"

After the fighting begins, he is shown attacking members of "Team O", even killing one of them in the fighting. He was also one of the players who joined the rebellion. During the beginning of the bathroom fight, he managed to grab a hold of Thanos' head, but was pushed by Player 442. At some point of the fight, he is seen stomping Player 442, with the help of Player 324. 145 then proceeds to slam Player 299 into a mirror, shattering it, and throwing the latter in to a wall before they both continue fighting offscreen and throw each other in to Walls (Presumably). He then manages to kill Player 299 in an unknown manner.

After the Bathroom Fight ended, Kwon Byeong-su accused Team O of starting the fight to increase the prize money. Player 192 countered this accusation by accusing the X's of attacking Team O so that they could win the vote, but Player 145 backs up Byeong-su by reminding them that they lost several members. 145 then proceeded to join the X's headcount after Im Jeong-dae asks how many players were lost on each side. Once Kwon Byeong-su was done counting, he along with 145 and the rest of Gi-hun's team hid behind a bed, and discussed about the Special game. Oh Young-il had the idea of attacking Team O first, which Byeong-su and 145 had approved. However, Gi-hun went against this idea, saying that it was what The Frontman and the V.I.P.s wanted. Gi-hun then tells his entire team to hide under bed bunks so that none of them would die, allowing for a perfect rebellion. 145 and Byeong-su hid under a bed together, witnessing all the chaos that was happening during the Special Game. This was oddly out of character, as 145 willingly let the other X voters get brutally murdered. Where the fuck is that asshole?!

Player 145 asking what was taking Dae-ho so long to retrieve the ammunition in "Friend or Foe" Once the Special Game had ended, the guards came in to scan the dead bodies without knowing that Gi-hun's rebels were playing dead. Once the guards began to scan bodies, Gi-hun tackled a guard from the front, forcing him into a chokehold. Park Jung-bae grabbed another soldier's neck, and forced him into the ground, with Kang Dae-ho killing smashing a glass bottle onto the guard, killing him. Park Gyeong-seok then grabbed the arms of a soldier, allowing for Cho Hyun-ju to steal a revolver, killing the soldier. Two more guards appeared from the sidelines, aiming at Gi-hun. But luckily, Kwon Byeong-su and Player 145 attacked them from the back, killing them. Once Kwon Byeong-su was busy grabbing the MP5 and shooting the dead corpse out of spite, Player 145 was trying to aim at more guards who were running across the dormitory. Once all the soldiers in the dormitory were dead, Player 145 along with the other rebels were taught by Cho Hyun-ju on how to effectively use a MP5. 145 and the others climbed up the stairwell, to be suddenly ambushed by a group of soldiers. Following the deaths of 072 and 206, along with Gi-hun and Jung-bae running to the control room, Hyun-ju asks the group if they still had enough ammo. 145, Kwon Byeong-su, Park Gyeong-seok, Oh Young-il and Player 015, and Player 324 were all running out of ammo. Kang Dae-ho had no ammo left, so he was tasked to bring back the ammo. After Dae-ho returned to the dormitory, he immediately got a PTSD attack, causing him to step out of the revolt, dropping all the ammo. Due to this, Player 145 was getting more impatient for the ammo to arrive. Young-il suggests that he, Byeong-su and 015 all enter the control room to meet up with Gi-hun and Jung-bae.

Advance team, do you copy? We're out of ammo over here. I'm gonna surrender.

Player 145 telling his team over the radio that they are out of ammo and he is surrendering in "Friend or Foe"

Cho Hyun-ju retreats immediately to find Dae-ho. A few minutes later, the guards were closing in. Player 324 gets shot in the arm, forcing Player 145 to get Park Gyeong-seok to retreat. Park Gyeong-seok was about to see Player 324 commit suicide, to which he pleads the latter not to do so. Player 145 tells Park Gyeong-seok to run down the stairs back to the dormitory, but that option was no longer viable as more guards came from the stairwell which had the broken cameras that Cho Hyun-ju shot.

Fate[]

Let us go—

Player 145's last words before getting shot in "Friend or Foe"

After Player 324 kills himself, the guards came and surrounded Player 145 and Park Gyeong-seok, and the former tells the latter that if they put down their guns and surrender, the guards might let them live. Unfortunately, that was not the case, as Player 145 was shot dead by a guard after begging to not kill him.

Legacy[]

Player 145 briefly appears in Season 3. His body was forcefully hanged along with those of Players 015, 072, 324, Byeong-su and Jung-bae, along with the manager taken hostage by the rebellion team (wearing the Player 001 tracksuit) to show the consequences of attempting to take down the games.

Trivia[]

He is the first death shown in Season 3.

He is the second to last death in Season 2.

He is also the longest living unnamed character within the Rebellion.

He was mistakenly credited as Player 182 in "Friend or Foe".

Despite Kwon Byeong-su being given a name in the credits, Player 145 was not given the same treatment (possibly due to the error of being credited as 182).

Player 145 can be considered the "X version of Player 203 (Kim Gi-min). This is due to the fact that both were commanding, intimidating, extremely dedicated to their voting team, violent in the name of their team, and with the fact that Kim Gi-min was also a member of 145's team in the Pentathlon. They have the same hairstyle too.

Excluding Kang Dae-ho, Player 145 and Kim Gi-min were the only two players who unzipped their jacket during the argument between Team X and Team O caused by Dae-ho and Yeong-sam. The notable difference was that Gi-min had threw and slammed his jacket onto the floor, while 145 still had his jacket on.

Since he and Kim Gi-min share many similarities, it is possible that Player 145 could have made it to the finals if he did not participate in the Rebellion.

When the camera pans to outside the bathroom door during the fight inside, the door gets jolted as if struck — the commotion was caused by Player 145 slamming Player 299 into it.

He is shown to have the best fighting skills, as he quickly overpowered and beat up 442 despite being surprise attacked, beat 299 to death, and killed a guard by slamming his head into the ground.

It is possible that being on the same Pentathlon team as Gi-min and Seung-won and seeing their callous and cruel personalities up close was a big factor to make him and Player 206 change their votes from 0 to X, seeing the immorality of the hardcore 0s.

Ironically, when the X's and O's were arguing, Player 145 can be seen first yelling at Kim Gi-min before looking at the other O players.

He is the only player in the 100's range in his Pentathlon team. He is also the only player in the 100's range to die in the Rebellion.

During the bathroom fight, 145 attempts to grab Thanos' head. This is possibly a reference to the marvel character's famous line "You should have gone for the head".

He is the only rebel that killed a player in the Bathroom Fight.

The extra that portrays him during Six-Legged Pentathlon also portrays Player 103 in Season 1.

He is the only Player in Kim Gi-min's team to have their SLP actor known

Mistakes[]

In "Friend or Foe", Player 145 is not seen in the credits. The actor is instead misattributed as portraying Player 182. In "Keys and Knives", Player 145 is attributed to be portrayed by Ha Soo-ho rather than Player 182. This error could have something to do with the reason he does not have a confirmed name, as his equally important ally Kwon Byeong-su is given a name through the credits.

The other 145 during Mingle has an O patch, despite wearing an X patch when he is swapped in for the correct actor.

↑ Since the 37th Squid Game began directly after Seong Gi-hun met with the Front Man on October 31, the Special Game and ensuing revolt occurred on either November 3 or November 4, as the drone pilot was stated to have "disappeared" at around three in the morning, which occurred before the fight itself, although a manager stated it was on the previous night when announcing the results of the Special Game and revolt. The revolt occurred directly after the Special Game.

Personality[]

Get up. What are you doing? You're praying right now? Hey, just get up and stop praying, okay? You idiot, it's your turn! Everybody will die, you know!

Player 151 attempting to get Player 244 to stop praying during Glass Stepping Stones in VIPS Player 151 is an anxious person, as he sees the glass being placed on the bridge, he gets very confused. He becomes more paranoid as he crosses the bridge. Later, he became increasingly aggressive after seeing Player 244 pray and became hostile towards him, and was convinced enough he had to push him after being threatened by Player 407 and Deok-su.

History[]

Player 151 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract and took his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue, but the majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned, along with most of the other players. He was also seen stacking beds in the lobby for protection.

He managed to survive the second game, Sugar Honeycombs, and the third game, Tug of War, and beat his opponent, Player 068 in the fourth game Marbles, and survived until the fifth game, Glass Stepping Stones. For the game, he chose the number 7, which meant he would be the seventh to go.

Fate[]

Get going, you idiot. Step forward. Come on, damn it! You'll kill us all!

Player 151's last words to Player 244 before getting pushed to his death in "VIPS"

When it was Player 021's turn, he asked Player 453 for help, only for her to forget the tiles Player 062 stepped on. Player 151 told him to go left while the person in front of 151, Player 244, told him to go right. 453 believed what 151 said, and 021 decided to go left fell to his death. When it was 244's turn he started praying. 151 then tried to push him off (after being threatened by 407 and 101), but failed and was pushed into a normal glass tile by 244 leading to his death.

Trivia[]

Player 151's scream as he falls to his death is identical to Player 062 and Player 096

He is the only semi-finalist whose icon was incorrect.

Player 151 was portrayed on-screen by four different extras and one supporting actor.

The first one is seen in the dormitory in "Red Light, Green Light", "Hell", and "The Man with the Umbrella".

The second one is seen in his icon.

The third one is seen in Red Light, Green Light. He is seen running to the doors.

The fourth one is seen in the dormitory in "A Fair World".

The fifth one is seen in "Gganbu" and "VIPS".

History[]

Backstory[]

Almost nothing is known about Player 158's life before joining the Squid Games. At some point, he was in massive debts and joined after playing Ddakji with The Recruiter.

"Red Light, Green Light"[]

Player 158 was taken by a van and transported to the island after saying the password "Red Light, Green Light". After waking up with the other players in the dormitory, he can be seen watching the fight between Kang Sae-byeok and Jang Deok-su, listening to the manager's speech and signing a contract.

He made another appearance in the first game, where he can be seen when Seong Gi-hun and Oh Yeong-uk talk to each other. He seems to have survived the panic and can be later seen walking on a green light in front of Player 023. He made it to the finish line and watched as the failing players were shot down.

"Hell"[]

Player 158 can be seen in the Dormitory after Red Light, Green Light and later voting, where he voted to continue the games. He was sent home as the majority had voted to leave the games, and was unsatisfied with the voting results.

"Stick to the Team"[]

After passing Sugar Honeycombs off-screen by carving his unknown shape out, he allied with Player 188 and can be seen fighting in the Special Game against Player 129. Player 158 would depart from them and attack an unknown player on a bed; he would overpower and wrestle with them, but the player would escape his grasp. Player 158 would then be hit on the ground by Player 211, who he would then counter by tackling him. Player 211 would be able to barely escape and would run off. Player 158 would then go on the stairs and fight an unknown player, stomping them and throwing them away to get back to Player 129, his former attempted victim. Player 158 would throw Player 129 around and eventually be able to kill him by strangling and beating him to death. He would then run off on the other side of the dormitory and would stomp Player 328's skull out, and would be able to survive the rest of the Special Game.

"A Fair World"[]

After passing Tug of War off-screen, he can be seen building barricades from bed frames with his team in order to prevent a possible attack. He later woke up from the sirens and walked into the line along with the team.

"Gganbu" and Fate[]

After being checked by the pink guards, he went to the lobby. He can be seen with his team in the lobby, and later partnering with Player 308. He can be seen with her in Marbles. Unfortunately for him, Player 308 managed to take all of his marbles, and he was shot off-screen. His elimination is announced, and his icon would disappear.

History[]

Player 162 was in heavy debt and chose to attend a life and death competition to earn money. After waking up in a dormitory with 455 players, she signed a contract and took her photo. She then went all the way up the stairs to the first game. Once she got there it was revealed the game was Red Light, Green Light. However during the game, Player 324 did not manage to stop in time which caused him to get shot. Player 250 thinking he was just playing dead, stood above him told him to stop faking. He then noticed blood coming out of 324's mouth, while the doll scanning the players, which caused him to panic and run back all the way to where Player 306 was and got shot in his chest. After Player 306 noticed his blood in her face she screamed in fear and causing many players to start panicking and running around. Luckily, Player 162 managed to stand still and survive all this chaos.

Fate[]

History[]

Player 164 was in heavy debt and chose to enter a high-risk competition to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, signed a contract and took his photo.

Later, everyone was taken to an open area with a creepy robot doll at the front. It was revealed that the game was Red Light, Green Light. When the doll turned around, everyone ran forward, with Player 250 and Player 324 ahead of everyone, but Player 324 wasn't able to stop in time before the doll turned around, causing him to be eliminated. Player 324 then slumped over.

Player 250, thinking Player 324 was putting up an act, ran to him and asked him to stop faking until he noticed blood gushing from Player 324's head, causing him to recoil and try to run away, but the doll, who was still looking, detected him and shot him, splattering his blood all over Player 306, causing her to scream and be shot, causing everyone to panic.

Death[]

In the middle of the game, Player 164 unfortunately moved on a red light, prompting him to be shot dead by one of the soldiers off-screen. His icon is erroneously on during Sugar Honeycombs.

History[]

Player 167 was in heavy debt and decided to join the Squid Games competition held in 2024 after being contacted by staff. After many players were eliminated in the first game, the accumulated money prize was shown, and the vote was held. Although he voted to end the games, the majority voted to continue them instead.

Fate[]

During Six-Legged Pentathlon, the second game, Player 167 teamed with Players 004, 412, 204, and 437. He played Biseokchigi and successfully passed.

They made it to the fourth game, Paengi, before they ran out of time and were subsequently gunned down.

History[]

Player 170 suffered a severe amount of debt, unable to pay it off. They were then approached by a man in a suit, who offered them to play Ddakji. And if they won, they would get a handsome cash prize of 100k won. They fail and get slapped repeatedly a lot of times, but eventually win and receive their money. After that, they were given a strange business card with a phone number on it with the specific date to contact it and a location. After dialing the number at the specified time and location, a van then picked him up. They entered the van, saw the rest of the unconscious players, and were knocked out by an unknown gas. They then woke up in a large dormitory with 455 other players. Confused, they woke up from their bed and witnessed the fight between Kang Sae-byeok and Jang Deok-su from afar. When the Pink Guards stepped in and stopped the fight, the TV shows multiple players being slapped. Convinced that Player 170 will receive the prize money, they signed the contract, had their photo taken and then proceeded to the first game; Red Light, Green Light. They were confused, and the arena was massive. But as the instructions were spoken by the announcer, they understood it clearly and made a bit of progress in the 1st game before the chaos erupted.

Fate[]

Following by the death of Player 306, a massive genocide began to emerge. With multiple players panicking and attempting to escape, Player 170 was one of those players who attempted to run. Unfortunately, they were shot early in the initial chaos, as we can see their icon blacked out early.

Trivia[]

Player 170 shares his icons with Jo Su-jin and Player 276.

Both him and his Season 2 counterpart died in their first games respectively.

However, Player 170 from Season 2 lasted much longer and even survived the initial chaos.

Player 170 is the first player that doesn't have an icon shown on screen if we go by numerical order.

Player 170's number is a noncototient integer.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 170 was portrayed by Kwon Jae-hun. Despite his icon never being shown, a pattern of icon matches confirms this is his actor.

He got into severe debt for 4 unknown reasons, and joined the Squid Games. After waking up, he signed a contract, took his photo, and headed up the stairs to the first game.

Fate[]

Park Do-seok tried to run after the death of Player 306, but was sniped down shortly after.

Trivia[]

His resident registration number is 880507 - 1XXXXXX.

In the 1st Squid Game in 1988, a player named No Hyun-woo won with this number.

He has the least screentime if you don't count the players whose icons were never displayed on show.

Mistakes[]

Park Do-seok's file was shown to the Frontman after the return of the games despite dying in Red Light, Green Light; it is unknown if this was intentional or not.

His file icon is the same as Players 064 and 352.

Behind the scenes[]

Park Do-seok was portrayed by an unknown extra.

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

History[]

Player 174 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He was likely confused and decided to make his way into the center of the room, where he watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he listened to the manager explain the rules of the games, he signed a contract along with the other players, he took his photo in the photo booth, and he made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During Red Light, Green Light, Player 174 and the other players watched as a strange man started screaming about how dangerous the games were. Player 174 and the other players ignored Gi-Hun's warnings, as they thought he was crazy and wanted the money for himself. Player 174 and the other players then continued the game without any worry. However, after sounds of gunshots ran out, and players started getting gunned down, Player 174 made a run for the doors in fear for his life.

Fate[]

During his attempts to run towards the doors, Player 174 was shot dead by a sniper for breaking the rules of the game. This is confirmed by his icon disappearing in the panic and him never canonically appearing again.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 174 was portrayed by Yeom Sang-jin and 2 unknown extras.

Trivia[]

In the first Squid Game in 1988, a player named No Hyun-Woo won the games with this number. Similar to Park Do-seok in the 33rd Squid Game, he has less appearances and is not noticed much. He was the first Player in the 17X range to be eliminated.

Mistakes[]

Player 174 is shown during Round 2 of Mingle.

His icon appears during Round 3 of Mingle despite him being eliminated in Red light, Green light.

Personality

Na Jo-eun is shown to be greedy, as he was seen looking at the prize money increase happily and he voted O and raged once the games were terminated. He is shown to also be violent in pursuit of financial gain, as he brutally throws Choi Woo-seong down a flight of stairs during lights out and beats him to death, as well as also beating Player 409 to death despite the fact both of them never made any attempt to harm him whatsoever, also highlighting his greediness as he did all of this for financial gain.

However, despite this, he is shown to be quite loyal to his allies, as when he sees an unknown player attacking one of his friends, he strikes the player on the head with a double hammerfist strike and stomps them to death in order to save the friend. Also, when he sees Player 397 fighting Player 307, he joins in and helps 307 against 397.

Jo-eun seems to like fights, pushing through the crowd of players to watch Jang Deok-su and Kang Sae-byeok fight, even getting extremely close to them during their arguments and fight. He can also be seen watching Player 271's death with hardly any emotion, with his friend.

Another example of his violence and bloodthirstiness is shown when he was one of the first few players to fight during the special game, he can be seen talking with his group before the Special Game, likely planning to attack, this can further be proved as we see 307 also raising from his bed to attack.

His loyalty is also highlighted during Red Light, Green Light, as he sticks with Park Pil-sam and Jang Seung-jong throughout the whole game.

Overall, he is shown to be greedy, bloodthirsty and extremely violent, but at the same time is also very loyal to those who are his friends.

History

Na Jo-eun was in tremendous debt at some point in his life and played Ddakji with a man in a suit to win some cash. After successfully winning Ddakji, he was given a card to enter the Squid Games for a chance to win the prize money. Later on, a van arrived, where he got in with the passcode "Red Light, Green Light". Once he got in the van, sleeping gas was released into the van, and he fell asleep as the van drove off.

After waking up to classical music in the dormitory with 455 other players. He got down from his bed and witnessed Jang Deok-su and Kang Sae-byeok's confrontation. Afterwards, he listened to the guards, who promised a large cash prize of 45.6 billion won if they could pass through all 6 games without being "eliminated". After hearing this, he signed the consent form, where he was in the line in the middle of Seong Gi-hun and Oh Il-nam. He then had his photo taken, and went upstairs to the first game, Red Light, Green Light.

When the doors opened, Na Jo-eun appeared confused upon seeing the giant doll. Once the game started, he watched as Player 324 and Player 250 raced each other. He then saw as 324 ran too fast and got caught moving. Suddenly, a loud bang was heard, and 324 dropped to the floor. On the next green light, 250 walked closer to 324, and watched the blood come out of his mouth. He suddenly realized the severity of the situation he was in, and ran towards the doors - being shot in front of Player 306. 306 watched the blood get all over her, and screamed, leading to her being shot.

Suddenly, chaos erupted as many players ran back toward the doors and were shot. Na Jo-eun was scared, yet was not one of the ones who ran towards the doors. This led to him surviving the initial chaos. He then slowly but carefully moved towards the finish line.

If he did survive Red Light, Green Light, he would've watched as those who didn't pass the game in time got shot, and then after the game ended and he returned to the Dormitory, he was left to sit there shocked. Suddenly, the guards charged in. Many players were shocked, and complained. A vote was then called by Player 218 after he argued about Clause 3 of the consent form. In the vote, he chose to press O, and was enraged when the Xs won the vote, throwing punches out of anger. It is unknown who he was dropped off with, but we do know he chose to return to the games once given an invite back.

If he returned, after waking up, he groups up with Park Pil-sam, Player 034 and Jang Seung-jong, and talks about returning to the games, in which Park Pil-sam points out that the number of players who returned is the same 187 has. They then moved on to their next game, Sugar Honeycombs. Unaware of what the game was yet, he chatted with his ally Player 403 and decided to pick either star or circle, he would most likely manage to pass the game before the allotted time ended or without breaking it, as he is seen at the end rubbing his face after showing his finished shape.

After the game, if he survived it, he gets his food and watches as Jang Deok-su beats Player 271 to death. He then goes to bed that night and wakes up to fighting. He participated in the brawl and was one of the first players to attack, beating an unknown player to death with his bare hands and then tackling and wrestling with an unknown player in the middle of the dorms. Na Jo-eun would then be seen attacking 2 or 3 players at once and knocking 2 of them down onto the ground after striking them. He would then be seen beating Choi Woo-seong to death mercilessly. He would then move to the right side of the dorms, attacking and killing an unknown player by using a double hammer fist strike on him then stomping on him. Once the fight ends, he is erroneously seen fighting with Player 409, he managed to overpower and drop 409 before being forced to put his hands up. If he survived, Player 187 would then surrender and talk to 3 new friends of his. Jo-eun would then meet back up with Players 307 and 403, and would go to sleep beside them.

If he survived, the next morning, he made his way up to the third game, where he was tasked to get into groups of ten. He is seen in Team Eight, however this is erroneous, as this was supposed to be Do Jeong-soo's team. Afterwards, they walk into the real game hall, where they find out what the next game was - Tug of War.

Fate

"Since a single scene is usually filmed in multiple takes, once an actor is captured on screen, the same actor has to continue playing that role. Na Jo-eun also had a minor role with no lines, but because he left a strong impression, he continued filming alongside the lead actors. In the end, the schedule went well beyond the planned 4 nights and 5 days, and Player 187 disappears from the screen during the 'marbles' scene. To make matters worse, on a day when Na Jo-eun was away for another filming schedule, a stuntman who was filming an elimination scene happened to be wearing Player 187's outfit and got shot. When I went to the next shoot, the staff explained the situation to me, saying that my character had died. I was really disappointed, but the production team gave me the role of a Masked Man. In fact, after that, I ended up doing more acting while wearing a mask. When acquaintances ask me about it, I joke that I didn't die and was scouted to become a Masked Man. (laughs) Since the Masked Man role lets me act in a wider variety of situations, I liked it, even though my face doesn't show."

Actor Na Jo-eun speaking during an interview.

It is unknown where he died. He physically appears up until Tug of War with his main actor. His icon faded between Tug of War and Marbles, and his actor Na Jo-eun and the staff, said he died in Marbles and wasn't on set for Marbles due to the filming taking longer, and that the tag 187 was used in Marbles. This information was confirmed in an interview. However, he was seen running out of time in Red Light, Green Light in BTS footage, but does not run out of time in the actual show and crosses the finish line. his death in BTS footage is likely erroneous due to him being seen here with a different actor than his canonical one, as well as the fact his character appears multiple times after Red Light, Green Light. Leaving his fate up to pure interpretation.

Trivia

His name was confirmed in a interview where Hee-sang talked about his experience in Squid Game, as he confirms that during the consent form scene he signed Na Jo-eun.

Na Jo-eun seems to have had a scrapped death scene, due to the interview stating that he was killed on-screen with a stuntman.

He's one of the few minor characters who had known actors instead of having speaking roles. His actor, Na Jo-eun, was arrested for drink driving.

Player 187 is one of the most consistent minor players in Season 1 with their actor. Other examples of this include Player 014, Player 075, Player 236, Player 311, Player 312, Player 313, Player 397, Player 447 and Player 450.

Player 187 is seen extremely close to his victims before the Special Game, with Player 187 being near Choi Woo-seong in Sugar Honeycombs, and Player 409 being right behind Player 187 in voting.

Player 187 is one of the most social minor players through out the games.

Player 187 has a habit of holding his hips.

Player 187's erroneous actor in Red Light, Green Light is the actor of Player 129, funnily enough Player 187 and Player 129 share icons.

In the BTS Footage of Red Light, Green Light, another Player 187 is seen running out of time. However, this is not in the show. Although, he is seen not to cross the finish line when Ali Abdul carries Gi-hun with his hand.

He was very close friends with Park Pil-sam; they were beside each other before Red Light, Green Light, and both of their erroneous actors were beside each other in Red Light, Green Light, and they were with each other in the Player 187 was seen moving towards the shapes multiple times in Sugar Honeycombs, but he circles back multiple times weirdly enough.

Player 187 was announced in the German dub to be eliminated in the Special Game, this is likely an error.

His number, 187, is shown among the numbers of players before Sugar Honeycombs, his best friend, Park Pil-sam, points this out by pointing at his chest then the numbers.

A player named Cho Su-jin won the 5th Squid Games in 1992 with this number.

Funnily enough, the player, Cho Su-jin, was on the same error team as Jo-eun.

Player 187 is one of the only players confirmed to have gotten 3 kills during the Special Game. This makes him a serial killer.

Ironically, he was seen carving his dalgona next to one of his victims, Choi Woo-seong in Sugar Honeycombs, and stood next to another victim, Player 409 in the voting.

Mistakes

Another Player 187 is seen in Red Light, Green Light.

He shares his correct icon with Player 129 and Player 393.

Behind the scenes

Na Jo-eun was portrayed by Yoo Hee-sang, an unknown extra during Red Light, Green Light, and Lee Kwang-ho during Marbles. Na Jo-eun seemed to be exceptionally close with Park Pil-sam's actor, Kwak Jang-ryun, during filming. The proof of this is that Kwak Jang-ryun and Yoo Hee-sang are seen with each other before the first game, during the voting, after returning, and possibly in the second game. Yoo Hee-sang would be seen with Kwak Jang-ryun even after he changed his tag to 307 and would assist him in the Special Game. Na Jo-eun would also be with him for Tug of War when he was 019.

Hee-sang would confirm in an interview that he signed his actor alias on the consent form. he also confirmed in an interview that he died in Marbles and was a guard when Jun-ho was shot.

History[]

Player 187 was in debt, so he joined the Squid Games. After he woke up, he saw 454 other players in the dormitory with him. he got up from his bed and listened to the guards explain the rules of the games. He would afterwards walk up the stairs and take his photo. He went into the first game, Red Light, Green Light. After listening to a crazy man explain the deaths, he would make his way to the finish line, Kang Mi-na would be shot and multiple players would panic while he stood still then later made it to the finish line. He voted to discontinue the games after listening to the players beg and after he saw the prize money. He would go into the second game, Six-Legged Pentathlon, and he would team up with Players 179, 119, 164. and 346, and later complete all minigames off-screen. Player 187 would then vote to discontinue the games again, and would be disappointed upon the results of the second voting. Player 187 would then wake up and make his way to Mingle. Player 187 would be confuzzled upon the carousel starting to move, he would be able to survive round 1 and round 2 off-screen, and would get on the carousel for round 3. Player 187 would be seen this time after the round started, being seen grappling with unknown players, and being dragged in a room by unknown players. He would survive the round with barely any time left, and make his way to the carousel for round 4.

Fate[]

Player 187 couldn't find a room in time during Round 4 of Mingle. Therefore, he was shot to death by a soldier.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 187 was portrayed by an unknown extra.

Trivia[]

In the fifth squid game in 1992, a player named Jo Su-jin won the games with this number.

History[]

Player 192 was in heavy debt and decided to join the Squid Games. When she woke up in a large room with 455 other players, she signed a contract form, took a photo and proceeded to the first game alongside with others. She would be able to survive the panic, and make it past the finish line with barely any time left. She would return to the games after the voting and would choose a unknown shape.

Fate[]

Player 192's place of death is unknown, she appears as a corpse in Sugar Honeycombs and her icon fades in Sugar Honeycombs also. But she doesn't have any known appearances in Red Light, Green Light, or the Voting. So she was either killed for getting detected by Young-hee, and being shot by a sniper, or because she cracked her dalgona and was shot for doing so.

Trivia[]

She only appears as a corpse from what we know.

Mistakes[]

History[]

Player 196 was in heavy debt and chose to enter a high-risk competition to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, he signed a contract and took his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue, and the majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned, along with most of the other players.

He managed to survive the second game, Sugar Honeycombs. He was recruited by Cho Sang-woo to join their team. In Tug of War his team consist of Oh Il-nam, Kang Sae-byeok, Ji-yeong, Seong Gi-hun, Cho Sang-woo, Han Mi-nyeo, Ali Abdul, Player 244 and Player 276. He had doubts of Oh-nam's plan but follow through to aid his team to victory. Before the fourth game, he complained about his team, saying they turned into the weakest ones, as there were three woman and an old man. Player 244 and Player 196 suggested to attack another weak team. For the fourth game, he chose a partner, but it was revealed that the game was Marbles and that players would face their partners.

Then what? Can we win by talking? You can barely stay standing old man, so shut up and save all your strength!

Player 196 doubting Oh Il-nam while on their way to play in Tug of War

Fate[]

Player 196 lost to his partner, Player 244 in a marble throwing game, and was subsequently eliminated. While his death is not shown, his corpse is seen, with a bullet hole in his temple.

"A Fair World" Tug of War

Team 5

Pulled off the Tug of War platform by Gi-hun's team to their deaths, losing the game.

Trivia[]

His best friend in the games, Player 244, passed dalgona at the same time as him.

He is the only member of his tug of war team to die off screen without his elimination announced. His corpse is still seen, however.

Despite his frequent objections of both Sae-byeok and Ji-yeong [as well as Mi-nyeo] not being strong enough, they each outlived him, with the first two standing over his corpse.

He and Player 244 were partners in Marbles but both of their Season 2 counterparts both died at the first game.

He seems to have t ageist views against Oh Il-nam in both the elevator before Tug Of War and in the discussion over who should be team guard after between Games 3 and 4, though to be fair he has justification to be sceptical of a very elderly man being helpful in a Tug Of War game or going all night without sleep [and he did agree to follow Oh Il-nam's plan in the actual Tug Of War game]. He also shows some misogynistic views against the female members of his team before Marbles even though it is unlikely two games in a row will greatly emphasize physical strength.

He bears a slight resemblance to Player 045 of the second season and both players die in a team game. with a quite outspoken woman [Player 212/Mi-nyeo and Player 254 respectively.

Though uncertain and NOT CONFIRMED it is possible he may be a Christian as he and Player 244 were closest friends in the game on their team and interestingly Player 196 teamed up with him in the Marbles lobby almost immediately after he heard Player 244 reference men and women having very different roles in a somewhat misogynistic way in Christianity especially because of Adam and Eve.

Mistakes[]

Another Player 196 can be seen at the start of Red Light, Green Light.

His icon is shared with Player 088 and Player 412.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 196 was portrayed by Kim Dong-hyun. However, in a continuity error, his icon displays a woman instead a man. He is credited as '꼰대남 (kkondaenam)', a saying for an older man who insists on their way being correct, reflecting his attitude throughout the games.

History[]

Player 198 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other people, she signed a contract and took her photo. She managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. She was likely upset by how the organization kills players for being eliminated. Then, a vote was held. While it is unknown if she voted to stay in the games or not, she was initially sent home since the majority voted to terminate the games. She and 186 other players decided to come back to win the Prize money. She also passed the Sugar Honeycombs challenge.

After the second challenge, everyone queued for the meal that had been provided to them, she being one of the last ones in line. However, despite there originally having been enough for everyone, there was not enough left for the last 5 players in, including Player 271. Player 198 then revealed that she saw Jang Deok-su and his gang had cut the queue and took seconds.

When the lights were turned off, Jang Deok-su and his gang decided to participate and start a riot in the lounge. Since Player 198 revealed that Jang Deok-su and his allies stole their food, he sneaked carefully to her bed and stabbed her neck repeatedly. She screamed in agony, warning all the players to wake up.

History[]

Jang Do-yeong was ₩1.4 billion in debt when he was contacted by Squid Games staff in Itaewon Station with an opportunity to win large sums of money. Upon seeing his name and the amount of his debt in the Squid Game dormitory, he became embarrassed.

He survived Red Light, Green Light thanks to the warnings of Seong Gi-hun. Later in the dorms, he was one of the players to beg for his life as he knelt on the floor, which happened after the results of the first game were given. After Gi-hun reminded everyone of clause 3 of the consent form which could allow everyone to leave if the majority agrees, much to his and everyone else's relief. Despite that, he watched as the Piggy bank filled with Prize money, much to his amazement.

So, we can take a vote again and decide to leave after the next game?

Jang Do-yeong asking a Manager how the voting works in 001

He then voted to continue the games to try to make more money. For the next game, he teamed up with four others to play Six-Legged Pentathlon. They passed ddakji with ease. The next part of the challenge, Biseokchigi, that involved throwing a stone to hit a target, which was shaped like a gravestone with Squid Game symbols on it. Jang Do-yeong was tasked with completing the challenge. He struggled to knock down the stone, and he even accidentally stepped on the designated white line on the one attempt where he hit the target. After many attempts, the stress caused him to lose control and pee his pants. Eventually, he managed to hit the target, but it was too late, as his team ran out of time.

Fate[]

Please don't...

Jang Do-yeong's last words to Kang No-eul in "Six Legs"

His team failed to complete the five games due to Do-yeong's repeated failures to hit the target and they were eliminated. Do-yeong was left alive, with non-fatal shots and a pair of corrupt Workers planned to use him in their organ trafficking operation, the workers put Do-yeong in a Coffin and marked the coffin with a "†".

However, Kang No-eul (Soldier 011) saw that Do-yeong was still alive, so she ordered the workers to open the coffin. Do-yeong pleaded to her for help, but No-eul shot Jang Do-yeong in the chest and head as a coup de grâce, preventing the corrupted soldiers from taking his organs.

Trivia[]

The footage of his last throw on Biseokchigi was re-used during the Pentathlon Montage in One More Game.

Do-yeong would have to survive Hide and Seek for his debts to be paid off via his share.

The station where Do-yeong got recruited at was on Seoul Metro Line 6. Coincedentially, that is the number of times he needed to pass Biseokchigi.

In another show, Park Sung-hoon's (who plays Hyun-ju) character states, 'Do-yeong you bastard.'

His vote count was 106 O against 98 X.

If he had survived the Pentathlon and future games his voting pattern is hard to guess. He would have needed to survive up to Hide and Seek to have the money to pay his debts but it is not certain he would have made it that far based on his nervous personality: additionally most of his team-mates in the Pentathlon voted X and they might have been quite angered to see him vote 0 for the third game and especially after that [in a sort of reverse of Min-su's situation in the second vote, Do-yeong's team mates might have tried forcing him to vote X]. However at 79 million won/1.4 billion won only about 5.7 percent of his debt was covered after the second game and with 356 million won after Mingle, still only about 26 percent of the debt covered. A compromise might be that he would vote 0 for the second and final time after the Pentathlon, then immediately vote X after Mingle if he survived that game.

Mistakes[]

For a split second, Jang Do-yeong is seen being shot in the head as he's being eliminated with his team, yet is still alive and has no visible wound before finally being fatally shot in the head and chest by No-eul.

History[]

Player 199 was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, He heard Gi-hun screaming about how dangerous the games were. Player 199 and many other players ignored his warnings, and continued the game without any worry. However, He was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. Player 199 luckily was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory with the other surviving players, Player 199 begged the guards to let him and the other players go. However, The guards instead showed everyone the massive increase in prize money that accumulated after the first game. They then explained the voting process to all of the players. Player 199 did not care about the money and decided to Vote X during the first Vote. Unfortunately for him and the other Xs, More players voted to continue the games. Which means they would have to continue the games.

Later during Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 199 decides to partner up with 4 unknown players. He then watched as many other teams failed and passed the game.

Fate[]

Player 199 isn't seen after Six-Legged Pentathlon, which means him and his team were eliminated at some point during the game.

Trivia[]

Player 199 has the same player number as one of the main characters from Season 1.

They both voted X out of the games after the first game

His number (199) is a Prime Number.

He is the only one in X99 range who have voted X. The other ones voted O.

Synopsis[]

Even as Gi-hun supports Jun-hee amid rising tensions, she must make a pivotal decision. Before the final game, the Front Man gives Gi-hun an ultimatum.

—Official Netflix synopsis

Plot[]

Seong Gi-hun asks Player 096 why he pushed Player 312, to which 096 explains that he did it to win the game and reveals that his plan is to make that no one else can cross the bridge, that way only the 2 of them will be left, they can vote "X" and leave with the Prize money (each with being ₩22,700,000,000).

Player 276 manages to cross the bridge, and he confronts 096, but 096 kicks 276 and makes him fall to his death. 096 yells to the other players that none of them will make it across and that the game is over for them. Gi-hun begs him to let the others through, but he refuses and tells him to help him kill the others. As the others hesitate to move forward, more players fall to their deaths, notably players 209 and 163. Some players urge the person standing behind the next person on the other side to push him—Im Jeong-dae (100)—off the bridge so they can move forward. Players 192 and 442 are frustrated as they can't keep jumping in the middle of the bridge or they're all going to die. Player 100 offers Player 096 half of his prize money and promises to throw the players behind him down with him. Player 442 was appalled when he heard this and threatens to kill Jeong-dae, but 192 grabbed behind him to balance himself, and as a result, both players were knocked and fell to their death. Seeing as things are going under, Player 349 urges Player 377 behind her to go back. When he tries, he stumbles and falls. Player 349 runs back but is kicked off by Kim Gi-min (203). Everyone is shocked by this revelation, but 203 reminded everyone he did them all a favor. After all this commotion, Min-su takes the last pill.

On the other side, Gi-hun again urges Player 096 to finally make way and threatens to push him down if he doesn't move aside – then he would have all the money for himself. Player 096 then makes way, allowing several other players, to safely reach the other side, only Jeong-dae and Lee Seung-won (336). Gi-hun sees Jun-hee trying to jump, but she can't make it because of her injury. There are only 7 minutes left. Myung-gi, worried and desperate tries to persuade her to come over with him, but she refuses. She accuses him of killing Hyun-ju with the knife she entrusted to him. He insists that he didn't know she was her friend, let alone helping them. He only wanted to protect her and her child. He didn't care about the money, that's why he killed her. He will help her. But she shows him her ankle and asks him if he will carry her. He stares at her hopelessly, but she says she never wants to see him again. Devastated by her hurting words, he turns away and walks toward the bridge.

On the other side, Player 096 jumps at Gi-hun and apparently tries to push him off. He hits him countless times, blocking the bridge once again. Kim Yun-tae (353) cries for the both of them to move, as more players got knocked off the bridge. As soon as players 435, 448 and 260 were eliminated. Gi-hun gouges 096's eye with his finger and manages to throw him on the bridge, with the rope throwing him off. Now Min-su is on the bridge and, in a drug-induced frenzy, he makes it. Finally, Myung-gi and Player 306 are the last to cross the bridge, with Jun-hee still at the starting point. 306 hesitates as he reaches the gap, and Myung-gi is fueled with anger because 306 will lead them to their deaths. 306 lost his balance and clutches onto the bridge's edge in between the gap. But unwilling to help him, Myung-gi jumps over Player 306, until he also falls, and reaches the other side. Gi-hun wants to go back to get Jun-hee, but she refuses. In tears, she jumps off the platform to her death. Both Gi-hun and Myung-gi tremble as the game concludes.

The VIPs discuss whether Jun-hee's baby should be considered an independent participant. The Front man suggests letting it participate in the next game as player 222, because that would make the vote and the next game more interesting. Everyone agrees to include the baby, therefore the baby takes over her mother's place as Player 222.

Back in the dormitory, Player 336 asks player 353 how much money each of the eight surviving players will get, after calculating the shared prize, 353 confirms that each player would receive ₩5.6 billion each. Both confirm that the money per person would be more than enough for them. 336 indicates that he intends to vote X in the next vote. They also assume that everyone else except Jong-dae would also be able to pay off their debts with the winnings. When the manager announces the results of the fifth game, Gi-min and Player 039 were confused that 9 players survived and the shared prize money is less than expected. After a quick roll call, the Manager revealed that Jun-hee will be replaced by her baby. Upon learning about this, others were shocked by this and asked their prize would now be smaller, and the Manager said that they are speaking correctly, and immediately others became furious about this and started yelling at the manager because they think it's against the rules, and then Jeong-dae suggests killing the child to get the money back, and everyone agrees and goes off enraged to kill a baby. Player 203 and others come to kill the child, but are stopped by guards. From this point on, the players are no longer allowed to attack or kill each other.

A feast is laid out in the dormitory. A worker gives the baby a bottle. Then the vote is held. Beforehand, the manager informs them that they can decide for themselves which three players they want to disqualify in the final game. The others will then automatically win. In the vote, only Gi-hun and Min-su vote to stop the game. The baby is counted as an abstention.

After the feast, everyone except Gi-hun and Min-su discuss choosing the two of them and the child, with Myung-gi pretending to join them. During the night, Gi-hun is summoned by the front man, who offers him a deal: he will give him a knife to eliminate the remaining players in order to ensure his survival and that of the baby. Then he takes off his mask and Gi-hun realizes with horror that it is In-ho. He grabs the knife and seems to want to lunge at him. But he cannot bring himself to do it, especially since In-ho makes it clear to him that the game would take place anyway. In-ho asks him if he still believes in the good in people.

Woo-seok wants to tell the police at the station what happened on the island and why he broke into Captain Park's house, but they don't believe him. Instead, the police inform Captain Park by phone about the break-in at his house. On the boat, Jun-ho and his group discuss which island is the game island. Woo-seok manages to inform Jun-ho, but he has already been warned by the police call. He informs the captain of boat two and orders him to kill everyone on his ship. One of the crew asked Park if he wanted noodles which Park nodded yes. Then he pulls out a submachine gun and shoots almost all of Jun-ho's team members except Kim and Jun Ho. As Kim crawls And Park shoots at Kim more Kim warns Park to turn back. At the last moment, Jun-ho manages to shoot him. He manages to patch up his last comrade Kim, who is injured. The captain of boat two informs the Front Man that he has killed everyone, but that boat one is no longer responding.

The Officer does not intervene, even though he knows that Gyeong-seok is hiding under the mask of soldier 16 when he and other soldiers begin patrolling the outer compound. However, he sends a pursuit team after them. At first, Gyeong-seok and No-eul manage to escape in a motorboat. Then the Officer contacts No-eul by radio. He wants her to bring Gyeong-seok back and makes it clear that he knows he is the father of the sick little girl. Ne-eul turns the boat around and returns to the island, but leaves Gyeong-seok behind and advises him to head for the mainland at full speed. The masked officer orders his soldiers to kill both of them. No-eul re-enters the compound through an exhaust vent.

Trivia[]

This episode features the continuation of the Jump Rope game.

Similar to Kang Sae-byeok in season one, Kim Jun-hee is the latest female player die in the game. (33rd Squid Game & 37th Squid Game respectively.)

The Man with the Umbrella, Gganbu, Front Man, 001, and this episode are the only episodes that reference a character.

This episode and 001 are the only episodes with numbers as the title.

This episode and It's Not Your Fault are similar to the Season 1 episode: VIPS.

Player 276 is the first death of this episode.

Before Season 3 aired, there were many rumors of an episode titled after a player's number, although it was Dae-ho's number instead of Jun-hee's.

In Latin Spanish dub, Jun-hee said Hyun-ju instead of her to Myung-gi.

In Japanese dub, the female announcer says the player's number in Korean, when they passed or eliminated, the same as Jun-hee's elimination announcement and Myung-gi's passing announcement.

Personality[]

Player 241 is very selfish, he kept voting O in every votes and ignored other players' deaths. Later, he was also very rude by clapping and mocking Team X's defeat in front of Seong Gi-hun, and he felt no regret that Team O killed X, showing his selfish nature. He also wanted to switch to a Seeker, showing he wants to kill or maybe because he thinks he would survive if he was a Seeker. He attacked the X side during the Special Game only to increase the prize money, showing his greed.

History[]

Player 241 was in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, he was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. He was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory, many players pleaded the guards to let them go. However, after a massive increase in the prize pool was revealed, Player 241 changed his mind and decided to vote O during the first vote. Him and the other Os then cheered after they won the vote.

Later during Six-Legged Pentathlon, Player 241 partnered up with Lee Myung-gi and players 313, 050, and 249 and he successfully played Gonggi for his team. They later managed to complete all 5 minigames within the 5 minute timer and pass the game. After successfully completing Six-Legged Pentathlon, him and the other players held another vote. He decided to vote O again along with many other O players.

Later on during Mingle, He managed to partner up with other players and passed all 5 rounds. After Mingle, him and the other remaining players returned to the dormitory and have a third vote. Player 241 decided to vote O again along with many other O players. This vote ends up in a tie, meaning they will vote again in the morning. Player 241 and the other players seem disappointed and move back to their beds. After the events of the bathroom fight, him and the other Os have a headcount and figure out that they have less players compared to the Xs. The other Os then decide to ambush the Xs during the night to put them ahead. Player 241 decided to attack the Xs with them, and can be seen running towards the Xs at the start of the fight. However, he likely failed to kill anyone, and surrendered when the guards came in to stop the brawl. Later on after the fight and Gi-hun's failed Rebellion, Player 241 voted O again during the morning vote. They end up winning the vote and continue the games further. He and his allies even witnessed Seon-nyeo getting violently attacked by Gi-hun for mocking his dead friends.

Later during Hide and Seek, Player 241 drawled a blue ball from the gumball machine, which confirmed his role as a hider. The manager later explains that him and his team would either have to survive the 30 minute timer, or find a exit door to escape the maze. Later when the guards allowed them to switch teams, Player 241 tried to convince Player 096 to switch vests with him. However Player 096 rejected his offer and walked off. After the timer to switch teams ended. Player 241 entered the maze with his fellow Hiders and was given time to hide before the seekers came after them. Player 241 then ran off into the maze and tried to find a hiding spot. Later on, Player 241 successfully managed to find an exit door but was unable to open it, as he didn't have all 3 keys needed for the door.

Fate[]

After failing to get through the exit door, Player 241 was found and stabbed to death by a unknown seeker. His corpse can be seen during Cho Hyun-ju's fight with Player 202.

Trivia[]

Player 241 was one of the only Hiders to successfully find the exit door. However, he didn't have all 3 keys and couldn't open it.

Player 241 was the second longest surviving player on his Six-Legged Pentathlon team, the first being Lee Myung-gi.

Player 241 was the first hider whose death was confirmed before Season 3 came out, due to a bts photo.

Player 241 cannot be spotted with the rest of his team during both when Cho Hyun-ju does Jegi, or during Mingle.

He was one of the most desperate Hiders who wanted to change to Seeker, as he can be seen talking with both Player 096 and Nam-gyu.

He is the only member of Lee Myung-gi's team to have an erroneous actor.

Player 241 is the one player in the X41 category to vote O.

He, Player 249, and Player 050 are seen walking close to each other when entering the Pentathlon arena, indicating they could've possibly allied before the second game. Player 313, another Pentathlon teammate of his, was also walking pretty close to him.

Before the release of the third season, Chun-ho posted a picture on his Instagram, being him in his death position, as well as another of him holding a peace sign. This makes him the first confirmed death of the season.

He is the last player in the 24X range to be eliminated in the 37th squid game (not to be confused with killed, as the penultimate survived).

Of the hidere who were not recurring players, he is the only one who does not have any significant/memorable scenes during the game.

He was counted 16th in the Team O headcount.

After receiving his blue ball, he can be seen talking to his old pentathlon teammate, Myung-gi. Interestingly, Myung-gi seems to try and ignore him.

He is similar to Player 140; both teamed up with a main character in Six-Legged Pentathlon, but neither did anything memorable after Pentathlon and were killed off screen by an unknown player.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 241 was portrayed by Cha Chun-ho.

Park Gyeong-seok (박경석 Bag Gyeong-seog?), also known as Player 246, is a participant in the 37th Squid Game. He joined the games in order to get money to pay for medical treatment for his daughter, who suffered from a recurring blood cancer.

Gyeong-seok was secretly helped by Kang No-eul, a soldier who'd formed a bond with his daughter due to her experience with her own child. After he participated in the failed rebellion, she aided him in escaping the island.

Gyeong-seok was one of three contestants to survive the competition, alongside Kim Jun-hee's baby and Hwang In-ho, and the only legitimate player to do so.

Personality

Gyeong-seok is a kind-hearted man and a caring and determined father, who by most was merely noticed as meek and pitiful artist. He is willing to go to extreme lengths to provide for his daughter, even joining the Squid Game in 2024 in order to receive enough money to pay for his daughter's treatment. His determination is shown very clear in the games, as he passed the first three rounds, and even joined Seong Gi-hun's rebellion against the guards.

Gyeong-seok's caring nature extends to the other players within the games. He saved Cho Hyun-ju and Kim Young-mi from elimination during the Mingle game and warmly greeted their teammates afterwards. He does not take credit for saving Cho Hyun-ju and Kim Young-mi, instead claiming they were the ones who saved him. Later on, in the same game, he once again saved Cho Hyun-ju by rushing her into a nearby room.

Gyeong-seok is also capable of great feats of bravery. He volunteers to join Gi-hun's rebellion and fights bravely in the ensuing gunfight, whilst many of his fellow players are clearly terrified. After being saved by Kang No-eul during the failed revolt, he is able to keep calm whilst posing as a Pink Guard. Eventually, when Gyeong-seok escapes the island on a small boat, he keeps a cool head even after some Pink Guards on a pursuing boat begin shooting at him. He is able to return fire and even kill one of the guards until he runs out of ammo.

Six months later, Gyeong-seok has returned to his normal life. His daughter survived her battle with cancer, which has clearly lifted a weight off of his shoulders, as he now has a much more relaxed demeanor.

History

Background

Park Gyeong-seok was born on October 7, 1981. He attended Hansan High School and Myeongin University. Three years after graduating from university, Gyeong-seok found a job as an art teacher at First Art Academy. He worked there for five years before moving on to a position at Siren Entrance Exam Art Academy. At some point, he met and married a woman named Lee Eun-seong and had a daughter called Park Na-yeon.

A few years after his daughter Na-yeon's birth, Gyeong-seok started to work as a portrait artist at Seoul Land, an amusement park, where he regularly took Na-yeon to look after her. He was left as her widowed father after his wife died. Na-yeon suffered from aggressive recurring blood cancer, which the other workers at Seoul Land knew about.

"Halloween Party"

Na-yeon! Na-yeon... Na-yeon, hey, how many times have I told you not to wander off? Don't cry. Sorry, guys. I'll get out of your hair. I'm sorry.

Park Gyeong-seok to his daughter and the mascots in "Halloween Party"

During September 2024, Na-yeon was given a lollipop by Kang No-eul, a Gyeong-seok's coworker dressed in a bunny costume (who was also a North Korean defector) and the girl wandered off to follow No-eul, Gyeong-seok found his daughter in the mascot changing room, apologized to No-eul and her colleagues as he took Na-yeon back outside.

The next day, Gyeong-seok was drawing a couple when an ambulance passed by. It turned out that Na-yeon had fainted while she was alone, but luckily a good man found her and called 119. Seeing his daughter, Gyeong-seok immediately rushed to her, Gyeong-seok told the paramedics that he was Na-yeon's father and asked them to take her to Seohyeon University Hospital. But unbeknownst to Gyeong-seok, No-eul had seen what happened and she cared for Gyeong-seok and Na-yeon (because they reminded her of her and her daughter, Han Song-i; whom she lost when she escaped from North Korea), No-eul saw that Na-yeon dropped her strawberry hat and she picked it up.

At Seohyeon University Hospital, Na-yeon was hospitalized in Room 4104 and Gyeong-seok talked with a doctor. The doctor told Gyeong-seok that there was a new treatment for patients like Na-yeon, but the treatment it wasn't covered by insurance, Gyeong-seok told the doctor that he would find a way to get the money and begged him to help his daughter, to which the doctor told him to make another appointment for the next day and he would explain the details. No-eul went to see Na-yeon, gave her back her hat and left before anyone saw her; when Gyeong-seok returned with his daughter, he saw that someone had returned her hat. Gyeong-seok decided to participate in the Squid Games to get the money for Na-yeon's treatment (becoming Player 246), so he was picked up by a van on October 31, 2024 and taken along with 455 other people to The Island where the games were held.

"001"

Gyeong-seok woke up in the Dormitory with the other Players, signed a consent form and took his player photo. In the first game, Red Light, Green Light, Gyeong-seok managed to kept still when it was revealed that those who lost the game would be killed and followed the instructions of Seong Gi-hun (Player 456 and winner of the 33rd Squid Game) to win the game. No-eul (Soldier 011) was 1 of the shooters who killed players and she saw Gyeong-seok among the players, No-eul recognized Gyeong-seok and realized that he entered the games to pay for Na-yeon's treatment. Fortunately, Gyeong-seok managed to win the first game. During the voting, Gyeong-seok voted for "X" to end the games, split the money between everyone and go home, but the vote ended 182-183 by Hwang In-ho (Player 001; who was the Front Man of the Squid Games and had entered as "Oh Young-il" to keep an eye on Gi-hun) and the games continued.

"Six Legs"

Upon returning to her room, No-eul thought about Gyeong-seok and assigned herself the mission of protecting him so that he would return to Na-yeon. In the second game, Six-Legged Pentathlon, Gyeong-seok formed a team of 5 (Team 43) with Player 197, Sim Jae-seok (Player 343), Player 009 and Player 140. After Teams 1 and 2 were eliminated and No-eul killed Jang Do-yeong (Player 198), Gyeong-seok got impacted by the sound of the shots, as were the other players.

"One More Game"

Gyeong-seok chose to play Gonggi, passed the minigame and his team managed to cross the finish line before time ran out, winning the game. In the next vote, Gyeong-seok voted for "X" again to end the games, but the vote ended 116-139 and the games continued.

"O X"

In the third game, Mingle, Gyeong-seok managed to survive the first round, in which the number was 10. In the second round, in which the number was 4, Gyeong-seok teamed up with Player 071 and searched for 2 more Players. Fortunately, they managed to team up with Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) and Player 154 and enter Room 04 before time ran out. When the Players left the rooms, No-eul turned to look at Gyeong-seok and she was relieved to see that he managed to survive.

In the third round, where the number was 3, Gyeong-seok was left alone and looked for 2 more Players while Cho Hyun-ju (Player 120) and Kim Young-mi (Player 095) looked for 1 more Player. Fortunately, Gyeong-seok saw Hyun-ju and Young-mi, he teamed up with the girls and they entered a room before time ran out. When the Players left the rooms, Gyeong-seok, Hyun-ju and Young-mi met with Gi-hun, In-ho and Jang Geum-ja (Player 149), Hyun-ju and Young-mi told Geum-ja that Gyeong-seok saved them before time ran out and the old woman thanked him, but Mr. 246 told her that she didn't have to thank him and that the girls saved his life. Then, Park

Yong-sik (Player 007 and Geum-ja's son; who was taken away from her by Players 172 and 220 during the commotion) arrived, Yong-sik tearfully apologized to his mother for leaving her alone and she forgave him and hugged him while the others watched.

In the fourth round, where the number was 6, Gyeong-seok teamed up with Gi-hun, Park Jung-bae (Player 390) and In-ho, they searched for 2 more Players and fortunately, they managed to team up with Players 328 and 350. They enter Room 34 before time ran out and survived. In the fifth round, where the number was 2, Gi-hun's team paired up and ran: In-ho grabbed Jung-bae, Yong-sik grabbed Geum-ja, Myung-gi grabbed Kim Jun-hee (Player 222), Kang Dae-ho (Player 388) grabbed Gi-hun and Gyeong-seok grabbed Hyun-ju (who was devastated because Young-mi died in the previous round). Gyeong-seok grabbed Hyun-ju by her arm, they entered Room 32 and Gyeong-seok closed the door; saving both of them from dying and winning the game. But when we vote tomorrow, do you really think we'll win?

Gyeong-seok asking his team during mealtime in "O X" Back at the Dormitory, Gyeong-seok sat down with Hyun-ju, Yong-sik and Geum-ja. Then Seon-nyeo (Player 044; who was part of Hyun-ju's team but was kicked out for her disgusting behavior) arrived with Park Mi-hwa (Player 006) and Player 306, the despicable woman mocked Young-mi's death and cursed the team for abandoning her; declared that none of them would get out alive and that they would die in horrible ways. Geum-ja insulted Seon-nyeo and told the team to clean themselves up to avoid the curse falling on them. In the voting, Gyeong-seok voted for "X" again to end the games and the voting ended 50-50, so the players would vote again the next day. At dinner time, Gyeong-seok sat together with Gi-hun's team and talked about trying to convince some members of Team O to join Team X and go home (to which he asked both Gi-hun and In-ho if they'll win the next vote). The teams started arguing and insulting each other since no one wanted to change their minds, but fortunately, everyone stayed on their team's side of the dorm, so a physical fight didn't break out.

In the men's restroom, Choi Su-bong / Thanos (Player 230) and Nam-gyu (Player 124) tried to threaten Park Min-su (Player 125) into joining them in voting, but Myung-gi intervened. After Thanos and Nam-gyu started making fun of Jun-hee (Myung-gi's ex-girlfriend; whom he got pregnant), a fight started between Team X and Team O.

"Friend or Foe"

The fight claimed the lives of Players 230, 268, 299, 331 and 401 and revealed to the players that they could kill each other. When the survivors of the fight returned to the dorm and counted what happened, the teams held a headcount to discover which team lost the most players. Upon recount, it was revealed that Team O had 47 Players left, so 3 of them died (Players 230, 268 and 299) and Team X had 48 Players left, so 2 of them died (Players 331 and 401). Team X was happy to discover that they were 48 against 47, so they had the advantage to win the vote and they thought that they had already won, so they went to sleep, but Gi-hun thought that Team O might start a fight when the lights went out. You really know your stuff. Where'd you learn all that?

Gyeong-seok asking Hyun-ju how she handles a gun very well in "Friend or Foe"

Gi-hun informed his team (In-ho, Jung-bae, Dae-ho, Jun-hee, Hyun-ju, Yong-sik, Geum-ja, Gyeong-seok, Kwon Byeong-su (Player 047) and Player 145) about the riot and they organized a plan: When the lights went out, they would hide under the beds, Team O would start fighting Team X and when the Pink Guards came in to break up the fight, they would pretend to be dead and take their weapons away; that way they could go to find the Front Man and end the games for good. Gyeong-seok helped Gi-hun's team with the revolt and followed Huyn-ju's instructions on how to use his weapon. Gyeong-seok asked Hyun-ju how she knew how to use weapons and she told him that she was in the special forces. Together, they leave the dormitory to begin their rebellion, having captured a Manager to guide them. Gyeong-seok, along with other rebels, fought against the soldiers, but they were vastly outnumbered. Over time, they ran out of ammunition and many of the rebels were killed. With no other options left, the rebels were forced to surrender. Wait, please don't shoot. I have a sick daughter at home who--

Gyeong-seok pleading a soldier before getting shot in "Friend or Foe" and "Keys and Knives"

Elimination and escape

"Close your eyes. If you want to live, do as I say."

Kang No-eul to Park Gyeong-seok. in "Keys and Knives"

Gyeong-seok and 145 were the last rebels alive from their group and were cornered by the Soldiers. Player 145 tried to beg for his life, but he was killed by the Soldiers and Gyeong-seok was cornered by a Soldier. Gyeong-seok begged the Soldier not to kill him and said that his daughter was very sick; but fortunately for Gyeong-seok, the Soldier in front of him was No-eul.

"Keys and Knives"

No-eul shot Gyeong-seok in a non-lethal area and she told him to close his eyes and listen to her if he wanted to live. Gyeong-seok, knowing that it would be better to listen to her if he wanted to get back with Na-yeon, listened to her and played dead. No-eul scanned Gyeong-seok to confirm his elimination and it was announced "Player 246, eliminated."

No-eul pretended to join an Organ trafficking ring run by a group of corrupt guards to extract the organs of the eliminated players and sell them on the black market. She informed them that they could use Gyeong-seok, the Workers placed Gyeong-seok in a coffin, Soldier 005 verified that Player 246 was still alive and the guards marked his coffin with a "+" (to indicate they could use him in the operation). In the operating room, the guards checked Gyeong-seok, saw that he was unconscious and proceeded to extract his organs. Then, No-eul grabbed her gun, she ordered the traffickers to stop and put down the tools, confronted them and killed Soldiers 005, 007 and 025 before they could do anything to Gyeong-seok. No-eul ordered Kim Jung-ho (Soldier 016 and the doctor who harvested the organs) to save Gyeong-seok or she would kill him. Jung-ho sutured Gyeong-seok's wound and fortunately, the bullet didn't damage any of his organs and blood vessels, but Player 246 lost too much blood and he needed a transfusion. Fortunately, No-eul's blood was Type O, a universal donor. Jung-ho performed the blood transfusion and No-eul warned him that if he tried to do anything stupid, she would kill him.

"The Starry Night"

The blood transfusion worked and Gyeong-seok regained consciousness, so No-eul killed Jung-ho and she puts her mask back on. When Gyeong-seok opened his eyes, he saw No-eul and worried about what she might do to him. No-eul told Gyeong-seok that she was trying to save him and came up with the plan to dress Gyeong-seok in Jung-ho's uniform to make him pass for a guard.

"It's Not Your Fault"

No-eul dressed Gyeong-seok as Soldier 016 and Jung-ho as Player 246. Gyeong-seok and No-eul left the operating room and Gyeong-seok felt some pain from the surgery, No-eul told him that they should hurry and Gyeong-seok asked her why she was helping him, to which No-eul told him to do what she said if he wanted to live. The Masked Officer (the leader of the organ sales) was informed by Manager 004 that there was no communication with the operating room and the Officer sent him to find out what happened.

Manager 004 went with a pair of soldiers to the surgery room, they scanned the organ traffickers to identify them (ignoring Jung-ho; who they thought was a player) and identified Soldiers 005, 007 and 025. The Officer asked Manager 004 about the situation and Manager 004 informed him of the deaths of Soldiers 005, 007 and 025, the Officer asked who killed them, to which Manager 004 said that it seemed like there was a gunfight and that Jung-ho did it, since Soldier 016 was the only one they didn't find in the operating room (without knowing that Jung-ho was there, dressed as a player and that Gyeong-seok was pretending to be Soldier 016). No-eul guided Gyeong-seok through the facility, she told him to follow the soldiers to get to his room and gave him his key (showing Gyeong-seok that he was Soldier 016); No-eul also told Gyeong-seok that there was a camera in his room and to be careful not to let them see his face, Gyeong-seok indicated her that he would be careful, followed the soldiers and No-eul went into the ducts to reach the Officer's room. Gyeong-seok arrived at Soldier 016's room, used the key to enter and sat on the bed. In the control room, the Officer asked for the report of the soldiers in their rooms and was informed that Soldiers 005, 007, 011 and 025 had not returned, the Officer asked for Soldier 016 and was informed that Gyeong-seok was in the room.

Upon arriving at his room, the Officer told Manager 004 that when the lights went out, he was to bring Soldier 016 to him, also to look for Soldier 011 and report her location. But then No-eul revealed that she was already there, the Officer turned around and saw No-eul pointing her gun at him, the Officer saw that No-eul entered using the ducts and asked her if she was responsible for what happened in the operating room. The Officer asked No-eul why she was doing that, since the organ traffickers only harvested organs from scumbags whose deaths no one cared about and he told her that she was taking a risk, to which No-eul told the Officer that he was taking a risk. The Officer asked No-eul what she wanted and No-eul said she wanted her and Soldier 016 to patrol the outer perimeter the next day, the Officer asked her why she wanted to do it with Soldier 016 and asked if she had met him, No-eul added that she also wanted a boat. The officer realized that No-eul was planning to escape from the island, he told her that it wasn't easy and that she knew it, No-eul said that she heard that The VIPs had already arrived, so it would be better for him if they disappeared quietly and she asked if she was wrong. The Officer, knowing that it would be better to listen to No-eul, did what she asked of him.

The next day, when the Soldiers were served their breakfast, No-eul found the boat key among her food and Manager 004 informed the Officer that No-eul already had the key, then the Officer told Manager 004 to return to the operating room, as he couldn't understand what was going on and he wanted him to check again in case that he missed anything. Returning to the operating room, Manager 004 checked the place carefully and decided to scan Jung-ho, then Manager 004 discovered that Jung-ho was Soldier 016 and reported it to the Officer, he told him that he believed that No-eul killed Jung-ho and dressed him in Gyeong-seok's tracksuit to make him pass as a player, the Officer asked who was impersonating Soldier 016, so Manager 004 checked the number on Gyeong-seok's jacket and discovered that it was Player 246. With that information, the Officer understood what No-eul was doing. The list of soldiers was called, Gyeong-seok took his weapon and the Soldiers were informed of what to do that day, with Soldiers 011 to 020 patrolling the outer perimeter.

Soldiers 011 to 020 were scanned by the managers to verify their identity, Gyeong-seok was identified as Soldier 016 and the managers told him to patrol the outer perimeter, Gyeong-seok and No-eul went out to the outer perimeter (which was completely cloudy) and the Officer told Manager 004 to have the pursuit team ready. No-eul guided Gyeong-seok around the island and they reached the boat, Gyeong-seok and No-eul got on the boat and began their escape.

No-eul received a call from the Officer, he told her to bring Gyeong-seok back and he would act as if nothing had happened, but No-eul refused and told the Officer to stop looking for them, as it would be best for him too. But then the Officer started reading the records of Gyeong-seok/Player 246, he told No-eul that he didn't know how she knew Gyeong-seok, but he believed she was trying to help him get back with Na-yeon, revealing that he knew where Gyeong-seok's daughter was and that she had blood cancer. Knowing that Na-yeon was in danger, No-eul changed her plans and returned to the island. Upon reaching the island's shore, No-eul got off the boat and Gyeong-seok asked her why she was going back there, to which No-eul told him to go north at full speed and call the police when he got to land, since his daughter was in danger, Gyeong-seok asked her if she knew Na-yeon and No-eul told him to leave and get as far as he could before the fog dispersed. Gyeong-seok sped off and No-eul returned to the island to stop the Officer, but unfortunately, the boat had a tracker, Manager 004 informed the Officer that the boat was leaving again and the Officer sent the pursuit team to kill Gyeong-seok and No-eul.

Gyeong-seok sailed north at full speed, feeling pain for the surgery and No-eul arrived at the Officer's room, No-eul cornered the Officer and made him delete the records of Player 246, but before killing the Officer (to erase the records from his brain too), he told her about the printed record in In-ho's room. After fighting and killing the Officer, No-eul arrived at the records room, she found Gyeong-seok's records and burned them along with all the records in the room; she also found her own record and read it, No-eul read that her husband, Han Su-cheol, had been executed and that her daughter had disappeared, so they presumed her dead, leaving No-eul devastated. Wait. Please don't. I'm not one of the guards. I was trying to escape. That's why they were chasing me.

Park Gyeong-seok Hwang Jun-ho and Kim in "Humans Are..." Gyeong-seok sailed as far north as he could, but he was found by the pursuit team (Manager 004, Oh Su-kyung [Soldier 018] and another soldier), Gyeong-seok started to escape, but the guards shot at his boat's engine and began to approach him. Gyeong-seok grabbed his gun and started shooting at the guards, managing to kill 1 of the soldiers, but he saw that he was running out of bullets. With Gyeong-seok out of ammunition and very sore from the surgery, the guards approached his boat to kill him and Manager 004 said "Player 246, eliminated.". But before that he could shoot Gyeong-seok, Manager 004 was shot and killed, Su-kyung returned fire, but he was also killed. Gyeong-seok turned to see what happened and from the fog, his saviors appeared: Hwang Jun-ho and Kim (2 men who worked with Gi-hun to find the island and end the games; with Jun-ho being the younger half-brother of In-ho).

"Humans Are..."

I am in your debt.

Park Gyeong-seok thanking Hwang Jun-ho and Kim for saving his life and patching his wound in "Humans Are..."

Jun-ho and Kim boarded Gyeong-seok's boat and Jun-ho pointed his gun at him, Gyeong-seok begged him not to kill him, told him that he wasn't one of the guards and that he was trying to escape from them. Jun-ho scanned Gyeong-seok with his scanner and discovered that Gyeong-seok was Player 246; which showed Jun-ho that he was telling the truth. Jun-ho asked Gyeong-seok if he was a participant in the games, to which Gyeong-seok said yes and that he escaped from that hellish place. Then, Jun-ho asked Gyeong-seok if he knew where the island was, Gyeong-seok pointed to where it was and they could see that the island was close. Kim gave Gyeong-seok first aid for his wound, Jun-ho called the Coast Guard and gave them their location, so they would arrive in a couple hours, Gyeong-seok thanked Jun-ho for everything and Jun-ho swam to the island to end the games once and for all while Kim stayed with Gyeong-seok to wait to tell the Coast Guard everything.

The Coast Guard found Gyeong-seok and Kim and brought them ashore for medical attention. In-ho was informed that the Coast Guard was approaching the island, so the masked men evacuated (among whom was No-eul, who was wearing the Officer's mask) and In-ho activated the island's self-destruct sequence. The masked men escaped before Jun-ho and the Coast Guard could catch them and the island was completely destroyed along with the evidence, but the games in South Korea were over for good.

Aftermath

I didn't mean for that to sound weird or anything like that.(...) I just couldn't shake the feeling that I knew you.

Park Gyeong-seok to Kang No-eul six months after the games ended in "Humans Are..."Gyeong-seok returned home with Na-yeon and thanks to the support of their community, Gyeong-seok got the money that he needed to pay for his daughter's treatment. By May 2025, 6 months after the end of the Squid Games, Gyeong-seok returned to his job as an artist at Seoul Land. At work, Gyeong-seok met No-eul and she seemed familiar to him (without knowing that she was the Soldier who saved his life), No-eul told Gyeong-seok that maybe he knew her because she worked at the amusement park. Then Na-yeon (completely healthy and free of blood cancer) arrived and No-eul greeted her, calling her by her name, Gyeong-seok noticed that and No-eul told him that she heard Na-yeon's name when she worked there, also that she heard about the girl's condition and Gyeong-seok saw sense in it. No-eul said that Na-yeon looked much better and Gyeong-seok said that thanks to everyone's help, his daughter's health improved a lot. No-eul gave Na-yeon a lollipop, she told her to take good care of herself and proceeded to leave, Gyeong-seok told her that his portrait wasn't finished and No-eul told him that she would come back for it later. Then Na-yeon asked Gyeong-seok to help her open her lollipop, Gyeong-seok helped her and asked if it was good, to which Na-yeon said yes.

Trivia

According to his player file, Park Gyeong-seok's resident registration number is 811007-1984316. He lives in the neighborhood of Hyangcheon-dong in Gwacheon, Gyeonggi Province.

He is one of only a few contestants who didn't join the games due to being in heavy debt, since he joined to provide healthcare for his daughter.

He is the only adult aside from Hwang In-ho to have survived the 37th Squid Game.

He is also the only known player to have survived the Squid Games without winning them or leaving after a successful vote.

He is also the only one from the 37th Squid Game who signed the consent agreement and survived.

He was the only player not seen getting slapped and playing Ddakji by The Recruiter.

His player number wasn't chosen randomly: In the Asian numerology, number 2 represents duality (Father and daughter), 4 represents death, and 6 represents luck and happiness.

Officially, there is no record of him ever participating in the Squid Games due to No-eul wiping his player data and destroying his physical file.

Gyeong-seok is one of the only major characters to appear in every episode of season 3, alongside Gi-hun, In-ho, No-eul, Jun-ho and Myung-gi.

Alongside Myung-gi, Gyeong-seok is the player who appears in the most episodes of the series aside from Gi-hun and (if he's considered a player) In-ho; both appear in every episode, except 1, of season 2's and in all of season 3's episodes.

Gyeong-seok, Myung-gi and Jun-hee are the only players introduced to the audience before the games. Ironically, in Season 1, the only players shown were Gi-hun, Cho Sang-woo and Kang Sae-byeok, the final 3 survivors of Season 1.

The 3 are also the players focused on after everyone completes Red Light, Green Light; which also happens with the major characters in Season 1.

Both Lee Jin-wook and Park Gyu-young starred in Sweet Home.

His pentathlon team splits up after the game, as Sim Jae-seok is seen alone.

Gyeong-seok played only 3 games, Red Light, Green Light, Six-Legged Pentathlon and Mingle, whilst surviving the Special Game too.

When Seon-nyeo curses Hyun-ju's group, Geum-ja cleanses everyone in the group except Gyeong-seok and he is the only one who survives.

He is the only one on his pentathlon team who was not attacked and killed by another player.

Gyeong-seok and Hwang Jun-ho are the only two characters to have disguised themselves as guards.

In the second round of Mingle, Gyeong-seok teamed up with Lee Myung-gi, Player 071 and Player 154. But in the third round, he teamed up with Cho Hyun-ju and Kim Young-mi.

It's possible that they only allied for the second round, although it could also be that Gyeong-seok told Myung-gi, 071 and 154 to team up they 3 and that he would look for a team.

Out of all the main characters seen in the first three games, he appears the least.

He and Gi-hun are the only characters that have both their physical and digital file shown.

Mistakes

On two of the Season 2 posters, Gyeong-seok appeared as a member of Team O; despite the fact that he was always a member of Team X.

Behind the scenes

Gyeong-seok as an "O" voter (error)

Gyeong-seok is portrayed by Lee Jin-wook. He was voiced in the English Dub by Harrison Xu and French dub he was voiced by Thierry Wermuth.

Shortly after the release of Season 2, Park Gyu-young, the actress who portrayed Kang No-eul, uploaded on Instagram a picture of her and a then unknown actor in Pink Guard costumes. The other actor was presumed to be Lee Jin-wook, who portrayed Park Gyeong-seok, indicating that Gyeong-seok indeed survived the shot and disguised himself as a guard. The photo was quickly deleted from her Instagram.[3]

There is a youtube video of Lee Jin-wook dressed as Gyeong-seok with a O, meaning he was almost definitely supposed to vote O on at least the first vote. This was likely changed to present him as more moral, as he wasn't as focused on in earlier parts of the season, unlike someone like Hyun-ju or Dae-ho.

Personality[]

Player 324 is a laid-back individual. He didn't seem too concerned over waking up in an unknown place, instead choosing to goof around like a person on vacation. He would even make bets with his friend, Player 250, on who would win the first game. This would lead to his death and elimination.

Even if he didn't know he would die if he lost the one of the games, he still didn't take the games very seriously as he should've been because he would have been thrust back into a life of poverty if he lost. Despite the fact that if he won, he could have been freed from his debts.

History[]

Player 324 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games in order to win large amounts of money. He was picked up by a van and taken to the island where the games take place. After waking up in the Squid Game lobby, he chose to remain and participate in the games.

While being led through the Squid Game complex, Player 324 remarked to Player 250 about how big the entire place was. While getting his photo taken, he made a silly pose in which he stuck out his tongue and made V-signs with his fingers before the camera went off. He was then pushed out of the way by Player 250 when he tried to have his photo retaken.

Player 324 was then taken to a large open area for the first game, along with all of the other players. He then noticed a large animatronic doll on the other side of the arena and pointed it out to Player 250, remarking that it had a huge head. When the game was revealed to be Red Light, Green Light, the pair expressed disbelief and wondered if they were being serious. He then made a ₩1 million bet with Player 250 for who would make it to the end first.

Fate[]

When the doll turned around for the first Green Light, Player 324 pushed Player 250, and both ran forward as fast as they could. Unfortunately, Player 324 lost his balance on Red Light and was unable to catch himself before the doll detected his movements. He was then shot with a sniper, becoming the first player to be eliminated from the game. He placed 456th, or last place in the 33rd Squid Game overall. Player 250 thought it was an act. Then he came up to him to make sure that he didn't put on a show and get up. Player 324 then coughed up blood onto the ground, making Player 250's expression become serious, realizing elimination means death.

Aftermath[]

Player 250 then begins running towards the exits, only to get shot in the chest. Player 250's blood then splattered onto Player 306's face, who screamed before getting shot in the head. These deaths led to the chain outbreak, where lots of players started running towards the exits trying to escape, only to get shot as well. Those players also shoved or ran into other players who hadn't moved, getting them eliminated as well.

Trivia[]

Player 324 is the first character to die onscreen in the entire show.

He and Thanos shared some similarities, where they both made a pose when taking a picture. They both have dyed hair. They also had partners in the game, where Player 324 paired with Player 250 while Thanos paired with Nam-gyu. Lastly, both of them didn't show much seriousness in the games, where player 324 jokingly pushes player 250 in red light green light while Thanos was more exaggerated, dancing in almost all the games and also doing some bizarre acts like kissing the 'O' button, though he was under the influence of his drugs.

Player 324 is the only eliminated player in RLGL in the 33rd Squid Game whose elimination is announced to the rest of the players, he is also the only player whose elimination is announced before dying and not after.

His season 2 counterpart based on placement is Kang Mi-na, as they were the first to be eliminated during their respective Games.

Coincidentally, both players they shared their numbers with in opposite seasons allied with Gi-Hun at some point during their respective Games before being killed or wounded by a soldier sometime after.

Mistakes[]

Player 324's icon is shown to be in the middle of several other icons even though it should be on the left edge of the portrait grid, given its layout.

A female 324 is seen in the dormitory before Red Light, Green Light.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 324 was portrayed by Lee Han-sol and Lee Eun-sook. Lee Han-sol, who has dark brown hair in real life, got his hair dyed yellow specifically for the part.

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

Personality

Jun-hee, I was trying to find you. I wanted to protect you and the baby. I wasn't just thinking about myself. I did it so we could get out of here and start a new life together. A happier life. That's why I did it. So let's just go. We have to get out and live, Jun-hee. We have to get out of here with the baby. I'll help you.

Myung-gi trying to justify his murder of Cho Hyun-ju to Kim Jun-hee while trying to offer her help during Jump Rope. in 222

Lee Myung-gi was a morally grey man. Throughout the 37th Squid Game, he wasn't afraid to use deception and logic to achieve his goals of protecting Kim Jun-hee and winning the prize money. However, despite his best efforts to protect Jun-hee and get her to trust him again, in the end she detested him even more than she did before the games due to his willingness to kill even people close to her for extra money.

Myung-gi is capable of committing heinous acts with little remorse. Early on, he was solely focused on protecting Jun-hee and getting her out of the games. However, after he murders Thanos in self-defense, something seems to snap inside of him. During Hide and Seek, he alongside his former enemy Nam-gyu murder as many hiders as possible to increase the prize money. Myung-gi even kills Cho Hyun-ju, who unbeknownst to him had just fought multiple seekers and risked her life just to protect his baby. In the final game, Sky Squid Game, he initially protects the baby from Im Jeong-dae's team and even murders multiple members to save her. However, he later has a mental breakdown on the final tower and threatens to kill his own baby out of paranoia Seong Gi-hun will betray him.

He's also someone who is overconfident with himself, thinking that everything will go well for him. That same arrogance makes him take impulsive decisions, with stuff like advertising a Crypto which would unknowingly turn out to be a scam, killing more Hiders than necessary in Hide and Seek, and even promising Jun-hee that they would both leave and that he'll invest into a better future for both, despite not being able to cover their debts at the moment.[4]

On the other hand, Myung-gi is not completely heartless and he genuinely does love Jun-hee till the end. Despite the fact he didn't know what the game was and that it was likely having a pregnant woman on his team would've been a hindrance and removed most chance of him finding a strong team, he still tries to convince Jun-hee to join his team during the Six-Legged Pentathlon. He also switched his vote to X during the second vote just for Jun-hee despite the fact his debt wasn't even nearly cleared yet. He even fought for Team X during the bathroom fight to defend Park Min-su and tried killing Thanos after he mocked Jun-hee. In Sky Squid Game, he apologised to Park Min-su before killing him and was willing to drastically lower his chances of winning to side with Seong Gi-hun.

Formerly a cryptocurrency trader, Lee Myung-gi ran a channel called "MG Coin", where he advised his followers on cryptocurrency investing. He had also been dating a woman named Kim Jun-hee, who got pregnant sometime in early 2024. The two had a positive relationship and mutually agreed to abort Jun-hee's baby. Shortly thereafter, Myung-gi advertised a brand-new coin known as "Dalmatian" and advised everyone to invest every last cent into it. The cryptocurrency proved to be a hoax, and everyone who had invested in it, including the rapper Thanos, his friend Nam-gyu, and even his girlfriend Kim Jun-hee, lost ₩15.2 billion collectively when Dalmatian's inventors took the money and fled. Myung-gi became a fugitive from the law after this and was wanted for fraud and violating several investing and communication regulations. Jun-hee ended their relationship after he fled and shut down his YouTube channel. Because she was pregnant, she tried to stay in contact with him, but he completely stopped contacting her for six months, leading her to suspect that he had been covertly killed.

On September 1, 2024, The Recruiter approached Myung-gi in a subway station. In return for money, he encouraged him to play a game of ddakji, striking Myung-gi when he lost. He then handed him a contact card so he could go to the Squid Games. Unaware that she had also received a contact card, he disregarded Jun-hee's call. Myung-gi chose to participate in the games in an attempt to gain money because he owed ₩1.8 billion.

He asks for his wallet and phone during the 37th Squid Game because he needs to check the cryptocurrency market. The guard then explains his scheme and ensuing debt while playing the video of him getting slapped. Thanos (Player 230) and Nam-gyu (Player 124), who lost a lot of money as a result of Myung-gi's cryptocurrency swindle, approach him after he signs the consent form. At Myung-gi, Thanos loses his rage and snatches his collar, but he is calmed down before he can attack.

After taking his player picture and starting Red Light, Green Light, Myung-gi becomes confused when Seong Gi-hun (Player 456) starts adamant that everyone would perish. He votes "O" to proceed with the games after passing.

"Six Legs" & "One More Game"

Myung-gi completing Jegi. Later, he is confronted once more by Thanos and Nam-gyu, who advise him to earn a lot of money so that he may reimburse them for the stolen goods. After Thanos shoves Myung-gi's food in his face after Nam-gyu grabs it, the altercation turns physical. Myung-gi is successfully overpowered by Thanos and Nam-gyu, but unfortunately Hwang In-ho (Player 001) intervenes and finishes off the attackers.

While he is sitting by himself, Jun-hee walks up to him and says she is also participating in the games. She is shocked that he was unaware of this and calls him conceited. Myung-gi is annoyed to hear that she did not have the abortion he had anticipated, and she reminds him that he also conned her when he wonders why she is here. Jun-hee claims that because he voted "O", he is keeping her from leaving and that she doesn't want to make amends with him. Listen, I'm sorry I never called. Things were really rough for me too. You know how many lunatics were out to get me after everything that went down.

Myung-gi apologizing to Jun-hee for ghosting her in "Six Legs" Myung-gi tries to partner up with Jun-hee when it is revealed that the upcoming game would be one with teams, but she declines. Myung-gi ends up teaming up with Players 313, 050, 241 and 249, he plays Jegi and his team manages to survive. He is relieved when Jun-hee comes back alive. Because of her, he switches his vote to "X", even though "O" still receives a sizable majority. Myung-gi is confronted by Thanos, Nam-gyu, and Gyeong-su in the men's restroom for choosing to vote "X" even though the prize money was insufficient to cover his debt. When Thanos claims that Myung-gi is his slave and that he must reimburse him after receiving the full prize, Myung-gi insults his memory, pointing out that in this case, Thanos would be dead. Infuriated, Thanos prepared to attack him but backs off after In-ho, Jung-bae and Dae-ho enter. The latter two offer to protect Myung-gi case he's bullied again, although he insist he's fine.

"O X"

That's not true, the door was gonna lock! The second you went out, they would've shot you, like they shot her! Then we'd be down, and the rest of your team would have died too! I saved your lives! Don't you understand that?!

Lee Myung-gi telling Cho Hyun-ju it wasn't his fault Kim Young-mi got killed in the fourth round in O X

The first two rounds of "Mingle" are successfully completed by Myung-gi, in the second round he and Player 154 saving Park Gyeong-seok and Player 071 at the last second. Myung-gi watches

Jun-hee and her group joke about her pregnancy from a distance and he's relieved to see that she is alive. He completes the third round and in the fourth round, Young-mi, a member of Hyun-ju's group, is unintentionally knocked to the ground during the subsequent round when the number is 6. He immediately runs to take her place to save his life and the lives of others, indirectly killing Young-Mi. After Young-mi was shot, Hyun-ju and the others were completely broken for her death, and Myung-gi felt miserable as well, for an innocent person was killed. Hyun-ju is upset and blames Myung-gi, but Myung-gi declares that it's not his fault and that it was the only option for them to survive, so he saved them. When he tells the others to speak up, Jun-hee and Dae-ho reluctantly admit that there wasn't enough time to save Young-mi. After the round, Myung-gi thanks Jun-hee for defending him, but she tells him that she only did it because he was right. In the fifth round, when it's announced that the number is 2, Myung-gi immediately grabs Jun-hee and rushes her into a room to save her.

After everyone has gone back to the dorm, Myung-gi takes Jun-hee to a corner and tells her that he wants to be with her, asking her to give him a chance to be a good boyfriend and a good father. He says that since the "X" team is probably going to win the vote, their combined prize money will pay off his debt. But as he starts discussing his new investment plan, Jun-hee thinks he will just take her money and leave her and the child behind. When Thanos and Nam-gyu saw the couple holding hands while conversing, they conclude that they were probably intimately linked. Myung-gi votes "X", sticking to his strategy, but the vote is tied. Xs, over here! These two were just threatening one of us a second ago. They're pressuring someone to change sides so they'll win the vote!

Lee Myung-gi telling Team X about Thanos and Nam-gyu forcing Park Min-su change his vote in O X Myung-gi intervenes to protect Park Min-su after he sees Thanos and Nam-gyu trying to coerce Min-su into altering his vote while he is in the restroom. "X" vs. "O" splits the bathroom as he starts yelling that they are using force to change the vote. By making fun of his connection with Jun-hee and pointing out how big her stomach is, Thanos intimidates Myung-gi. Then he threatens to cut off his finger, give it to her, and ask her out if Myung-gi doesn't change his vote. Myung-gi tries to strike Thanos in vengeance, but he avoids him, and soon after, everyone starts fighting. After choking Myung-gi, Thanos overpowers him and starts striking him while declaring that his life would be his. Myung-gi kills Thanos by stabbing him in the throat with the fork from their supper. He is shocked by this deed, pushes Thanos' body away, and locks himself in a bathroom stall, sobbing as the battle rages outside.

"Friend or Foe"

Myung-gi and the survivors of the fight return to the Dormitory and the teams do a player count to find out which team lost the most players. Jun-hee sees Myung-gi among the survivors and sees that he's covered of Thanos' blood. When he gets back to his bed, Jun-hee tells Myung-gi to hide when the lights go out and not do anything no matter what happens, Myung-gi nods at her and Jun-hee tells him to wipe Thanos's blood off himself, which Myung-gi does. With this, Myung-gi survives the Special Game. In the morning, he witnesses Gi-hun and a handful of X players pretend to be dead in order to take the guards weapons. Gi-hun's group asks for volunteers after they successfully defeat the guards, Myung-gi almost joins but declines after Jun-hee quietly shakes her head. Despite not being a direct participant in the revolt, he survives after it has ended.

"Keys and Knives"

When Gi-hun is returned in a coffin with a pink bow, he witnesses as Gi-hun is lifted out and watches the piggy bank fill with the earnings that has amassed from the players that died during the riot and the revolt as well as Gi-hun trying to have the guards kill him out of grief.

In the next game, which is revealed as Hide and Seek, where the Red team has to find members of the Blue Team and kill them, while the Blue Team has to hide for thirty minutes or find an exit, Myung-gi notices Jun-hee is on the Red Team and tries to persuade her to switch places with him so that he can avoid death by pressuring her to kill him and be able to complete the game. When she seemingly refuses, he sincerely offers to let her kill him so she can pass the game and survive. Before the game starts, she hands him the knife, making him be on the Red Team, while Jun-hee joins Cho Hyun-ju and Jang Geum-ja in surviving.

Before the red team enters, he's approached by Nam-gyu, who is high on the pills from the cross he took from Thanos' corpse. Despite the two being enemies, Nam-gyu forgets about their rivalry and suggests that they team up during the game. At first, Myung-Gi refuses, but soon agrees and they enter into a temporary alliance.

"The Starry Night"

After entering, Nam-gyu offers Myung-gi a drug but he refuses. They find and chase after Player 235 and despite his pleas to spare his life since he had a wife and children, they kill him with a manic look and take his key. After some time, they find Player 411 and also maniacally and mercilessly kill him and take his key and complete the game. Myung-gi starts off to find Jun-hee, being terrified when he thinks he hears her being murdered and threatening to kill Nam-gyu if the latter harms her after the latter promises to "protect" Jun-hee with Myung-gi. Nam-gyu says that they were not forbidden to kill more members of the blue team and Myung-gi was overcome with greed and the desire to kill to increase the prize fund. The two take out two of Seon-nyeo's cult (Player 006 and Player 447). Myung-gi and Nam-gyu nearly find Im Jeong-dae, who disguised himself as a dead player in order to hide, but an impatient Myung-gi instructs Nam-gyu to keep moving. After the game approaches its end, when Cho Hyun-ju is about to tell Jun-hee that she found an exit, Myung-gi suddenly stabs her twice in the back and kills her, only to look inside the room to see Jang Geum-ja and Jun-hee alive but having recently gave birth to their daughter. He's immediately remorseful upon realizing what he's done, tearing up in regret. In order to protect her, Geum-ja and their daughter from a Nam-gyu, he tells him the room is empty and leaves.

"It's Not Your Fault"

After the game, Myung-gi awaits for Jun-hee's return and is relieved to see that she survived. He's reluctant to approach her, due to guilt of killing Hyun-ju. During the night from afar, he watches her with their daughter but maintains his distance. As the players vote, he's shown to be saddened listening to Geum-ja's plea to the O voters to end the games and continues to vote X. In the morning, he is shocked to find that Geum-ja hung herself in the night and watches as Jun-hee is saddened and horrified by her demise, with Myung-gi even shedding a tear himself. In the next game, Jump Rope, Myung-gi watches as Gi-hun goes second, after Nam-gyu, carrying Jun-hee's baby across as he narrowly survives and makes it, much to Myung-gi's relief and happiness. More player's attempt to cross but are then pushed off by Player 096.

Jun-hee. Let's go. We've got to move before it's too late. What are you doing to do then? Just sit here and die? I know you're angry with me-

Lee Myung-gi trying to fix his relationship with Kim Jun-hee and help her pass Jump Rope in 222

After Gi-hun takes care of Player 096 by throwing him off the bridge so the other's can make it through, Myung-gi notices that Jun-hee was remaining behind due to her fractured ankle from Hide and Seek, which would effectively make it where she is unable to cross alone. Myung-gi approaches her one last time and attempts to lend his help to try and redeem their relationship, but she coldly pushes him away because of the murder of her friend and for his greed. Having no choice but to leave her as she announces that she wants nothing more to do with his existence, he crosses the bridge soon after and witnesses as Jun-hee ends up tossing herself over the edge due to her being unable to cross in time and avoid the rope. Myung-gi is left heartbroken and saddened by this sight and tragedy, breaking down into tears, but maintains his distance from her baby, who is now being cared for by Gi-hun, who promised to be her guardian throughout the remaining games as his final promise to Jun-hee.

Later, Myung-gi returns to the dormitory hall and witnesses as Jun-hee's baby is instated in the games as Player 222, taking her mother's place, which enrages the other players. Just before the players could mob and kill both Gi-hun and the baby, with Myung-gi watching helplessly before standing up to intervene and protect them, the guards luckily stop them from committing any further action. The remaining players are then treated to a final feast as well as a vote to end or continue the games. Myung-gi votes to continue and watches as a guard feeds his daughter baby formula to keep her fed and alive. He later falls asleep from the heavy eating and drinking. Although Gi-hun was initially offered a chance by In-ho to slaughter the remaining players, Myung-gi included, for his and the baby's freedom and victory, he turns it down and refuses due to seeing Kang Sae-byeok's ghost.

The following morning, the players are gathered to play the final game: Sky Squid Game. The remaining players end up on the Square tower, where the rules are explained to them: each player has to push a button on the tower and then spend fifteen minutes deciding who to push off the tower and kill as a sacrifice. At least one player has to die in order for the rest to move to the adjacent Triangle tower, and the same rules apply on the Triangle to reach Circle, and then once more to win. Myung-gi joins players 100, 203, 336, 353 and 039 as they decide to democratically vote how they will kill another player, deciding to team up and split the money six ways as players 125 (Min-su), 222 (Jun-hee's baby), and 456 (Gi-hun) await their fates. When the team initially votes to kill 222, Myung-gi makes them reconsider in order to buy Gi-hun and the baby time, and points out Min-su, who was already having withdrawals from drug abuse. They all agree but Myung-gi sits back as the others proceed to corner him towards the edge. Unable to get close enough to push Min-su off without being dragged off as well, Myung-gi takes matters into his own hands as he grabs the nearby removable pole, sincerely apologizes to Min-su as he admits he didn't want to kill him and proceeds to finally push Min-su to his death as he is distracted by his hallucinations (thinking the pole is Se-mi), looking down at his body in sorrow afterwards.

The surviving eight players proceed to the Triangle tower, with the six players trying to devise a plan to remove the baby from Gi-hun's clutches as they wished to kill 222 first, then kill Gi-hun on the Circle tower in order to ensure that the six members of their team will survive. Their repeated attempts to remove the baby from Gi-hun fail as they try to convince him to let her go while also having one of them be tied to a wrapped strand of jackets for protection. Finally when player Lee Seung-won tries to struggle against Gi-hun, Myung-gi takes the opportunity to take the pole from the tower's center, ordering Gi-hun to move as he pushes Seung-won to his death, defecting over to Gi-hun's side as both of them are armed. He then announces that he was the biological father of 222, much to everyone's surprise. He also admits to Gi-hun that he had planned to escape with both Jun-hee and the baby, but it changed when she died. In order to try and forge a final alliance by brutally beating Player 039 to near death and use him as a "lunchbox" (sacrificial pawn): basically using him as a sacrifice by dragging him to the Circle tower and tossing him over the edge to his death, Gi-hun and Myung-gi refuse to bend to this level, causing the remaining players to fight.

Myung-gi ends up struggling against Yun-tae, Yun-tae tried to take the pole from him and initially gained the upper hand in the fight, and tried to push him off the tower but he ended up at the edge of the tower and began to beg for mercy but Myung-gi was overcome by even greater greed and he was not going to spare anyone. When Gi-hun finally kills Player 203, the two surround Player 100 (Im Jeong-dae), where he continuously tries to convince them to use the "lunchbox". Myung-gi tells Im Jeong-dae that they already have 15 billion and that he is not participating and, blinded by the win, mercilessly pushes him off the tower. As the second round ends, they then turn around to see Player 039 crawling towards the other side of the triangle platform. Myung-gi tries to convince Player 039 that they weren't planning to throw him off in the final round, pleading with 039 to talk. Player 039 refuses to talk, however, and refuses to believe that he won't be thrown off. He then commits suicide by falling off the platform, leaving Myung-gi in shock as he turns to face Gi-hun.

"Humans Are..."

Do you know why I chose to go in this fucking hellhole? 'Cause I was constantly getting fucked over by guys like you!

Lee Myung-gi telling Seong Gi-hun why he played in the games in "Humans Are..." Now with the three players remaining: Gi-hun, the baby, and himself, he makes a play that is almost guaranteed to have him win: he goes ahead to the circle tower and collects the final pole to use, and then traps Gi-hun on the bridge leading to the circle tower. As the announcement gives the players five minutes to make it across to the other tower before the bridge closes, Myung-gi refuses to move, despite Gi-hun offering to sacrifice himself on the next tower so that both him (Myung-gi) and his daughter could survive. He then insists on Gi-hun setting the baby down on the bridge and backing up so that he could pick her up with the pole and bring her over to his tower. Gi-hun realizes that he intends to kill both him and the baby so that he could take all of the money for himself, and keeps refusing, but when he realizes he was nearly out of time, he relents and sets the baby down so that Myung-gi could retrieve her. However, as he is distracted holding her for the first time, Gi-hun grabs the knife he possessed and leapt across at the last second, prompting the two to engage in one final fight for survival. Myung-gi threatens to drop the baby as he holds her over the edge, although he has an emotional breakdown showing he doesn't want to kill his daughter but feels it's necessary to ensure he survives. After Gi-hun backs off, Myung-gi gently sets his daughter down before attacking the former with the knife. However, neither men notice the button to start the game as they fight and despite Myung-gi nearly getting the advantage, Gi-hun is able to disarm him.

Fate

Myung-gi's dead body.

Both Myung-gi and Gi-hun end up tumbling over the edge of the tower during their fight, with Gi-hun holding onto an exposed rebar on the edge with one hand and the other was holding his jacket, while Myung-gi was also holding onto Gi-hun's finalist suit jacket in an attempt to save his life. Despite Gi-hun trying to save Myung-gi by pulling him up, the fabric was beginning to tear due to Myung-gi still holding under his weight. The jacket rips in two, sending him plummeting hundreds of meters to his death below. He placed 3rd in the competition.

Trivia

According to Hwang Dong-hyuk, Myung-gi was genuinely trying to protect Gi-hun and the baby at the start of the final round, planning to sacrifice Player 039 so all 3 could survive together. However, his paranoia of Gi-hun betraying him led to him snapping and threatening his child. He also confirmed the reason he accused Gi-hun of sleeping with Jun-hee was because he was trying to convince himself the child wasn't his so the guilt would hurt less. According to Hwang, before 039's suicide, "Myung-gi never even considered killing his child".

After Player 039 chose to commit, Myung-gi was left with no other choice but to save himself from Gi-hun, and risk the baby's life, as he lacks trust/faith in other people due to being tricked and scammed previously.

Despite his actions, Hwang Dong-hyuk said he didn't consider Myung-gi someone "inherently evil" but rather someone more human who constantly makes bad decisions (Si-wan himself would later come to agree with this view) and told Si-wan that "Myung-gi has a good side too", even admitting he wanted Yim Si-wan to play him so he could "come across as good". Hwang said Myung-gi is able to justify his actions by telling himself that despite what he does, there are still worse people around him.

Him and 125 are the 2 players to have voted X 4 times and O 2 times. This is most likely a coincidence.

While Myung-gi threatens his child, there's a minor translation error. The subtitles claim he says "I'll do it!" and he says as such in the English dub, but in the original Korean, he says "I can do it!" This highlighted Myung-gi's regret/reluctance at what he's about to do.

Both Im Si-wan and Jo Yu-ri have stated in separate interviews that they don't actually think Myung-gi would have dropped the baby in Sky Squid Game. Even Hwang himself admitted after he saw Si-wan's performance he "wasn't sure" if Myung-gi could've done it.

Myung-gi, Kim Jun-hee, and Park Gyeong-seok are the only players introduced to the audience before the games in season 2. Ironically, in season 1 the only players shown as Seong Gi-hun, Kang Sae-byeok and Cho Sang-woo, the final 3 survivors of season 1.

The 3 are also the players focused on after everyone completes Red Light Green Light; which also happens with the major characters in season 1.

Myung-gi and Park Min-su are the only X voters after the Special Game who willingly changed their vote to O.

Myung-gi shares some similarities with some other characters:

Cho Sang-woo: Both are calculating and intelligent players who fell into debt due to investing (futures for Sang-woo, crypto market for Myung-gi), both are the first players who have their name and debt shown onscreen, and make tough decisions to save others (Sang-woo pushing the glassmaker and Myung-gi locking Young-mi out). They also kill their allies - Myung-gi killed Hyun-ju and Min-su while Sang-woo killed Ali and Sae-byeok. Like Sang-woo, who is saddened for having to kill Ali, Myung-gi is also saddened after pushing Min-su off the pillar and then look at his corpse solemnly, and both Sang-woo and Myung-gi protected Ali and Min-su prior to having to kill them. They're also the last players that Gi-hun faces in the final game, in which Gi-hun ultimately wins despite trying to save both of their lives. The difference is that Sang-woo was originally an ally and teammate to the heroes and becomes more antagonistic as the games progress while Myung-gi was never in the same group as the main characters. Another difference is that Sang-woo was willing to sacrifice his life so Gi-hun could win and take the prize money, while Myung-gi would've done it for Jun-hee but was unwilling to sacrifice his life to save even his own baby daughter, much less Gi-hun.

Kang Sae-byeok: His rivalry with Thanos is similar to Sae-byeok's rivalry with Jang Deok-su, and both Sae-byeok and Myung-gi become finalists. They both also vote for the game to continue and prefer to work alone rather than as a group, even rejecting the heroes offering to protect them from their bullies, and even both placed 3rd overall in their respective games. But their personalities are different, as Sae-byeok acts cold and uncaring but is actually caring and kind, whilst Myung-gi acts friendly, but later turns out to be cold and ruthless. And unlike Sae-byeok who remains heroic and becomes an ally of Gi-hun after slowly learning to trust others, Myung-gi falls into the path of evil and has to fight against Gi-hun in the final game that ends with his death because he never manages to trust other people (except possibly at the end when Gi-hun tried to save him). Another difference is that Myung-gi participates in the final game while Sae-byeok doesn't, as she was killed by Sang-woo before the game.

Hwang In-ho: Both started off as well-respected individuals (a police officer and popular YouTuber) who ended up losing their reputation, though for In-ho he accepted bribes while Myung-gi was scammed. Both end up joining the Squid Game's to cover their debt, with their lover being a primary motivation for them; In-ho sought to win and help his pregnant wife while Myung-gi tried to help Jun-hee (his pregnant ex) escape the games so they could start a better life together. However, both end up failing, as In-ho's wife died outside the games while Myung-gi watches Jun-hee commit suicide. This ends up being the last straw for both of them to fall into villainy. They also fall into villainy because they were corrupted by someone (Nam-gyu for Myung-gi, Oh Il-nam for In-ho). Also, both are shown to love their kids even after their fall to villainy, with In-ho being absolutely furious when Thanos tells him to "take care of his own kids" as Thanos unknowingly insulted his child. While Myung-gi tries to protect his daughter throughout the final game. Ironically, despite In-ho wanting his child to survive, it tragically died with his wife. Meanwhile, Myung-gi reluctantly tried to kill his daughter but instead she survives, outlasting both her parents. Finally, both Myung-gi and In-ho become finalist, but In-ho won the prize money while Myung-gi lose and die.

There are also some slight similarities between Myung-gi (specifically in Six Legs) and Player 271. Both have their meals taken from them (by Thanos and Nam-gyu/Deok-su) and initiate a fight to take it back, but both end up losing badly, kicked and beaten up. Player 271 is kicked to death by Deok-su. However, In-ho intervenes to stop the fight, preventing Myung-gi's fate from being like Player 271's.

Lee Myung-gi and Kim Yeong-sam were recruited by a recruiter at Jeonggak Station at different times.

Three of the characters whose name and debt amount were displayed on the TV being revealed to the players in 001 were killed by Myung-gi. Cho Hyun-ju (Player 120), Thanos (Player 230), and Im Jeong-dae (Player 100).

Myung-gi was the only one who was shown in the August trailer only once, revealing the numbers of the participants.

The crypto scam is similar to a real-life 2021 Squid Game cryptocurrency scam when a group used the series' popularity to create a cryptocurrency called Squid Coin before rug-pulling and running away with millions of dollars. It is unknown if the Dalmatian coin incident was inspired by this specific incident or other similar scams.

Hwang In-ho and Lee Myung-gi's actors had coincidentally appeared in another film, "Emergency Declaration"

Coincidentally, Kang-ho Song's, an actor in that movie, character name in the movie as "In-ho".

Myung-gi was one of the last three players during the final round of Sky Squid Game, alongside Seong Gi-hun and his baby.

Myung-gi is the only player to appear in every episode of season 3 alongside Gi-hun. He's also one of the only main character's to do so, alongside Gi-hun, In-ho, Jun-ho, No-eul and Gyeong-seok.

Alongside Gyeong-seok, Myung-gi has the most appearances of any player in the series aside from Gi-hun and (if he's considered a player) In-ho; the two appear in all but one of season 2's episodes and in every episode of season 3. Considering Gyeong-seok's time as a guard trying to escape in season 3, Myung-gi has the most appearances as a player in the series behind Gi-hun as well.

Most likely only the players in the game Sky Squid Game (not including Park Min-su, Lee Seung-won and Kang No-eul), Hwang In-ho and the VIPs know that he is the biological father of Kim Jun-hee's baby.

Myung-gi already had his debt settled with the amount he would get from the split, though he still voted to stay, glaring at the prize money before voting.

Out of the pairs of players who switched vests in Hide and Seek (Jang Geum-ja and Park Yong-sik, Lee Myung-gi and Kim Jun-hee, and Players 192 and 440), only Myung-gi and Jun-hee did not kill the person they had switched vests with.

Myung-gi was the last O voter to die.

He was also technically the last initial player of the 37th Squid Game to be eliminated, excluding Seong Gi-hun and his baby, as Gi-hun was a returning player and the baby became a player late into the competition.

Myung-gi is presumably the last player to be recruited by The Recruiter in Seoul, as Choi Woo-seok and Kim Jeong-rae began following him immediately after Myung-gi was handed the business card. The other players from other areas of South Korea are Recruited by Other Recruiters.

Myung-gi was similar to Sang-woo from Season 1, as they were both wanted for fraud.

Myung-gi placed 3rd overall in the 37th Squid Game, mimicking his player number, 333.

Myung-gi and Sae-byeok both placed third in their respective seasons.

Myung-gi was the last person to join his pentathlon team, as the other four can be seen together without him.

The only times Myung-gi was seen voting was only when he voted O, while all the times he voted X were off-screen.

Out of 455 people (excluding himself) only 2 people knew him, Players 124 and 230 (excluding 222 because it was simply it's ex-girlfriend and not a subscriber). Doing some math, about 1 person out of 228 would know him. Dividing the population of South Korea (51.75 milion) by 228, we can assume that he had about 227.000 subscribers on his YouTube channel.

It's possible that Myung-gi was the player that VIP John was going to bet on, as his number was the most similar to Jun-hee's after the fourth game.

Myung-gi is the only person who voted X after Hide and Seek to then survive and pass the Jump Rope game.

In the bathroom fight scene in Behind the Scenes, we can see an unknown extra that was Im Si-wan's stunt double.

Both Myung-gi and Gyeong-seok were seen before the games and during Mingle teamed up in the second round and coincidentally their season 1 counterparts shared the same icon.

Myung-gi had the second-highest kill count out of every finalist of the 37th Squid Game, at 9.

He also had the highest kill count of Hiders, at around 4 known victims.

He also had the third-highest kill count out of every known finalists, beaten by Hwang In-ho and Seong Gi-hun.

Lee Myung-gi and Cho Sang-woo are the only people revealed by the guards to the players how they got in debt.

Despite being a main character in seasons 2 and 3, Myung-gi never had a close ally during the games. For example, Jun-hee rarely accepted his help and generally avoided him, while others like Nam-gyu and In-ho were merely situational allies.

He is the last player in the 33X range to be eliminated in the 37th squid game.

He is the last player in the 3XX rage to be eliminated in the 37th squid game.

Since Lee Myung-gi placed 3rd in the competition, his 33rd Squid Game and 28th Squid Game counterparts was Player 067 and Player 3??.

Myung-gi knew that Thanos had been the runner-up in Rap Battle Underground as well as that he lost due to forgetting his lyrics in the final show, meaning he was possibly a fan of Thanos' music before the games, or atleast knew about him before the games.

His example showed that as he progressed, he became more and more greedy, killing for his own benefit, and what greed can do to you.

Myung-gi's killing of Thanos was indirectly the reason he became a finalist and 3rd place in Squid Game through a sequence of events:

His killing of Thanos made him desensitized or at least more comfortable with murdering other contestants, leading to him agreeing to murder more hiders. This led to Hyun-ju's death and other players.

Hyun-ju's death led to Jun-hee's distrust of Myung-gi, preventing him from touching the baby.

The lack of contact made the finalist not assume Myung-gi is the father, and Myung-gi voted O to blend in.

Myung-gi's murder of Min-su was possible because of the previous murders.

And just like Min-su, Myung-gi had no hesitation to murder the other O finalists including Jeong-dae. Player 039, who was injured, fell due to Myung-gi's clear intent to murder him at the final platform.

Controversially, Myung-gi held his own baby on the edge of the cliff due to his desensitization and greed, leading to his own death at the final platform when trying to kill Gi-hun.

Myung-gi and Player 197 were the only X players to fight in the Bathroom Fight, while also making it to season 3, since all the other players died in the Special Game or the Rebellion.

In an interview prior to Season 3's release, Im Si-wan said that Myung-gi would turn from someone who you don't wanna be friends with into someone you should actively stay away from, a clear foreshadowing of his behavior post Hide and Seek in Season 3.[5]

Player 389

Player 391

Player 390 was a participant in the 33rd Squid Game.

History[]

Player 390 was in debt and then a man played Ddakji with him. He got a card and was invited to the Squid Games, where he called the number on the card. A van came to him and when he went in, he was knocked unconscious by gas. He was then transported to The Island. He woke up in the dormitory, confused. He then heard the guards tell the rules and saw the Players complaining about the game. He saw them get slapped on-screen with their debts revealed, and watched the fight between Kang Sae-byeok and Jang Deok-su. He then walked to the first game, Red Light, Green Light. He saw Player 324 die unknowingly, and saw Player 250 check on Player 324, panicked, and got shot. He then saw Player 306 get something on her face and screamed, and she got shot. A mass panic occurred, and Player 390 also panicked.

Fate[]

He died in the mass panic of Red Light, Green Light.

History[]

Player 430 was in a heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money, After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract and took his photo and entered the first game called Red Light, Green Light.

Fate[]

Player 430 was probably among the players eliminated during the initial chaos that occurred with Player 324's death, because he isn't seen after the initial chaos.

Trivia[]

IMDb listed that Player 430 was portrayed by Nick Tonz, though there isn't proof there is. This is likely an error on IMDb's part.

History[]

Player 430 was in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance of turning her life around. Even after Kang Mi-na is shot and players start running for their lives, Player 430 manages to stay still and survive the initial chaos. Eventually, she crosses the finish line, completing the first game. After returning to the dormitory, she votes O to continue the games. In Six Legs, Player 430 is seen cheering for other teams. She teamed up with Player 218, Player 316, Player 251 and Player 042. They were able to pass, as she can be spotted in the dormitory after it ends. There, she votes, once again, to keep the games going. Player 430 makes it through the first round of Mingle, and can be seen before the second one, which she also passed.

Fate[]

After the third round finishes and the doors are locked, Player 430 is seen laying on the Mingle platform, presumably after being pushed by someone else. She is then shot offscreen for not finding a room in time, and her number is announced in the list of eliminated players. It's also possible to see her corpse in the same spot, while the guards clean the arena for the next round.

The Count

Six-Legged Pentathlon

This game is an interlude game taking place between The Count and the Six-Legged Pentathlon. The decision of this game was made by Raul Gibson (Player 431).

Eliminations include Players 107, 285 and 286.

Game information[]

For test of The Count, the Front Man asked the Players that 2 volunteers were needed and Raul and Jacob Gibson (Players 431 and 432; identical twins) volunteered. Raul became the captain of Team O, Jacob became the captain of Team X, the 456 players were divided between the 2 teams (228 on each team) and The Count took place. Team X won The Count and survived while Team O lost and was eliminated.

Jacob was celebrated for giving Team X the victory, but Player 432 was sad because he thought that he had lost his brother. But it turned out that from 456 players, 227 were eliminated and 229 survived; being Team X... and Raul. The Front Man revealed to Player 431 that, for having had the courage to volunteer, he would survive Team O's elimination, but there was a price.

Team X was escorted back to the Dormitory to rest and Jacob felt a little down about having to face his brother, but Simon Hipkin (Player 063) encouraged him to continue, for both brothers. After a while, the doors to the dorm's hangar opened... and Raul and a couple of Workers walked in. The Announcer revealed that, as a reward for volunteering, Raul could return to the dorm, which made Jacob happy. The twins reunited and Jacob introduced Raul to Team X.

Raul spoke to Jacob privately and revealed that the price for his immunity was eliminating others players. Raul had 1 hour to eliminate 3 players, or the twins would be eliminated. Raul must tell 3 players, "Player [number], good luck in the games." to eliminate them. Raul decided to eliminate players who had bad intentions to win the prize or who were threats in the game, because despite being willing to eliminate others to save himself and his brother, Raul had a heart and didn't want to eliminate someone with good intentions for the prize.

Raul started talking to the players to find out what they would do if they won the prize money and most of them had intentions related to family and donations, so Raul couldn't eliminate them. While speaking with Jackie Mitchell (Player 107), Raul discovered that Jackie planned to spend the money on a party, so he chose her for elimination, since her intention was the least noble of all. Raul considered eliminating Mark Levy (Player 100), who wanted to use the money for a wedding. But upon hearing that Mark wanted to use the prize for things like having the best wedding possible, showing his fiancée, Rachel, that he loved her, giving money to his parents and having money for whatever he and Rachel needed, Raul couldn't eliminate Mark, since Mark was a very good man.

With 5 minutes remaining, Jacob was informed by a Manager that he and his brother had 5 minutes to make a decision. Raul considered choosing either Bryce and Blake Holliman (Players 285 and 286; twins) or Zoe and Curt Stinton (Players 369 and 370; father and daughter), since both pairs were related and had trusted allies among them. Finally, Raul decided to eliminate Bryce and Blake. Raul felt bad about having to do what he was doing, but he was willing to do it if it was to save himself and Jacob.

At the end of the hour, it was announced that Players 107, 285 and 286 had been eliminated, passing from 229 players to 226, but the eliminator left anonymous. However, many players quickly caught on that Raul must have done it in return for reentering the game.

Player 434

Player 433 was in high debt. He was approached by a man and he offered to play Ddakji with him, whoever wins gets money. He possibly failed many times at the game but eventually won. He then saw an open van at the same location he was at. He went in the van and saw other people, unconscious. Due to the sleeping gas, he was knocked unconscious, too. While being unconscious, he was transported to The Island where the annual 33rd Squid Game and the Squid Games would be hosted. he was changed in his outfit with his number "433". He then woke up in a room with 455 other players. Visibly confused, he saw the players complain and saw their debts revealed, along with a video of them getting slapped. He listened to the guards and the guards clearing the players doubts. He then signed his contract and went up the Stairs. He then listened to the instructions to take his picture, and he took his picture, which would be his icon. He was then taken to the 1st game.

Fate[]

When Player 324 was caught moving on a red light after betting with Player 250 as to whoever reaches the end first gets 1 million won, he got shot. Player 250 got confused and on the next green light he moved to Player 324's corpse and told him to "stop with the act". He then coughed up blood and Player 250 got scared, running away on the red light. He got shot in the chest and his blood splattered all over Player 306's face. Player 306 got scared and wondered what was on her face. She realized it was blood after rubbing her face with her hands and the hands getting blood too. She screamed and got shot in the head for moving. This caused a mass panic among a lot of players, and Player 433 was one of the players to panic. He was running to the doors and got shot at some point in the game.

Mistakes[]

History[]

Player 435 suffered a severe amount of debt, unable to pay it off. He was then approached by a man, who offered him to play Ddakji. And if he won, he would get a handsome cash prize of 100k won. He fail and get slapped repeatedly a lot of times, but eventually win and recieves his money. After that, he was given a strange business card with a phone number on it with the specific date to contact it and a location. After dialing the number at the specified time and location, a van then picked him up. He entered the van, saw the rest of the unconscious players, and were knocked out by an unknown gas. He then woke up in a large dormitory with 455 other players. Confused, he woke up from his bed and witnessed the fight between Kang Sae-byeok and Jang Deok-su from a far. When the Pink Guards stepped in and stopped the fight, the TV shows multiple players being slapped. Convinced that Player 435 will recieve the prize money, he signed the contract, had his photo taken and then proceeded to the first game; Red Light, Green Light. He was confused, and the arena was massive. But as the instructions were spoken by the announcer, he understood it clearly and made a bit of progress in the 1st game before the chaos erupted.

Fate[]

Following by the death of Player 306, a massive genocide began to emerge. With multiple players panicking and attempting to escape, Player 435 was one of those players who attempted to run. Unfortunately, he was shot early in the chaos, as we see his icon is already gone.

Player 436

Player 438

Player 437 suffered a severe amount of debt, unable to pay it off. They were then approached by a man, who offered them to play Ddakji. And if they won, they would get a handsome cash prize of 100k won. They fail and get slapped repeatedly a lot of times, but eventually win and receive their money. After that, they were given a strange business card with a phone number on it with the specific date to contact it and a location. After dialing the number at the specified time and location, a van then picked them up. They entered the van, saw the rest of the unconscious players, and were knocked out by an unknown gas. They then woke up in a large dormitory with 455 other players. Confused, they woke up from her bed and witnessed the fight between Kang Sae-byeok and Jang Deok-su from afar. When the Pink Guards stepped in and stopped the fight, the TV shows multiple players being slapped. Convinced that Player 437 will receive the prize money, they signed the contract, had their photo taken and then proceeded to the first game; Red Light, Green Light. They were confused, and the arena was massive. But as the instructions were spoken by the announcer, they understood it clearly and made a bit of progress in the 1st game before the chaos erupted.

Fate[]

Following by the death of Player 306, a massive genocide began to emerge. With multiple players panicking and attempting to escape, Player 437 was one of those players who attempted to run. Unfortunately, they were shot early in the chaos, as we see their icon is already gone.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 437 was portrayed by an unknown extra.

↑ Given that Cho Sang-woo was dropped off in the early morning hours of June 11 after the first game ended, it can be assumed that Red Light, Green Light took place no later than June 9 or 10, as the 33rd Squid Game is known to have started soon after Seong Ga-yeong's birthday on June 8.

History[]

Player 439 was most likely in huge debt and joined the Squid Games to pay it off. He woke up in a room with 454 other players and made his way to the first game, Red Light, Green Light. He survived the game thanks to Seong Gi-hun's advice and voted X in the first vote out of fear. However the Os won the vote and he made his way to the next game.

Fate[]

Even though he and his team were seen cheering because they passed the second game, they were still eliminated for not crossing the finish line in time.

Personality[]

Player 440 is a selfish and a greedy woman, she also kept on voting O many times and ignored other players' deaths, she and Player 394 also accused Gi-hun for lying to them when Gi-hun reveals himself as a former player, and mocked Dae-ho after claiming to be a Marine, which makes her very rude. While she didn't partake in the Special Game she didn't appear to show much remorse for anyone who was killed as in the revote she didn't appear fazed by the previous night's violence. Despite her rudeness and greed, she isn't completely heartless as she didn't believe she would be able to kill anyone herself and gave into 192's attempts to switch vests. Later, in Hide and Seek, she became timid because she knew that the seekers might arrive.

History[]

Player 440 was in large debt and decided to join the Squid Games. She woke up in a Dormitory along with 454 other players, she then proceeded sign a contract and take her photo. She survived the first game, Red Light, Green Light and voted O. She managed to survive the 2nd game, Six-Legged Pentathlon and also survived Mingle. During the third vote, she continued voting O and was present in the headcount after the Bathroom Fight. She doesn't participate in the Special Game and Gi-hun's rebellion. Player 440 remained staying in Team O after the tie breaking vote and she went to the next game with the other Players. It was unknown she mocked Gi-hun after the rebellion failed.

Fate[]

In Hide and Seek, she was originally part of the Red Team. Before the game had started, Player 192 convinces her to switch vests with him. During the game, around 18 minutes and 30 seconds into the game, he betrays her and stabs her in the stomach, killing her.

Trivia[]

Player 440 was initially meant to survive until Jump Rope. However, Hwang Dong-hyuk spontaneously decided that she should swap places with Player 192.

However, her number can still be seen on a plaque in the fifth game while 192 is absent.

Her actress' name is the same as Player 095's name, both being called Kim Young-mi.

She disappears after the Special Game in Season 2 and reappears in Season 3 after the failed Rebellion.

She would have been the third female surviving seeker if it was not changed.

Originally , she was supposed to passed Hide and Seek and killed Player 192, she would be the only player with 5 votes in O.

She was counted 33rd in the Team O headcount.

As Hide and Seek, began, she stood next to Hyun-ju. This may be a nod to the fact her actor shares her name with Hyun-ju's best friend, who by that point was dead.

Out of all the female members on her team, she is the only one who's actor's name doesn't end in 'eun.'

Mistakes[]

When Lee Myung-gi draws his blue ball, Player 440 is already seen on the red side. But right after she is shown waiting to draw her ball.

Behind the scenes[]

Player 440 was portrayed by Kim Young-mi.

Young-mi had asked to audition for the role an assistant director for the show, with whom she had previously worked with on the show "Badland Hunters". Around the same time, however, her brother had been diagnosed with a malignant brain tumor. Though she considered withdrawing from the show, both her brother, a fan of Squid Game, and the assistant director encouraged Young-mi to continue acting in the show. Her brother sadly passed away towards the end of filming.[2]

Kim Young-mi seems to be a lot more connected to her character, even giving her a name, Kim Mi-yeon, though this name is not canonical, rather just a fun name to give.

History[]

Player 441 was in tremendous debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. He was picked up by Squid Game staff and taken to the island where the games take place, where he woke up on a top bunk in a large room with 455 other people. He then signed a contract and had his photo taken before proceeding to the first game. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light Green Light, after most of the contestants had been wiped out. Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game should continue. He voted O but the majority voted no, so they were sent back home. However, he returned, along with most of the other players when the opportunity arose a few weeks later.

After surviving Red Light, Green Light, Player 441 was greatly shaken by the deaths of the other players, begging the Squid Game staff to let him go when they announced the results of the game. Afterwards, a vote was held. He voted to leave the games after a narrow majority of the players voted to terminate the games, however, Player 441 was sent home along with the rest of the players. He was one of many contestants that returned when the games later resumed.

Fate[]

History[]

Player 441 was struggling with financial problems. So The Recruiter approached him and played Ddakji with him. He received an invitation card and decided to join the Squid Games. He woke up in his bed in the dormitory with 454 other players. He signed the player consent form, took his photo, and proceeded to the first game Red Light, Green Light. He managed to cross the finish line in time and pass with 364 other participants. He decided to vote to end the games; received a X patch and stuck it on his chest. He grabbed his meal; ate his lunch in his bed, slept in his bed, and proceed to the next game Six-Legged Pentathlon. He teamed up with Player 366, Player 304, Player 252 and Player 271. Him and his team managed to cross the finish line in time and passed with 255 other people. After that, he decided to vote to end the games again. He slept in his bed, and then proceed to the next game Mingle. He stepped on the platform and waited for it to stop spinning. He passed the first round of Mingle

Like any other Player, Player 446 was in heavy debt and chose to enter the Squid Games to win money. After waking up in a large room with 455 other players, he signed a contract and took his photo. He managed to survive the first game, Red Light, Green Light, after more than half of the contestants were eliminated.

Afterwards, like everyone else, he was shaken by the deaths of the other contestants, when the prize money was finally revealed. A vote was held if the game would continue, and while he voted to stay, the majority voted no. However, those who were willing to return could, and he returned, along with most of the other players.

Fate[]

In the second game, Sugar Honeycombs, he failed cutting his dalgona, causing him to be shot by one of the soldiers in the right shoulder and killed.

Mistakes[]

Player 446 is the 9th player to vote and the screen showed that he voted X however he is seen onscreen later on voting O.

Another Player 446, who also portrays Player 014, is seen running towards the doors in Red Light, Green Light.

A female Player 446 could be seen in Sugar Honeycombs.

Player 446

Player 448

Before "Red Light, Green Light"

We know nothing about Player 447's life before joining the Squid Game. She was likely in debt and joined the games after playing Ddakji with The Recruiter.

"Red Light, Green Light"

Player 447 was taken by a van and transported to the island. After waking up with the other players, she made her first appearance in the dormitory before Red Light, Green Light. She can be seen listening to the guards' speech and signing a contract. Her photo was later taken, and she proceeded to the first game. She can be seen in Red Light, Green Light. She eventually passed the first game after surviving a lot of chaos.

"Hell"

Player 447 participated in the voting. She voted to stop the games. She eventually returned home after 100 more players had voted X, compared to 100 who had voted O.

"The Man with the Umbrella"

She returned to the games and proceeded to Sugar Honeycombs. She chose a triangle dalgona and can be seen waiting in line. She passed the second game just in time and is seen leaving the game area after the game ends.

"Stick to the Team"

After the game, Sugar Honeycombs, she can be seen watching the results of the second game with Player 019 and another player. She later survives the Special Game and a male Player 447 makes the next appearance in the white lobby. He can be seen sitting between Player 403 and Player 088 in the game area. Although He is then seen in Team Five, which was consisted entirely of men. His team was announced to play against Team 4, which was weaker in appearance, but managed to gain an advantage with strategic advice from Oh Il-nam. They were struggling to beat them, but the team leader Player 194 was able to rally their team, giving them enough strength to begin overpowering Team 4.

"A Fair World and Fate"

Just as Team 5 was on the verge of pulling Team 4 off the platform, Cho Sang-woo's quick thinking led to a last-minute plan of stepping forward. This move caused Player 447 and his teammates to fall from the platform, causing all of them to be eliminated. All their icons disappear off-screen.

Trivia

Both He and His counterpart from 37th Squid Game died being part of a team.

They usually tie their hair up during games and let it down again in the dormitory, unlike other players who leave it up once they tie it up.

Mistakes

Player 447 was portrayed by four different extras.

The first Player 447 is seen in a majority of his scenes.

The second one is seen in Red Light, Green Light. He is seen running to the doors.

The third one is seen in the Tug of War game area before the game begins.

And the fourth actor plays Player 447, when He competes against Team Four.

Player 447 shares His icon with Player 070.

Their icon is also reused in Player 005's player file.

Behind the scenes

Player 447 was portrayed by Kim Ran and three unknown extras.

Player 447 was in tremendous debt and decided to join the Squid Games. He woke up in a dormitory along with 454 other players, he then proceeded sign a contract and take his photo. He survived the first game, Red Light, Green Light, and voted to continue the games. During the 2nd game , he teamed up with Player 021, Player 029, Player 147, and Player 410. He and his team managed to pass the 2nd game with his team. He then proceeded to voted O, like he did before. He also survived Mingle and voted O for the third time.He later participated in Special Game and is seen rushing at Team X.He voted "O" again during the re-vote so he plays Hide and Seek, he eventually joined Seon-nyeo (Player 044)'s cult before the game started. He followed her most of the time in the fourth game before she ran away in fear after opening a door, leading the eventful ambush by Nam-gyu and Lee Myung-gi.

Trivia[]

Both him and his Season 1 counterpart died being part of a team. Additionally, both were killed by another player (Gi-hun/Myung-gi) and these 2 players were placed 2nd and 3rd in Squid Game 37 respectively.

He was one of the few men of Team O who didn't attack any of the X voters during Special Game.

Many people say he looks like Tetsu from the Japanese show, "Alice in Borderland".

He was counted ninth in the Team O headcount.

During the pentathlon, him and all his teammates had O patches. After the second vote, he was the only one to not switch to X.

Player 447 is seen to get nervous very easily, as in a game like Hide and Seek where a sound can give your location away, he yells "Me too!"

Player 451 was in high debt. He was approached by a man and he offered to play Ddakji with him, whoever wins gets money. He possibly failed many times at the game but eventually won. He then saw an open van at the same location he was at. He went in the van and saw other people, unconscious. Due to the sleeping gas, he was knocked unconscious, too. While being unconscious, he was transported to The Island where the annual 33rd Squid Game and the Squid Games would be hosted. He was changed in his outfit with his number "451". He then woke up in a room with 455 other players. Visibly confused, he saw the players complain and saw their debts revealed, along with a video of them getting slapped. He listened to the guards and the guards clearing the players doubts. He then signed his contract and went up the Stairs. He then listened to the instructions to take his picture, and he took his picture, which would be his icon. He was then taken to the 1st game.

When Player 451 saw the arena, he was confused as to what the game is. He realized it was Red Light, Green Light, and he proceeded on the first green light. He saw Player 324 getting shot but he didn't realize it yet, on the next green light Player 250 ran up to Player 324 and told him to "stop with the act", but when Player 324 spat blood out Player 250 realized he got shot and he ran then got shot too. Player 306 got his blood splattered on her face, and she screamed as she realized it was blood, eliminating her. This caused a mass panic with 255 players dying. However, Player 451 survived the mass panic and finished the game. It is unknown if he died here, but his icon faded. He voted X in the first round of voting, where the X outnumbered the O. However, he was taken again to the island. He then proceeded to the next game, Sugar Honeycombs.

We can see him waiting in line for his dalgona, the umbrella, but even though the dalgona was hard to carve out, he still survived the game. When he got his food, he watched in fear as Jang Deok-su killed Player 271 by kicking him repeatedly. He then finished his food and went to sleep.

In the Special Game, he can be seen trying to push over a bunkbed with someone tugging on his back, he panicked after and tried to hide, but he failed and was killed by an unknown player, though this is not confirmed yet.

Fate[]

Its unknown what is Player 451's true fate as his corpse is seen after the Special Game ends even though his icon doesn't turn off making his fate subjective.

Seong Gi-hun (성기훈 Seong Gi-hun?, October 31, 1974 - November 7, 2024)[2], also known as Player 456, is the main protagonist of Squid Game. A former gambling addict, Gi-hun faced crippling debt from loan sharks for several years before participating in the 33rd Squid Game in 2020.[3][4] He ultimately won that game, and later returned as a participant in the 37th Squid Game in an attempt to end the Squid Games.[5][4]

Personality

"You don't trust people because they are trustworthy. You do it because you have nothing else to rely on."

Seong Gi-hun's advice to Kang Sae-byeok in "Stick to the Team"

Gi-hun was shown to be a friendly, nice, caring, and talkative individual, often engaging to converse with those around him. He frequently demonstrates his caring and thoughtful nature, as he takes it upon himself to look after Oh Il-nam and to protect Kang Sae-byeok from Jang Deok-su.[6] During Red Light, Green Light, Gi-hun was frozen in shock throughout most of the game.

He seems to suffer from a serious ludopathy, often gambling any money he gets on races. The seriousness of his disease often makes him not realize the consequences of his actions until it's too late, such as canceling the social security of his mother before knowing about her diabetes or owing a great amount of money to the loan sharks to the point of being forced to sign a document authorizing his creditors to sell parts of his body in order to pay off his debt.

Gi-hun's darker actions are often made out of desperation rather than out of selfishness or cruelty, such as his manipulation of Il-nam during the Marbles round: Gi-hun weeps during the game and displays signs of remorse and sorrow following Il-nam's "elimination".[7] He also planned to kill Sang-woo when he falls asleep before the start of the sixth game until he is talked out of it by Sae-byeok, who tells him he is not a murderer.

Despite his failures as a father and son, Gi-hun does demonstrate that he deeply cares for his family. He is devastated at the idea of losing his daughter and desperately tries to convince his mother to get medical treatment for her diabetes, falling into a year-long depressive state after her death. Following the games, he developed PTSD and stopped a man from entering the games to prevent the man's death and worked to stop the games for three years straight. After failing to persuade the Front Man to end the Squid Game, he decides to enter the 36th Squid Game in order to infiltrate the Game and kill its staff. He helps contestants in "Red Light, Green Light" instructing them on what to do to survive and continually encourages people to vote to leave the game, warning them of what the future holds. Showing him to be a very selfless, brave and caring individual, willing to put his life in danger to help others. Though later in the games, he is shown to be willing to sacrifice a few (some contestants) for the greater good (kill the game's staff and end the game).

At the start of Season 1 he was a fun-loving, self indulgent, immature person with a gambling addiction and is in great debt. He decides to enter the Squid Game in order to pay off his debts, prevent his organs from being harvested (by his loan shark) and pay for his mother's treatment for advanced diabetes. In Season 2, he returns a more mature, serious, no-nonsense attitude, shrewd and frugal person. He sees his prize money as blood money belonging to the people who died in the game and uses it very carefully. He becomes more determined with his objectives, as well as more meticulous with his surroundings and grows more careful around others, displaying highly analytical behavior. In stark contrast to his previous behavior in season 1, Gi-hun becomes more determined to save as many of the players in the Squid Game as he can, rather than just the ones in his team.

However, despite the change in his attitude, his ignorant and reckless nature remains. He failed to consider different possibilities before entering the game, which led to the failure of his initial plan. Even in the game, he often appears clumsy, such as failing to recognize the front man despite several clues. His foolish nature results in a terrible consequence in the revolt, which was incredibly unpractical considering how powerful his enemies were. He and the rebels are, as expected, quickly overpowered by the game's forces, ultimately resulting in the death of his close friend. This failure of the revolt shows that despite his efforts, he is still too flawed a person to carry out such an ambitious plan.

Following Gi-hun's failed revolt in the Season 2 finale, he shows a much darker side to his personality. Whilst acting out of grief and trauma, he blamed Kang Dae-ho for his comrade's deaths after he failed to deliver more ammunition to the rebels. His anger came to a boil when Seon-nyeo mocked Gi-hun's dead friends, causing him to strangle her. Later on, in the fourth game, he relentlessly hunted down Dae-ho with a crazed look on his face. After eventually finding him, Gi-hun ignored Dae-ho's pleas and engaged in a savage fight with him, ending with Gi-hun choking Dae-ho to death. However, before his death, Dae-ho blamed Gi-hun for the revolt since it was his idea, which caused Gi-hun to spiral and eventually blame himself entirely for getting people killed. Gi-hun's attitude then flipped entirely; instead of being rage-fueled and erratic, he was now completely catatonic and unresponsive to others.

Interestingly, despite Gi-hun's clear rage during the hide-and-seek game, he still somewhat retained his better nature. Whenever he came across a player who was not Dae-ho, he did not even attempt to kill them, even if it would've benefitted him.

As Cho Sang-woo ("Because you're a nosy-ass idiot who's too slow to keep it shut.") and Hwang In-ho ("Did you have fun playing the hero?") described, Gi-hun is overwhelmed with the sense of justice, and sometimes for the worse. It is mainly due to his aforementioned flaws. He also becomes contradictory about his supposed 'justice', as before the special game, he stated that no one in his team should be sacrificed, whereas in the revolt, he claimed that it is inevitable to sacrifice a few for the survival of many.

Gi-hun was described by Hwang Dong-hyuk as very 'human'. This means that, despite his altruistic and righteous nature, he is highly flawed and often faced with failure. Despite this, even after going through the Squid Games twice, he never lost his human nature, unlike Hwang In-ho, his arch enemy, who has succumbed to despair and hate and ended up a cold-blooded villain.

History

Backstory

Gi-hun and Sang-woo playing as children

Seong Gi-hun was born on October 31, 1974, in Ssangmun-dong, Seoul, where he grew up with his mother Oh Mal-soon, who raised him in a Buddhist household. He was childhood best friends with Cho Sang-woo, with whom he developed a very close and brotherly relationship.[8][9] They would play multiple children's games together, including Squid Game, Red Light, Green Light and Dalgona. When playing and winning Squid Game, Gi-hun stated he felt as though he owned the entire world at that moment. During his youth, he attended Daehan Technical High School.

Gi-hun worked on Assembly Team One at Dragon Motors, along with his best friend Park Jung-bae, for sixteen years. He was later laid off and went on strike with his other employees. During the strike, one of his coworkers died. This happened to be the same day his daughter, Seong Ga-yeong, was born. In the following years, Gi-hun ran a restaurant called Ga-yeong's Chicken and later a snack bar, both of which eventually failed, and he worked as a chauffeur for five years.[10] His wife Kang Eun-ji divorced him in 2017, got custody of their daughter, and remarried. Her new husband disliked Gi-hun's visits to see Ga-yeong, much to Gi-hun's anger and consternation.

By 2020, Gi-hun had moved back with his elderly mother and racked up a lot of debt, caused by the loss of his stable job at a car factory, his failed business ventures, and his gambling addiction. He owed ₩250 million to the bank and ₩160 million more to loan sharks, and his work as a chauffeur wasn't even enough to even cover the interest rate on his loans. One day, his mother gave him some money to get his daughter dinner and a present for her birthday. After she leaves to go to her own job, he looks for her credit card, which she has hidden. He then steals her funds and gambles multiple times on horse races with a friend.

After winning ₩4.56 million, he elatedly calls his daughter asking what she wants for her birthday. Unfortunately, he is spotted and chased by a group of loan sharks and is robbed of his newfound money by a pickpocket, Kang Sae-byeok. The loan sharks threaten to take his organs if they are not paid by the next month and make him sign a contract with his own blood. Gi-hun then takes his daughter out for food with what little money he has left. He treats Ga-yeong to a basic birthday dinner of street food and a gift from a claw machine (a toy gun). Gi-hun feels disappointed that he can't give her as much as her stepfather, despite her reassurance that she prefers the street food over the fancy steak dinner her stepfather treated her to. Gi-hun being given the Squid Games card by The Recruiter. At the train station, Gi-hun is approached by a salesman to play a game of ddakji. Each round, whoever loses would give the other ₩100,000. Since Gi-hun doesn't have the money, the salesman instead slaps him when he loses. Determined to win, Gi-hun tries and is slapped many times until he finally wins. The salesman gives him the money along with a strange business card with a phone number on it, telling him to call it if he wants to play other games for bigger prizes.

Gi-hun returns home ecstatic with the money and shows it to his mother. She asks how he got the money, but Gi-hun is vague with his answer. His mother warns him that if he cannot financially support his daughter, her stepfather will move her to the United States. She also worries that Ga-yeong might lose connections with her Korean roots if she moves. In desperation, he calls the number on the business card. He is told to go to a secret address and give a password to a person in the car. He enters the car and is knocked out by sleeping gas.

Gi-hun later wakes up in a dormitory with 455 other people. Gi-hun then meets Oh Il-nam (Player 001), an old man, who tells Gi-hun that he has dementia and a growing brain tumor. Gi-hun then sees a player (whom he recognizes as Sae-byeok (Player 067), the pickpocket from earlier) being attacked by Jang Deok-su (Player 101), a vicious gangster. Gi-hun steps in to stop the fight.

The guards enter the room, welcome the players and explain they'll compete in six games over six days for a large cash prize. When some express doubt, the guards show footage of them playing dakji and reveal everyone is in severe debt, stating that these games are offered as a final chance. The players are photographed, then led to the first game: Red Light, Green Light. As players enter a field-like room with a giant doll and a finish line, the rules are announced—move when the doll sings "무궁화 꽃이 피었습니다 (the hibiscus flower is blooming)," and stop when it isn't singing. Anyone caught moving or failing to finish in five minutes will be eliminated.

The game begins with Players 324 and 250 running ahead; however, 324 fails to halt his run in time, is caught moving by the doll, and shot. Player 250 sees him coughing up blood and dying. He panics and also gets shot while trying to flee. His blood hits Player 306, who screams and is killed as well. Chaos erupts as players realize "elimination" means death, and many are gunned down while trying to escape. During the chaos, Player 133 collides with Gi-hun and is shot, which knocks Gi-hun to the ground; fortunately, the doll doesn't catch his movement. After the dust settles, the rules are calmly repeated to the remaining players. Gi-hun playing "Red Light, Green Light"

The game resumes, but no one is brave enough to step forward except for Il-nam (Player 001), who was unfazed by the chaos. Others begin to follow, though some are still eventually eliminated. Meanwhile, Gi-hun lies frozen with Player 133's corpse on top of him until Sang-woo urges him to move, warning about the timer and advising him to hide behind others to avoid detection by the doll. Gi-hun then gets up and continues the game.

Gi-hun takes Sang-woo's advice to hide behind another player, but his quarry is shot. An injured player, Oh Yeong-uk (Player 118), grabs his leg and begs him for help, stopping Gi-hun's progress on the next two "green lights". Running out of time, Gi-hun pulls himself free and Yeong-uk is shot, this time, fatally.

Eventually, some players reach the finish line, including Sae-byeok, Deok-su, Sang-woo and Il-nam. Gi-hun almost makes it to the finish line when he trips over the corpse of another player. He is nearly caught by the doll, but Player 199, Ali Abdul, saves him by grabbing his jacket and keeping him still until the doll looks away. The two make it to the end just as the timer ends. The rest of the players who did not finish (including Player 309) are then eliminated. The roof of the game room closes, revealing that they are on a secluded island.

After the first game, all surviving players are brought back to the dormitory. The guards enter, congratulate the players for winning the first game, and state that 255 players were eliminated. Some players beg to leave, but a guard explains that the games are not punishment, but rather a second chance.

After being reminded that quitting means death, Sang-woo invokes the third clause of the consent form, saying that the games can end by a majority vote. The guards agree but first reveal a giant, transparent piggy bank being filled with cash totaling ₩25.5 billion, explaining that each elimination adds ₩100 million to the prize pool, with the final prize pot totaling ₩45.6 billion. Players are shown a voting booth and given a choice to vote—circle to stay, X to leave. However, leaving means forfeiting the prize money.

Gi-hun is the first to vote, and votes to end the game. Some players follow suit, while others like Sang-woo argue to continue for the prize money. Tensions rise, nearly leading to a fight until the guards step in. Supporters of the game insist life outside offers no better hope; here, they at least have a chance to win money and pay off their debts. Ultimately, with the vote tied at 100-100, the deciding vote falls to Player 001, the old man with the brain tumor. He selects to quit the game.

With that, everyone is dropped off back on the mainland, with the promise that if a majority of people want to continue the games after a few days, the games will be restarted. Gi-hun is dumped with Sae-byeok, the pickpocket who stole his money. Gi-hun immediately goes to a police station and tries to report the game. However, the officers think his story sounds too ridiculous to be true, to the point that they not only refuse to believe him but also mistake him for a crazy person. It's not helped when the business card he gives as proof of the games is redirected to a wrong number, then a disconnected line. Detective Hwang Jun-ho, who has been searching for his missing brother, finds an invitation card in his apartment which was from the game, leading him to suspect Gi-hun is telling the truth.

Gi-hun, not finding his mother at home, searches for her on the street and runs into Sang-woo, who is too afraid to face his own mother and instead watches her from a distance as she organizes her fish store. Sang-woo confesses that he's ₩6 billion in debt due to a series of bad investments in futures trading. He had even put his mother's store up as collateral in one of those dealings and cannot pay any of it back. Soon after, Gi-hun receives a call from the Emergency Medical Center informing him that his mother has been diagnosed with severe diabetes and may need to have her feet amputated. That night, despite the doctors' advice and Gi-hun's desperate pleas, she leaves the hospital and refuses treatment. She reminds Gi-hun that she had canceled all their health insurance and emptied their meager savings to support his gambling addiction, which is why they can't afford the treatment and hospitalization needed for recovery. Racked with guilt, Gi-hun swears he'll make things right and get the money.

Desperate to save his mother, Gi-hun tries to seek help from his childhood friend Park Jung-bae, but fails to convince him to offer a job. He later visits a convenience store, where he unexpectedly encounters Player 001. The old man claims he has a friend in the neighborhood and wonders if their meeting is destiny. They share ramyeon and soju, and the old man reveals that he has decided to return to the games, remarking that he doesn't have long to live anyway—and that the outside world feels like a worse hell than the games. He states that he would rather risk playing, thinking he might even win, than wait around to die slowly from his brain tumor.

As a last resort, Gi-hun turns to his ex-wife Eun-ji for help, only to learn that she and her husband are also barely making ends meet. An argument erupts over Gi-hun's failure to be a responsible father to Ga-yeong. Her stepfather offers to give Gi-hun the money—on the condition that he cut off all contact with Ga-yeong. Infuriated by the proposal, Gi-hun refuses the money and storms out. On his way home, he encounters Jun-ho, who questions him about the business card and the games. Gi-hun lies, claiming he made it all up. Even after Jun-ho reveals that he needs help to find his missing brother, Gi-hun turns him down, feeling powerless. When Gi-hun arrives home, however, he finds another card—an invitation to return to the games. Haunted by Il-nam's words and overwhelmed by his mother's medical crisis, Gi-hun ultimately decides to return.

The players then wake up back in the facility. Through conversations, Gi-hun forms an alliance with Player 001, Sang-woo, and Ali. They eat together and speculate about the upcoming game. The next challenge takes place in a playground-like room with four doors marked by shapes: circle, triangle, star, and umbrella. Each player must choose one and stand in front of it. Gi-hun's group splits up to cover different shapes; Ali gets the circle, Sang-woo gets the triangle, Player 001 gets the star, and Gi-hun gets the umbrella. Meanwhile, Byeong-gi gets a triangle, Deok-su and Player 212 each get a star, and Player 067 follows Sang-woo's choice to get a triangle as well. After receiving small circular metal containers containing a candy containing their chosen shapes, the game is revealed to be Sugar Honeycombs, horrifying Gi-hun as he had picked the hardest shape of all.

The announcer explains the rules, and players begin carefully cutting their shapes from the dalgona candy. When Player 369 accidentally breaks his shape (an umbrella), he's shot on the spot, his body and blood sliding down the playground as a warning. Panic spreads, and many other players are eliminated after making similar mistakes as Gi-hun watches in horror. Gi-hun during the Sugar Honeycombs game

With only a few minutes left, Gi-hun struggles to complete his dalgona. His sweat eventually lands on the dalgona, prompting him to lick it. He inspects it again and realizes licking the candy will soften the sugar and shape's outline, allowing him to carve out the shape safely. Other players, including Player 001 and some members of Deok-su's team, soon notice and copy his method. Even the supervisors are surprised by the sudden shift. Using this tactic—and a lighter in Deok-su's case—Deok-su, his team members, the old man, and finally Gi-hun (who had only a second to spare) all managed to finish in time and advance.

After Deok-su and his team stood in line twice during lunch, a few players were denied food. Player 271 confronts him and is beaten to death. Gi-hun begs the guards to intervene, but they do nothing—the player is listed as eliminated, and more money is added to the prize pool. The group then realizes players can kill each other without consequence. Later, Gi-hun sees Deok-su's gang watching Sae-byeok and invites her to join his team for safety. She says she trusts no one, but Gi-hun replies that in these games, trust isn't about choice—it's survival.

During the Special Game, Sae-byeok seeks safety with Gi-hun's team, reminding him of his earlier invitation. When Deok-su attacks her, Gi-hun pushes her away just in time, sparking a brawl between the two groups. Sae-byeok is injured, but Sang-woo and Gi-hun defend her. Deok-su argues that killing helps everyone's odds, but Gi-hun insists they protect teammates, including Sae-byeok. The fighting only stops when Oh Il-nam (Player 001) pleads from atop a bed, and the guards intervene. Jun-ho (disguised as a Manager) approaches Gi-hun, and asks if he knows someone named "Hwang In-ho." Gi-hun states that they don't use their names here. Later, the team bonds and— at Gi-hun's request, introduces themselves: Gi-hun, Ali Abdul from Pakistan, Kang Sae-byeok, and Sang-woo. However, Il-nam struggles to remember his name.

As the players head for the third game, players are told to form teams of 10. Sang-woo urges Gi-hun to recruit more men, and the group searches for teammates. Ali bonds with Player 276, then recruits Player 244. Sae-byeok brings in Ji-yeong (Player 240), later leading to Sang-woo worrying how their team seems very weak. Han Mi-nyeo (Player 212) overhears this and joins them uninvited, insisting she's tougher than the others. The timer runs out, and the game begins.

Gi-hun and his team playing "Tug of War"

The teams are brought to another room, where a guard explains the next game and its rules: Tug of War. After Deok-su's team swiftly defeats Team 7, Teams 4 (Gi-hun's) and 5 face off next. Il-nam notices Team 4's low morale due to their opponents being all men and tries to emphasize that Tug of War relies not just strength, but also teamwork and strategy. Though some dismiss him due to his old age, Gi-hun insists they listen. Il-nam shares techniques—alternating rope sides, planting feet forward, and holding the rope under their arms—which the team adopts. Chained to the rope, Gi-hun leads with Ali anchoring. As the game begins, Team 4 is able to hold their ground, preventing Team 5 from making much progress. Team 5's leader eventually slips, giving Team 4 an opening. However, Team 5 recovers, nearly pulling Team 4 off the platform. Sang-woo suggests advancing three steps, which initially alarms the team, but Gi-hun encourages taking the risk since they had nothing to lose. This move ultimately disrupts Team 5's balance, causing them to fall. Seizing their chance, Team 4 immediately pulls back and eventually wins. After the game, Gi-hun notices his hands bleeding from the intense effort of the game.

At dinner, Sang-woo warns his team to be ready in case another riot breaks out. Sae-byeok reveals she saw a player killed by an ally during the chaos and says she trusts no one. Gi-hun urges the group to build a barricade; everyone pitches in, including Sae-byeok, who helps Ji-yeong move their beds. Gi-hun sees Deok-su approaching and warns him not to trust his violent underlings, as they might target him. Deok-su orders his team to rest but remains paranoid throughout the night. Sang-woo and Gi-hun suggest their team take turns keeping watch in pairs. While on guard with Il-nam, Gi-hun shares his story about a workplace strike and a colleague's death with Il-nam. Later, Gi-hun, seeing Il-nam feeling unwell, accepts water from Sae-byeok, who insists on keeping watch as planned and allowing Il-nam to rest.

The next day, the players are woken by an alarm and told to line up. Gi-hun notices Il-nam has wet himself and discreetly covers him with his tracksuit jacket. The players are then guided to the fourth game. As they walk through the stairwell, they see the bodies of Byeong-gi and his allies hanging, while the Front Man announces the games are meant to promote equality. In the white room, players are told to form teams of two for the next game. Not certain of the next game, most players end up choosing partners they trust. Gi-hun watches Sang-woo pair with Ali, thinking they'll do well. He then sees Il-nam alone and chooses to partner with him. Together, they enter the fourth game: Marbles. Each pair must win all of their partner's marbles within 30 minutes using any sub-game, without violence. The twist shocks the players—only one of each pair will survive.

Gi-hun becoming gganbu with Oh Il-nam before their game of Marbles During the marbles game, Il-nam appears confused, misinterpreting the arena for his old neighborhood and wandering off in search of his house. Gi-hun struggles to get him to play, and when Il-nam finally agrees, Gi-hun begins losing. With only one marble left, Gi-hun lies about Il-nam's bets to win back marbles, taking advantage of his memory loss. Just as Gi-hun believes he's won, Il-nam reveals he has one marble left. Gi-hun panics, but Il-nam continues wandering until he proposes one final bet. Gi-hun is reluctant, but then Il-nam reveals he knew about the deception all along and was letting Gi-hun win. Deeply ashamed, Gi-hun breaks down in tears. Nonetheless, Il-nam gives him his last marble, calling them "gganbu" (people who share everything with one another). They hug as Gi-hun weeps, and Il-nam says their time together have the games more enjoyable for him. As the timer runs out, Gi-hun is forced to leave. Il-nam tells him his full name—Oh Il-nam—before Gi-hun is escorted away. A gunshot follows, and Il-nam's elimination is announced. Gi-hun continues to walk off, heartbroken.

Back in the dorms, the mood is solemn—most players have just lost someone they trusted. Gi-hun is visibly shaken, while Sae-byeok eats in silence. Sang-woo, seemingly unfazed, tells Gi-hun not to dwell on Il-nam, calling him just a stranger he had met only a few days ago. He points out that Player 069 lost his wife (Player 070) and watches as the man breaks down, begging for the games to end. Sang-woo harshly reminds him that quitting would make their sacrifices meaningless. The others can only watch in quiet sorrow, knowing Sang-woo is right.

The next morning, the players discover Player 069 has taken his own life out of grief by hanging. Most are stunned, but Deok-su is pleased by the reduced competition. The 16 remaining players are brought to the fifth game and find mannequins with numbered vests from 1 to 16. Instructed to choose a vest, most players grab middle numbers, eventually leaving only 1-4 and 13-16 available. Gi-hun hesitates and is ultimately left with Vests 1 and 16. Just before he picks to go first, Player 096 asks for Vest 1 instead. Gi-hun relents, taking Vest 16 for himself.

The players enter a circus-themed room with two rows of glass panels suspended over a drop. The PA announces the fifth game: Glass Stepping Stones. In each row, one glass panel is tempered and can hold two people; the other glass panel will shatter under a single step. Players must cross within 16 minutes. Player 096, wearing Vest 1, realizes he must go first and looks to Gi-hun in horror; the latter can only look away sympathetically. Hesitant to move, 096 is pressured by the others, and Deok-su threatens to push him. He finally jumps, landing safely on the first panel. However, the next step is fatal, and he falls to his death.

As the game continues, players at the front fall, revealing a path for those behind. Gi-hun realizes the last few may cross without guessing, but Sang-woo warns that delays up front could still endanger them. Sure enough, when Deok-su reaches the front, he refuses to move. Mi-nyeo taunts him, then grabs him in an act of revenge and pulls them both to their deaths. With time running out, only four players remain: Gi-hun, Sae-byeok, Sang-woo, and Player 017, who has experience as a glassmaker. He identifies tempered glass by its appearance and sound, helping them progress—until the Front Man turns off the lights for the last set of glass panels. With no way to tell the panels apart, Sang-woo shoves 017 to his death, revealing the final trick panel and allowing him to finish. Though shocked, Sae-byeok and Gi-hun can only rush ahead as the timer approaches zero. The three survivors reach the end just as time runs out. The panels then explode behind them, sending shards of glass into the air and among the three of them (Unbeknownst to Gi-hun or Sang-woo, Sae-byeok gets seriously wounded when a large glass shard impales her abdomen.).

The three players return to the lobby. Gi-hun and Sang-woo argue over Player 017's death, while Sae-byeok quietly rests. Before tensions rise, staff members arrive to congratulate them as the finalists and present boxes containing tuxedos to change into. A final feast is then held as a token of gratitude. Gi-hun and Sang-woo eat while watching each other closely; Sae-byeok, visibly weak, barely touches her food. Afterwards, the workers clear the table but leave the steak knives behind, which the players quietly keep as they return to their beds.

Gi-hun's final conversation with Kang Sae-byeok

As the finalists rest, Gi-hun approaches Sae-byeok. She readies her knife, but he assures her he means no harm and hides his own. They talk briefly about their families and promise to care for each other's loved ones. When Gi-hun notices Sang-woo asleep, he considers attacking—but Sae-byeok stops him, reminding him he's not that kind of person. Soon after, Sae-byeok collapses, bleeding heavily from her wound. Gi-hun rushes to get help, but when Workers arrive, they silently pass him with a coffin. He turns to find Sang-woo standing over Sae-byeok, a bloodied knife in hand. Gi-hun cradles Sae-byeok's lifeless body, devastated. Enraged, he charges at Sang-woo with his knife, but both are restrained by Soldiers. As Sae-byeok's body is placed in the coffin and taken away, Gi-hun breaks down in anguish.

Gi-hun and Sang-woo are now facing off in the final round: Squid Game. Gi-hun wins the coin toss and chooses offense; Sang-woo is left to play defense. A Manager leads them to the original Red Light, Green Light field and explains the rules. As the game begins, Gi-hun advances through the early stages with ease. When it starts to rain, Sang-woo defends and justifies killing Sae-byeok as mercy—but Gi-hun doesn't believe him. Sang-woo ultimately admits he killed her to stop a vote that could've ended the game and left him with nothing.

Gi-hun offering Sang-woo a chance to end the game, which he rejects and then kills himself, making Gi-hun the winner of the competition

The two players eventually abandon the rules and begin fighting to the death. Sang-woo gains the upper hand by stabbing Gi-hun's leg, but Gi-hun bites his shin and turns the tide, disarming and pinning him. However, instead of killing him, Gi-hun stabs the knife into the ground beside Sang-woo and heads toward the Squid's head to win by default. Before stepping over the head, he suddenly turns back and invokes the game's third clause, asking to end the game together. The two reflect on their past, and Gi-hun offers his hand. However, Sang-woo apologizes, grabs the knife, and fatally stabs himself in the neck. Gi-hun catches him, devastated, as Sang-woo mutters, "My mum...", implying he wants Gi-hun to care for her. Helpless, Gi-hun can only sob over his friend's death as he's declared the winner of the games.

After winning, Gi-hun is blindfolded and tied inside a limo where he meets The Front Man, who congratulates him on his victory and calls the players mere horses in a race. Gi-hun disturbed by this begins to ask who The Front man is. Before Gi-hun can question him further, the Front Man knocks him out with sleeping gas. Gi-hun wakes on the street, is helped by an evangelist, and chokes up a credit card. After checking the credit card at an ATM for the cash prize, he heads home and encounters Sang-woo's mother. Avoiding her questions when she asks about Sang-woo and still burdened by guilt, he stays silent and continues home. When he reaches his mother's home, he finds her on the floor, dead. Too devastated to cry, he can only lie down beside her, hugging her.

You saw it, didn't you? You lost.

Gi-hun's final words to Oh Il-nam Gi-hun finds out that Il-nam created the Squid Games

A year later, a dishevelled Gi-hun is summoned to a bank, where a bank manager discusses his untouched fortune. Afterwards, he drinks alone by the river, where a flower seller persuades him to buy a bouquet. Inside the flowers, he finds a black envelope with a Squid Game card, directing him to the Seoul Sky Building. There, he discovers Il-nam lying in a bed, nearly at death's doors. Shocked to learn Il-nam was the game's creator, Gi-hun angrily demands answers. Il-nam proposes a final bet: will a drunk man outside get help before midnight? As they wait, Il-nam explains he created the games for entertainment and thanks Gi-hun for rekindling forgotten memories. Just before midnight, the drunk man is finally helped and Il-nam soon after passes away.

Gi-hun noticing the salesman again

Following this, Gi-hun finally takes steps forward in his new life. He goes to get a haircut and later retrieves Kang Cheol from the orphanage. He takes him to Sang-woo's mother, who happily agrees to raise him. When she checks Cheol's luggage bag for warm clothes, she instead finds stacks of money and a note from Gi-hun. She calls out to Gi-hun, but he's already gone. At the train station, Gi-hun spots the same salesman playing ddakji and tries to stop him, but the man boards a train and escapes. Gi-hun grabs the Squid Game card from the new player and warns him not to go.

Later, as he's about to board a plane to visit his daughter, Gi-hun calls the number on the card. The Front Man answers and warns him to forget about the Games. Instead, Gi-hun turns back, vowing revenge. He soon discovers a tracking chip behind his ear and removes it using a paper cutter knife that he had purchased. He then uses his wealth to hire private detectives and former loan sharks to track the Game's recruiters and find the island. He also buys a motel and stockpiles firearms to practice marksmanship in secret. But after three years, his endeavours bear no fruit.

Someone like you... you don't get it, you couldn't know... or understand how it felt. What it was like to be in there, what I did to make it out. You don't have any idea... what the game is really like.

Seong Gi-hun to The Salesman Three years after winning the Squid Games, Gi-hun is still searching relentlessly for the recruiter, while funding his former loan shark Kim Jeong-rae, Jeong-rae's lackeys, and his associate Choi Woo-seok to assist him. One day, Kim and Choi finally spot the recruiter playing ddakji with a new target at a Seoul train station and alert Gi-hun by phone; Gi-hun immediately sets out.

Choi and Kim tail the recruiter from a distance into a park, where the recruiter offers homeless people there a choice between a lottery ticket and a packaged bread—only one per person. Most pick the ticket, which he lets them scratch with a coin, but none win. Smirking, the recruiter drops the untouched bread to the ground and violently stomps on it. When a homeless man protests the waste, the recruiter coldly replies that they chose to waste it over greed. Hidden nearby, Kim and Choi report everything to Gi-hun, who has been pulled over for speeding. After receiving a ticket, he speeds off. The junior officer mentions the electronics in Gi-hun's car, prompting the senior officer—Jun-ho—to check the ID and freeze at the name: Seong Gi-hun. Meanwhile, the recruiter hops into an orange-yellow taxi, and Kim and Choi jump into a white cab to pursue.

Kim and Choi eventually follow the recruiter into a small alley—only to be ambushed and beaten unconscious. They awaken tied to chairs, gagged, and facing each other. With chilling amusement, the recruiter forces them into a twisted game of rock-paper-scissors mixed with Russian roulette, which ends in Kim's death. Choi is then restrained to a bed in another room. Meanwhile, Jun-ho, investigating Gi-hun, traces Gi-hun's base of operations to an old pink motel.

Gi-hun confronts the Recruiter

The Recruiter confronts Gi-hun at his hideout, curious how he survived the Squid Games. Gi-hun mocks him as a lapdog to the elites, provoking the Recruiter to reveal that he once killed his own father during the Games to prove his loyalty. In return, he was promoted to a recruiter and given a revolver. Viewing the poor as worthless trash, he challenges Gi-hun to a special game of Russian roulette—the cylinder is not rotated, making each round deadlier. Both survive two rounds as the Recruiter taunts Gi-hun with unsettling smiles and slow, theatrical gestures. As Gi-hun (who shot first) faces a 1-in-2 chance, the Recruiter tempts him to break the rules, shoot him, and steal the key to meet the one person he wants to see (the Front Man)—but only if Gi-hun admits he's just lucky trash like everyone else. Gi-hun refuses, pulls the trigger, and survives. With both men now certain that the sixth—and last—chamber is holding the bullet, Gi-hun turns the challenge back, daring the Recruiter to cheat and kill him—saying it would only prove he's nothing but a masked dog serving his masters. Apparently shaken, the Recruiter turns the gun on himself and dies instantly.

Jun-ho arrives at Gi-hun's base and hears this gunshot from outside. Rushing inside, he quickly finds Choi Woo-seok restrained and frees him, before discovering Gi-hun and the Recruiter's bloodied corpse. Suspecting murder, Jun-ho tries to arrest Gi-hun but is knocked out by Choi with a fire hydrant. Bound and cuffed in the showers, Jun-ho wakes to converse with Gi-hun. They recall a meeting during Jun-ho's infiltration of the 33rd Squid Game, and Gi-hun reveals the Recruiter's death was the result of losing in a game. Gi-hun reveals his mission to end the Games by finding the overseer of the game. Gi-hun asks if Jun-ho knows who runs the Games; Jun-ho denies it (knowing that Gi-hun is trying to hunt down his own brother). Jun-ho eventually convinces Gi-hun to accept help, despite Choi expressing his distrust with police. Gi-hun then shows his prize money, convincing Choi, and reveals a weapons cache, assuring Jun-ho they're ready to fight.

Warned by Jun-ho about the island's heavy security, Choi Woo-seok recruits ex-marines with promises of payment. These ex-marines are then shown training with Gi-hun's firearms in a motel room. Later, a dentist visits Gi-hun to extract a tooth. The tooth is replaced with a prosthetic concealing a tracker, allowing Jun-ho and Choi to monitor his location during the mission. Choi pays the dentist in cash before he departs.

Using the address from the card Gi-hun took from the Recruiter, he, Woo-seok, and Jun-ho arrive at a mysterious party. There, a pink-masked staffer escorts Gi-hun to a limo, where he converses with the Front Man through a piggy bank. Gi-hun demands to shut down the Squid Games, but the Front Man insists they'll only end when the world changes. Gi-hun then asks to return to the Games, suggesting the VIPs would be thrilled to see a past winner re-enter. The Front Man eventually relents and fills the limo with sleeping gas, knocking Gi-hun unconscious. Unbeknownst to the Front Man, Gi-hun plans to sabotage the Games from within—while Jun-ho, Woo-seok, Park Yeong-gil (a sailor who once saved Jun-ho), and a team of ex-marines work to locate and raid the island.

Gi-hun guiding players on how to survive during "Red Light, Green Light"

Gi-hun wakes up as a contestant in the 37th Squid Game and realizes his tracker hidden in his tooth has been removed, ruining his original plan. In the first game, Red Light, Green Light, he warns others and helps many survive. He then reveals his past experience to the players, gaining their trust. Among those drawn to him are Kang Dae-ho (Player 388), a friendly ex-Marine; Oh Young-il (Player 001), secretly the Front Man in disguise; and his old friend Park Jung-bae (Player 390).

When staff return, several players beg to leave, fearing the staff are tormenting them over their debts. The staff deny this, saying the games offer a chance to earn money. Someone mentions the murders, but Gi-hun reminds the soldiers that players can vote to leave. A close vote, which ends with Young-il/the Front Man casting the deciding vote, forces all to stay and play the second game.

Gi-hun during the Six-Legged Pentathlon. To Gi-hun's surprise, instead of Sugar Honeycombs, the second game is the "Six-Legged Pentathlon," where teams of five race to complete five children's games under a five-minute limit—or face elimination. Kim Jun-hee (Player 222), who is pregnant, joins Gi-hun's team. They play last and narrowly win. Despite Gi-hun's warnings, a second vote again favors staying, forcing all contestants into the third game, Mingle.

In Mingle, players stand on a rotating platform; when it stops, a number is announced and they must quickly form teams of that size, rush into rooms, and lock the doors before time runs out. Failure to do so or being in the wrong-sized group means elimination. Gi-hun and many of his allies and friends pass this round, including Park Jung-bae, Kim Jun-hee, Oh Young-il, Kang Dae-ho, Jang Geum-ja (Player 149), Park Yong-sik (Player 007) and Cho Hyun-ju (Player 120). Afterwards, the third vote produces a 50-50 tie between those wanting to leave (the "X"s, including Gi-hun and allies) and those wanting to stay (the "O"s), resulting in a re-vote scheduled for tomorrow.

Following the vote, a bloody brawl erupted in the bathrooms between those wanting to quit and those determined to continue. Five players were killed, but the survivors soon realized they could kill freely outside the official games to increase the prize money. Two factions soon formed, with the Team 'O' players intent on slaughtering the Team 'X' players. Aware of the coming bloodshed from his past experience, Gi-hun rallies allies to capture the Front Man and end the games. As the lights go out, the Team 'O' players rush across the dormitory in the darkness, murdering sleeping Team 'X' players and igniting a brutal fight reminiscent of three years earlier. Gi-hun's group stays hidden beneath bedding, reluctantly sacrificing their fellow Team 'X' players to maintain their cover.

After dozens are killed, soldiers finally storm in to stop the chaos; however, Gi-hun's group ambushes them, disarming their MP5A3s and killing many. The Masked Officer orders a retreat and seals the doors, accidentally trapping the squad's Manager inside. Player 047 tries to execute the Team 'O' players in anger, but Gi-hun stops him, urging restraint. Hyun-ju suggests gathering weapons and destroys the dorm cameras to avoid detection. Gi-hun then rallies the survivors, calling for anyone with firearms experience to help fight their way to the headquarters. Though hesitant, Player 015 and a few others—including Players 072, 206, 324, 145, and 246—join, forming a group of about twelve. When others struggle with the weapons, Hyun-ju steps up and demonstrates its usage, revealing her background as a Sergeant First Class in Korean Special Forces.

Gi-hun forces the captured Manager to unmask himself, surprising Jung-bae with how young he is. The group breaks out through a side bathroom door into the colorful stairwell, where they're ambushed from above by soldiers. Hyun-ju takes out three enemies from a vantage point, pushing the rest back, but a larger ambush awaits. At the management area entrance, the Manager retrieves his mask to pass security but spots Player 001 and seems to recognize him—just before being shot in the head by the hidden soldiers. The group is pinned down under heavy fire, and Player 072 is killed trying to find cover.

Gi-hun tells the others to stay and hold off the soldiers while he and Jung-bae head to the control room—Young-il questions it but complies. Using the dead manager's mask, they bypass a security door, propping it open with a spare MP5. After killing two attacking soldiers with a diversion, they loot their ammo and press on. Seeing this, the Officer dispatches a large force to defend the control room, which Gi-hun and Jung-bae are nearing.

Back in the stairwell, the soldiers and rebel players are locked in a firefight. 047 kills a guard and warns Dae-ho—who's panicking and wasting ammo—to stay calm. He suggests regrouping with Gi-hun, but Young-il insists they hold position to avoid being flanked. When 206 is killed by a flanking soldier, 246 and Hyun-ju take down the threat along with another. As the gunfight drags on, the rebels and Gi-hun's team begin to run low on ammo. Gi-hun radios in, reminding them the dead soldiers in the dorms have spare magazines. Young-il sends others to retrieve them while he, 047, and 015 move on to assist Gi-hun. Dae-ho, out of ammo, volunteers to go instead. Hyun-ju arms him with a loaded MP5 and sends him off, instructing him to follow the destroyed cameras along the way.

Gi-hun soon runs out of ammo and risks a dash to a fallen guard for magazines, taking a graze to the arm in the process. Young-il, 047, and 015 arrive, and Young-il proposes flanking the control room guards. Gi-hun agrees and hands him a spare magazine, which Young-il hesitates to take but accepts before leading the push. Meanwhile, Dae-ho reaches the dorms and gathers magazines with help from Players 149, 222, and 007. But as he is preparing to leave, distant gunfire paralyzes him with fear. When he doesn't respond over the radio, Hyun-ju, assuming he's dead, prepares to retrieve the magazines herself.

As Young-il, 047, and 015 move to ambush the control room guards, Young-il suddenly betrays the group, killing 047 and critically wounding 015. He fakes his own death over the radio using 015's dying sounds, then finishes him with a headshot. Revealing himself as Hwang In-ho—the Front Man—he switches his radio's channels and orders the guards to end the resistance, having entered the games to prevent a rebellion.

In the dorms, Hyun-ju finds a traumatized Dae-ho, who tearfully apologizes for freezing. As she prepares to fight off a large incoming group of soldiers using the new ammo, Player 149 stops her, knowing it would be suicide. Meanwhile, the rebel players in the stairwell run out of ammo as soldiers close in from both sides. Wounded and with one bullet left, 324 shoots himself despite 246's pleas, choosing death over capture. When 145 tries to surrender, he's shot in the chest. 246 is then wounded non-fatally by Kang No-eul, who quietly asks him to play dead.

Gi-hun surrendering following the end of his attempted revolt

Completely out of ammo, Gi-hun and Jung-bae also surrender and are held at gunpoint. The Front Man arrives with the Officer and mocks Gi-hun for playing the hero, aiming his M1911 at him. As Gi-hun braces for death, the Front Man instead turns the gun on Jung-bae, telling Gi-hun to witness the consequences of his rebellion. The two friends share a final look before Jung-bae is shot in the chest, leaving Gi-hun devastated and struggling against the soldiers holding him back as he tries to lunge at the Front Man.

The rebellion ultimately was a failure, with nearly all rebels killed in the battle. Only Gi-hun, Hyun-ju, and Dae-ho survived, while Young-il—secretly Hwang In-ho, the Front Man—was revealed as the mole who had sabotaged the rebellion. With most rebels now dead, 60 players remain, and the games are set to continue as planned.

Gi-hun is unconsciously returned to the dormitory to continue the games. Upon waking, he begs the guards to kill him, devastated by the failed rebellion. Handcuffed and unable to vote, he lashes out at Dae-ho for not bringing back the ammo. Because a lot of 'X' players died in the riot and rebellion, the 'O' players easily win the re-vote. In the fourth game, Gi-hun draws the red ball, becoming a seeker armed with a knife. He first finds Seon-nyeo and prepares to kill her. However, she pleads for her life and urges him to kill Dae-ho instead to rid himself of bad karma. He relents, and soon after, finds Dae-ho. The two fight over the deaths caused by the Special Game and the rebellion. Overcome with rage, Gi-hun strangles Dae-ho to death, passing the game. However, he soon is wracked with guilt and attempts to commit suicide using the knife. Guards quickly intervene by shooting the knife from his hands and subduing him. Returned to the lobby and handcuffed again, he abstains from voting once more as the majority votes to continue into the fifth game.

That night, Geum-Ja confides in Gi-hun that she was forced to kill her son after he tried to kill Kim Jun-hee during the fourth game. She begs Gi-hun to help Jun-hee and her newborn before later committing suicide by hanging. As the players approach the fifth game, Gi-hun offers to carry Jun-hee's baby since she's limping with a broken foot. Hesitant at first, Jun-hee relents after they open up and Gi-hun promises to protect her child. During the Jump Rope game, Gi-hun pleads with the manager to spare Jun-hee (since he knows she can't jump with her broken foot) and the baby but is refused. With no choice, Jun-hee entrusts Gi-hun to carry her baby across the narrow bridge; he struggles at first but soon manages to carry himself and the baby across, successfully passing the game. When Player 096 tries to kill the others to share the prize with Gi-hun, Gi-hun stops him. After 096 attempts to kill him instead, Gi-hun defends himself by stabbing 096 in the eye and throwing him onto the bridge. The metal rope soon after swoops over the bridge, knocking 096 off and to his death. At the game's end, Jun-hee sacrifices herself by falling off to save Gi-hun and her baby.

Gi-hun attends the feast as one of the eight finalists (nine with the baby) and casts his first vote since the third game, voting 'X.' However, the majority votes 'O,' forcing everyone into the final game. That evening, Gi-hun is summoned to the Front Man's office. There, Hwang In-ho (Young-il)—the mastermind and someone Gi-hun had trusted—reveals himself as the Front Man, shocking Gi-hun. In-ho gives Gi-hun a knife, advising that killing the other players to survive with the baby is his best option. He also promises the final game won't proceed if only Gi-hun and the baby remain as it can't be played with only two players, allowing their escape. Back at the dorms, Gi-hun readies to stab Player 100 but, recalling Kang Sae-byeok's words, spares him.

The next day, the players enter the final game: Sky Squid Game. Being in the minority, Gi-hun faces immediate danger. After Player 125 is killed by Player 333, the group targets Gi-hun and the baby next. Gi-hun, not willing to separate from the baby, warns that if both are eliminated, the final round would force the group to decide among themselves who will die next. To separate Gi-hun from the baby, Player 336 is tied with jackets as a rope, but Gi-hun cuts it with In-ho's knife, threatens 336, and narrowly avoids an attack from Player 333, who knocks 336 off the platform with a metal pole to his death. Player 333 reveals himself as Gi-hun's ally; together, they confront the remaining four players using their weapons. When the others propose a lottery draw for elimination, 333 rejects it, citing majority betrayal. Gi-hun then learns of 333's connection to Jun-hee and the baby but his attention is soon turned to seeing Player 039 being beaten by 100, 203, and 353. Player 100 suggests sacrificing 039 to allow the others to split the prize, but Gi-hun insists on a lottery without including the baby. Fighting breaks out, leading to 203 and 353's deaths by Gi-hun and 333. Now cornered, Player 100 pleads for mercy but is pushed off by 333. Severely injured and unwilling to sacrifice himself, Player 039 also voluntarily falls off as the round ends.

Fate

In the final round, Player 333 goes on the final platform first, but soon returns with another metal pole to keep Gi-hun and the baby at bay. After a heated confrontation, Gi-hun reluctantly leaves the baby with 333. As the bridge closes, Gi-hun retrieves his knife and jumps onto the final platform. They engage in a brutal fight, ending with both hanging off the edge. 333 falls to his death when the jacket he's holding rips, while Gi-hun narrowly saves himself. After realizing the final round hadn't started, Gi-hun presses the button, cradles Jun-hee's baby, and kisses her softly to say goodbye. After laying her down safely on the platform, he turns and delivers a final message: "We are not horses. We are humans. Humans are...". He then sacrifices himself by falling off the platform, ensuring the baby's survival.

Legacy

The fire in Gi-hun's lifeless eyes as the island explodes.

Following the conclusion of the games, In-ho steps out to momentarily look at Gi-hun's corpse solemnly, before heading up the final platform to collect the baby and carry her off the platform to safety. Gi-hun's corpse is last seen as the Front Man sets the island to self-destruct and distant explosions can be seen through Gi-hun's eyes.

Six months later, In-ho would deliver a package containing Gi-hun's final belongings to his daughter, Seong Ga-yeong, which consisted of Gi-hun's tracksuit and a small black envelope containing a credit card of Gi-hun's leftover money won from the 33rd Squid Games.

Trivia

Seong Gi-hun's surname Seong (성;成) is an uncommon Korean family name that is officially written with only one hanja, meaning "succeed" or "accomplish". The name traces back to only a single lineage, the Changnyeong Seong clan (창녕 성씨;昌寧 成氏) in South Korea.

As noted by Hwang In-ho, the hangul of this name can also literally mean "last name".

In "Hell", he swears he won't ask Kang Sae-byeok for his money back on his mother's life. He later breaks this, which foreshadows his late mother's demise in "One Lucky Day".

According to his player file, Seong Gi-hun's resident registration number is 741031-1185623 and his address is 11, Samyang-ro 12-gil, Ssangmun 2-dong, Dobong-gu, Seoul.

As of 2024, Gi-hun was renting and regularly driving a Hyundai Santa Fe.

Gi-hun is lactose intolerant.

Seong Gi-hun is the only contestant to reach the final game twice.

Gi-hun was briefly believed to have been the only person to win Squid Game twice both by himself and the VIPs, until the two parties realized he had never pushed the button to begin the final round. This quickly rendered his short-lived victory null.

Gi-hun set a record for outlasting more players in Squid Game than anyone else, having outlasted a total of 909 players combined.

Seong Gi-hun is approximately 5' 11" (180 cm) tall, the same height as his actor.

Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho and Cho Sang-woo are the only characters that appeared in all nine episodes of Season One.

Gi-hun and Hwang In-ho are the only characters that appeared in all seven episodes of Season Two.

Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho, Lee Myung-gi, Masked Officer, Kang No-eul and Park Gyeong-seok are the only characters that appeared in all six episodes of Season Three.

Gi-hun is one of two characters to appear in all episodes of Squid Game, alongside Hwang In-ho.

While Hwang In-ho doesn't show his face in every episode, he still appears in his Front Man uniform and mask. This makes Gi-hun the only character to have a facial appearance in every episode of the series.

He is the final character to die in Season Three, and also the final character to die in the series overall.

The fate of Seong Gi-hun caused shock and controversy among fans. Although his body was shown in close-up, some speculated that he had survived, as his eye can be seen twitching once after the island explodes. However, even if Gi-hun had survived the fall, the explosion of the island would have killed him. Director Hwang Dong-hyuk revealed in an interview why he chose to kill the character, confirming that the character had actually died.[11]

However, the rumor about Gi-hun's possible survival was not dispelled, as YouTube users started creating fake trailers for the fourth season and the American spin-off, which were assembled from clips from the third season and fake trailers created using a neural network, where Gi-hun was resuscitated. Despite these rumors, Gi-hun is currently dead, either from a fall or an explosion.

An in-universe explanation has also been suggested by some fans, which posits that Gi-hun barely survived the fall and lived just long enough to see the Squid Games facilities being destroyed, mirroring the way Oh Il-nam died at the end of Season One, after seeing his worldview disproven.

The 3rd episode of the 1st season's title is a reference to Gi-hun, and he is one of only five characters or groups in the series to have at least one episode refer to them, alongside Hwang In-ho, Oh Il-nam, Kim Jun-hee, and the VIPs as a whole.

Mistakes

After guessing "0426" as his mother's bank PIN in "Red Light, Green Light" and getting it wrong, Gi-hun exclaims that he swears her PIN number was his birthday, hinting that he was born on April 26. His birthday is explicitly shown and stated to be October 31, 1974 in the rest of the show.

In "A Fair World", Seong Gi-hun's player file shows a normal portrait of him, though he is broadly smiling on the picture that was taken of him that appears in the Squid Game control room.

In the 2nd voting in season two, another Seong Gi-hun can be seen in Behind the scenes footage with a O patch.

Behind the scenes

Seong Gi-hun is the main protagonist of the series Squid Game. He is portrayed by actor Lee Jung-jae and was voiced in the English dub by Greg Chun. The younger version of Gi-hun is portrayed by actor Kim Yeon-ung and in the English dub was voiced by Nathan Yi, who also dubbed Kang Sae-byeok's brother, Kang Cheol.

Director Hwang Dong-hyuk confirmed in an interview that Gi-hun dying his hair red is purely symbolic. It is meant to show that now Gi-hun is filled with rage and is unable to return to who he once was. Regardless, by Season 2, Gi-hun's hair has returned to its natural black color.

Dong-hyuk stated that he perceives Gi-hun and Sang-woo as fraternal twins, and part of the casting of the two characters was to make them look like they are because he wanted them to emulate this relationship. Dong-hyuk explains that fraternal twins are very close in childhood, but look different despite coming from the same mother, and they usually go on different paths in life.[9][8] In an interview, Lee Jung-jae also stated that they are not biologically related, but still close as if they were.[12]

Quotes

Excuse me? You bet on your future? What kind of bet was it that you used that much money? Did you get a girlfriend?

Gi-hun questioning Cho Sang-woo's financial decisions in "Hell"

Oh, growing up, I'd always lose my umbrella so my mom would get angry. So then, she gave me broken ones to bring to school. I always wanted her to get me one of those good umbrellas like the other kids.

Seong Gi-hun explaining why he chose the umbrella. In "The Man with the Umbrella"

Did you know that Sang-woo graduated at the top of his class at Seoul National University?

Seong Gi-hun to his team in "Stick to the Team"

Uh, hello, guards. Can someone do something? Hey, didn't you hear that? A person died. That man there just died. Look, that man was killed. That bastard... That bastard just killed him. He just killed someone over there! He just died! Can't you hear me, huh? Help us now! A man just died! We shouldn't be killing each other like this!

Gi-hun shouting at the guards after Player 271's death in "Stick to the Team"

Listen, you don't trust people here because you can. You do it because you don't have anybody else.

Gi-hun to Kang Sae-byeok in "Stick to the Team"

Ssangmun-dong is just my hometown. The name is Seong Gi-hun. Seong Gi-hun of Ssangmun-dong.

Gi-hun introducing himself to his teammates in "Stick to the Team"

Okay. That's right. That's how I got caught in all this. Because I was slow, crazy incompetent. Just a dimwit who lives off his mother, but you're with me in this place. Isn't that interesting? Why is that? Ssangmun-dong's golden child, the genius Cho Sang-woo, who went to SNU, was here? Rolling around this shithole, slamming with us, simpletons, huh! Is it my fault that you're here?

Gi-hun arguing with Sang-woo in "Front Man"

So it was you that killed them. You... you killed everyone! You killed them. You're the one who killed them!

Gi-hun beating up Sang-woo in "One Lucky Day"

Look at that. There's someone who cares. You saw that, didn't you? You saw that you lost.

Gi-hun to Oh Il-nam after winning his bet in "One Lucky Day"

What's wrong? Feeling your mind start to race? That's right. Who cares about rules? The only thing you have to do now is pull that trigger once... and you could kill me right here. But... you have to admit one thing to me. All you do is put your little mask on... and do whatever Master tells you to. You roll over, heel... and wag your tail... 'cause you're their fucking dog.

Gi-hun's final words to the Recruiter in "Bread and Lottery"

We are not horses. We are humans. And humans are...

Gi-hun's last words in "Humans Are..."

History[]

Ali's wife was born in Pakistan, where she lived and married to a man named Ali Abdul. Together, they had a son, and soon after, they decided to migrate to South Korea in hopes of better living conditions and quality of life. When they arrived, she would take care of their son in the shack where they lived, while Ali worked at a factory. However, Ali was not able to earn much money, due to the greed of his boss.

However, Ali disappeared for a while and reappeared with a blood-stained envelope of money. When she questioned him about the money, he told her to fly back home with their child, and that he would follow them after he was done with his work. When she asked him what was going on, he asked for her to understand what he had to do for them. After that, she and her child presumably returned to Pakistan. It is still unclear what happened to her, but she may be alive and being threatened by Ali's creditors.

Trivia[]

Like Ali, his wife, who is Pakistani, is portrayed by an Indian actress.

Personality

Sirs, you made it! I'm glad you made it. I was really worried.

Ali telling Gi-hun and Il-nam after Sugar Honeycombs in "Stick to the Team"

Ali is a polite and grateful man who is one of the most altruistic Players in the game, risking his life by saving Gi-hun in Red Light, Green Light, even if it would mean death for someone he barely knew. He would also repeatedly thank others for doing him small favors, such as Sang-woo lending him his phone and paying for his bus fare. Being the most kind-hearted among the players, he is a bit naïve and would easily fall into hindsight which has caused him trouble. Usually calm, he can be emotional at times, such when he tried to get his paycheck that he needed, or during Marbles when he realized he had been betrayed by Sang-woo.

Physical appearance

Ali is a Pakistani young man with a slightly below average height, brown skin and curly dark hair. He has brown eyes and faint stubble. He has two missing fingers on his left hand, from a previous accident at work. He is shown to have immense strength, as he lifted Gi-hun by his jacket one-handed, who was physically bigger than Ali himself, saving him from getting eliminated in Red Light, Green Light using his injured hand, and being able to carry a steel beam during the lights out.

History

Ali immigrated to South Korea from Pakistan in order to get a well-rounded job. Unfortunately, he had to leave his parents behind in the process. He found work at a factory that hired other immigrants like him. He lived in Ansan with his wife, and they had a son together in 2019. Later that year, his boss began to deny him his paycheck. This continued over the span of next six months, during which he lost two fingers in a work accident.

Ali moved from Pakistan to South Korea to support his wife and son, so he started working in a factory, but the Factory owner was a greedy guy and didn't pay Ali for 6 months, which made Ali unable to support his family, also caused Ali unable to pay for a hospital when he suffered a work accident that caused him to lose his ring and pinky fingers on his left hand.[4] A Recruiter offered Ali the chance to play Ddakji to win money and gave him an invitation card to the Squid Games. Ali decided to join the games to earn money for his family (becoming Player 199), so he was picked up by a van and taken to the Island where the games were held.

Ali woke up in a huge Dormitory along with 455 other players and the Pink Guards arrived. When the players started asking questions, Ali asked what they would be playing, to which the guards said they would not give out advance information to ensure fair participation. Ali signed a consent form and took his player photo. During the first game, Red Light, Green Light, it was revealed that players would be killed if they lost, Ali managed to stay still and remained alive. Near the end, Seong Gi-hun (Player 456) tripped over a corpse and almost fell to the ground, but Ali grabbed him and held him, saving Gi-hun from dying. With 3 seconds left, Ali and Gi-hun ran, jumped and managed to cross the finish line, surviving the game.

Upon returning to the dorm, Ali sat next to Gi-hun and Cho Sang-woo (Player 218) and Gi-hun thanked Ali and Sang-woo for saving his life, to which Ali told him that she was happy that he was alive. When a vote was held to decide whether to continue or end the games, Ali voted for "X" to end the games and return to his family; from 201 players, 100 voted for "O" and 100 voted for "X", leaving the final decision up to Oh Il-nam (Player 001). The old man thought about his decision... and voted for "X", closing the vote 100-101 and ending the games. Ali celebrated along with the "X" voters for having won and being able to return home.

Ali ultimately decides to voluntarily return after he accidentally injures his boss after he pushed him into rolling machine, crushing his fingers during a confrontation about the fact that his boss hasn't paid him for six months. He takes the opportunity to steal an envelope of cash from his boss, runs away, and give it to his wife, telling her to return to Pakistan with their child, promising he will return to them soon.[4]

Unfamiliar with the ins and outs of many Korean games, Ali is at a disadvantage as soon as he steps foot in the game play arena. But, trusting of his fellow man, he naively leans on his newfound allies for support, allowing them to guide him through the competition. At the start of the game, Ali's plan seems to be working, but as tensions rise and players became more ruthless, he unintentionally leaves himself vulnerable to the unrelenting nature of the game. He enters into an alliance with several other players, including Gi-hun and Cho Sang-woo, the latter of whom he has particular admiration for due to acts of kindness Sang-woo showed him outside of the Squid Game.[5][6]

Players are instructed to pair off into teams of two to prepare for the fourth game of the competition. Unsure what the next task will be, Sang-woo, one of the more strategic players, asks to team up with Ali, who is quickly identified as one of the youngest and strongest competitors. Together, he insists they'll be an unstoppable team and make it to the end. Holding a deep respect for Sang-woo and his kindness, Ali agrees to team up with him after only a brief moment of hesitation, waiting for Gi-hun's approval.

To begin the next game, the guards distribute small bags containing ten marbles each to every player. Moments later, the disembodied voice over the loudspeaker reveals that the teams won't actually be competing together but facing off in a one-on-one marble game of their choice, with the losers facing immediate elimination. Unfamiliar with any sort of marble game, Ali lets Sang-woo choose and ends up playing a guessing game in which they pick an odd or even number of marbles to conceal in their hands. When Ali revealed he did not understand what "odd" and "even" meant, Sang-woo explained to him, along with the rules of the game. Taking turns, they then guess whether their opponent is holding an even or odd number of marbles. If they guess correctly, they're allowed to keep the other's marbles.

Even though he's never played before, Ali quickly ends up winning every round, enraging Sang-woo who accuses him of lying and cheating. Afraid, Ali apologizes but insists he's been playing fairly. After Sang-woo calms down, he tells Ali he's sorry for losing his temper and convinces him he's come up with a plan to outsmart the system so that they'll both make it out of the game alive.

Fate

Ali's death.

Sang-woo, where are you? Sang-woo? Sang-woo, hello? I'm done with this side. Sang-woo!
Sang-woo!

Ali's last words before getting shot by a Soldier in "Gganbu"

With no reason to believe Sang-woo would betray him so far, Ali agrees to Sang-woo's plan and watches as he takes his sack of marbles to make him a cloth necklace out of fabric from his shirt, which he tells Ali will make it easier for him to carry the bag and keep it safe from other players. Sang-woo then insists they should split up to observe the other players and meet up again with three minutes left in the game.

Unfortunately for Ali, Sang-woo's plan was a trick to distract him. With minutes left in the challenge, Sang-woo turns in the bag of marbles he stole from Ali, securing his safety. After returning to the meeting point with three minutes left, as Sang-woo told him, Ali desperately searched for his partner and called out his name. In a moment of realization, he discovered that Sang-woo replaced his marbles with rocks and his plan was to betray him all along. A tear sheds from his eye as he realizes that he will never get to see his family again and give them money. A guard then shoots him for losing the game a moment after, and his body is later placed in a box to be incinerated.

Trivia

Despite having two of his fingers missing thanks to his work as a factory worker, Ali Abdul has incredible strength, as shown during the Red Light, Green Light, Special Round and Tug of War games.

Ali and Player 276 are the only known non-Korean players, being both Pakistani. Both characters are killed in the Marbles round and have their actors' nationalities not matching the characters' nationalities. In Ali's case, he is from Pakistan while his actor is from India.

Ali recruited Player 276 to his team by welcoming him with the Adaab gesture. () "Adab" refers to a hand gesture and a concept of etiquette and respect, particularly in South Asian and Islamic contexts. In the context of a hand gesture, it's a respectful greeting, commonly used by Urdu speakers and others in the Indian subcontinent, involving raising the hand to the eyes with the palm inward while bowing the upper body.

Ali's player number (199) is a prime number.

Despite having a important moment in RLGL saving Gi-hun, he does not appear at any other previous moment during RLGL.

He and Kang Dae-ho have the same digit sum ($1+9+9 = 19$ and $3+8+8 = 19$). This is most likely a coincidence.

Coincidentally enough, both died in their respective 4th game by the hands of their closest friends.

In a scene where Gi-hun pretends to eat, Ali can be seen laughing a bit.

Ali can be seen speaking 5 languages throughout Season 1, including Arabic, Hindi, Urdu, Korean and English.

Ali shares similarities with Cho Hyun-ju: both are kind, caring and selfless characters who are determined to save anyone, both helped Seong Gi-hun in Red Light, Green Light, both died from being killed by an ally (Sang-woo for Ali, Myung-gi for Hyun-ju) in the fourth game, and both are the respective minority representation for the season(s) they feature in.

Ali is the only close friend of Gi-hun from S1 who is not mentioned in the S2.

Ali has seen the Matrix and given his excited reaction when he guesses it correctly, he presumably enjoyed it.

Anupam Tripathi, Ali's actor, presented along with Hwang Dong-hyuk, the creator of the series, are seen in a BTS video from the set of the real-life challenge of the series: Squid Game: The Challenge.

Anupam was dressed just like Ali (Player 199), Dong-huyk called him "Ali" and upon arriving at the Marbles' game hall, Anupam and Dong-hyuk talked about that Ali died during Marbles in the original series.

American Squid Games

Title: American Squid Games

URL: https://squid-game.fandom.com/wiki/American_Squid_Games

The American Squid Games represent the United States of America's iteration of the globally infamous Squid Game franchise. Little is known about the inner workings of this version, aside from the fact that the recruitment of participants occurs in Los Angeles, California, orchestrated by the American Recruiter. Despite the scarcity of information, it stands as the most prominent and, to date, the only officially confirmed installment of the Squid Game universe set outside of South Korea, hinting at the international expansion and enduring reach of the deadly competition. It was likely the first or one of the first countries to have the Squid Games outside of South Korea, possibly starting in the late 1990s or in the late 2010s, with the first editions were already going in 2013 (according to the squid archives in 2013 VIPs were a thing and so also international squid games).

The V.I.P.s are the overarching antagonists of Squid Game. Comprised of extraordinarily wealthy business magnates from a diverse array of nationalities, they are principal investors behind the Squid Games who travel to South Korea specifically to observe the games firsthand. They not only finance the operations but also derive personal amusement and entertainment by wagering on the outcomes of the Participants.

The V.I.P.s are notorious for attending Squid Game events beyond Korea, extending their influence to international franchises. However, they assert in Season 1 that the original Korean iteration of the Game remains the most compelling and superior version.

History[]

Season 1[]

The V.I.P.s were originally clients of Oh Il-nam and his financial firm. At some point, having grown weary of their lives of immense wealth and privilege, they convened and established the Squid Games as a means of personal amusement and diversion. Leveraging their considerable capital, the V.I.P.s financed the operation, ensuring that Oh Il-nam and his associates had all necessary resources to organize and execute the Games with meticulous precision.

Midway through the 33rd game, the V.I.P.s arrived on the island to observe the Squid Game firsthand. They were received by Front Man, as Oh Il-nam was unable to attend personally, having secretly entered the competition as a participant. The V.I.P.s witnessed the fifth round, in which the sixteen remaining players were required to traverse a bridge composed of alternating tempered glass and regular glass panels—stepping on the wrong panel would result in a fatal fall.

During this time, Hwang Jun-ho infiltrates the observation area disguised as a waiter he had previously incapacitated. Seated next to the Panther Mask V.I.P., he becomes the target of the VIP's flirtations. The V.I.P. demands that Jun-ho remove his disguise, but Jun-ho, seeking to avoid detection, suggests moving somewhere private instead. Once isolated, the V.I.P. attempts to assault Jun-ho; however, Jun-ho draws his weapon and compels the VIP to divulge all information he possesses, which Jun-ho records. Jun-ho then incapacitates the V.I.P. and escapes, leaving the VIP to be later discovered by a masked guard. The VIPs watching Player 360 dying They would later observe the final round of the Squid Game, in which Seong Gi-hun and Cho Sang-woo competed to determine the ultimate victor. When Gi-hun defeated Sang-woo but hesitated to claim victory, attempting to end the game prematurely, the V.I.P.s reacted with visible disbelief. Following Sang-woo's suicide, which enabled Gi-hun to secure his win, the V.I.P.s departed the island and returned to their respective homes. Whether they were disappointed or satisfied with yet another successful and entertaining Squid Game remains unknown.

Season 3[]

The 37th Squid Game VIPs watching the vote after the 4th game while dining

For the 37th Squid Game, a new cadre of VIPs, including a female member, was invited to observe the fifth and sixth games, consistent with prior protocol. Unlike the VIPs of the 33rd Squid Game, this delegation arrived prior to the fourth game, positioning themselves to actively participate in the execution of the game's losers alongside the soldier contingent. They also monitored the voting process in real time via live display and partook in formal dining with Front Man, further underscoring their privileged integration into the operations of the Squid Game.

Prior to the fifth Squid Game round, the V.I.P.s collectively consented to recognize Kim Jun-hee's infant as a legitimate participant. Following Jun-hee's death, they sanctioned Front Man's proposal to enroll the child as Player 222, thereby formally integrating the infant into the competition.

Trivia[]

Squid Game VIP Actor Reacts To 'Bad Acting' Complaints

Curiously, the two competitors on whom VIP 4 placed wagers—Player 069 and Player 096—interacted with the final two players, Player 218 and Player 456, respectively, in ways that indirectly precipitated their deaths.

BloodCoin is a cryptocurrency developed and utilized by the V.I.P.s as the official betting currency for Squid Game events. Engineered to anonymize high-stakes wagers on player outcomes, Blood Coin operates on a private blockchain accessible exclusively to this elite cadre of ultra-wealthy individuals.[citation needed]

The performances of the V.I.P.s have been characterized as bizarre depictions of “depraved, affluent Western men.” Several actors portraying the V.I.P.s reported that director Hwang Dong-hyuk specifically instructed them to adopt this exaggerated style. Due to spatial arrangements on set, they were positioned far apart and required to project their lines loudly to ensure audibility. Geoffrey Giuliano, the actor for VIP 4, offered to revise the dialogue to make it sound more natural; however, the offer was declined due to time constraints. Additionally, Hwang Dong-hyuk instructed Mr. Giuliano not to ad-lib, despite his habitual improvisational approach to acting.

To date, only five V.I.P.s have been seen unmasked: VIP 4 from Season 1, and all V.I.P.s from Season 3 excluding VIP John.

According to Dong-hyuk, the Season 3 V.I.P.s, who participate as soldiers in the Hide and Seek game, exemplify extreme moral degradation. Their willingness to unmask symbolizes how the ultra-wealthy in contemporary society feel increasingly unconstrained by the need for anonymity.

In reality, the V.I.P.s are far more numerous than depicted in the series, as additional investors observe Squid Game franchises in other countries. Given the variation in each annual Squid Game cohort and the extensive number of V.I.P.s, it remains uncertain which individuals across the three seasons were longstanding clients of Oh Il-nam, especially since some appear to be too young to have been active at the time of the game's inception.

In the Squid Archives room, there are two separate archives for the V.I.P.s visible in . One being for the V.I.P.s for each edition of the games and one for "V.I.P Candidates".

The V.I.P.s in Season 3 did find out about the Revolt, despite In-ho had kept it under wraps, and seeing mostly the aftermath of it and the games being continued after it failed.

According to Bryan Bucco, the actor portraying VIP John, the dialogue of the Season 3 V.I.P.s was dubbed in English despite originally being performed in English.

Anupam Tripathi (아누팜 트리파티 Anupam Teuripati?) is an Indian actor who portrayed Ali Abdul/Player 199 in Season 1 of the Netflix TV series Squid Game. He does not have a middle name.

Anupam was born in New Delhi, India to a middle-class family. He began training in singing and acting in 2006.

Anupam moved to South Korea in 2010 to attend Korea National University of Arts, where he has stayed since. He cited an initial difficulty in adjusting to the cultural and language difference. As of 2021, Anupam is finishing his master's degree in acting.

In 2024, Anupam completed his master's degree in acting.

Career[]

Anupam began acting in South Korean plays and commercials during his third year in university. His first feature film credit was in Ode to My Father (2014). Anupam had a minor role of a bomb expert who is fighting for Korean independence in the play 불량청년, which was selected for the 36th Seoul Theater Festival. He has gone on to have various minor unnamed roles on films such as Space Sweepers (2021) and Vanishing (2021).

Anupam's first main cast credit was as the Pakistani foreign worker Ali Abdul on the Netflix original series Squid Game.

Ball in a Cup is a game featured as the first mini-game in the Six-Legged Pentathlon in Squid Game: The Challenge Season 2.

Game Information[]

Objective: The player in charge of this mini-game must get the ball, attached by a string to the base of the cup, into the cup through a whipping motion to launch it over the brim. Once the player gets the ball into the cup, the team passes this mini-game.

The player is not allowed to touch the ball, or any part of the cup besides the handle.

Han Tae-bin (한태빈 Han Tae-bin?), also known as Player 355, is a man from South Korea who competed in the Squid Games.

In-game description[]

Han 'Binnie' Tae-bin dazzles in designer threads, trying to live a champagne lifestyle on a soju budget. At Seoul's most exclusive clubs and glamorous parties, Binnie spends big to maintain a glossy facade.

But when his credit runs dry and the loan sharks come calling, Binnie turns to the Squid Game to keep his carefully crafted image - and possibly his kneecaps - from getting shattered.

Park Jung-bae before completing Biseokchigi on his first go in "One More Game" Biseokchigi (비석치기 Bi-seog Chi-gi?), also known as Flying Stone, is a traditional Korean game featured as the second mini-game in the Six-Legged Pentathlon.

Game Information[]

Objective: The player in charge of this mini-game must use a stone given by a Worker to hit a small tombstone placed 3-4 meters away by throwing it. Once the tombstone is knocked, the team passes this mini-game

A key rule is that the player must not cross the designated throwing line while attempting to hit the tombstone. If the player hits the tombstone but steps on or crosses the line, the throw does not count and they must try again.

Notable players who participated in this mini-game include Player 007 (Park Yong-sik), Player 045, Player 198 (Jang Do-yeong), Player 380 (Se-mi), and Player 390 (Park Jung-bae).

Trivia[]

In the episode "The Man with the Umbrella", Gi-hun briefly mentioned Biseokchigi, wondering what the next game could be.

Traditionally, this game is played with real stones or bricks. In the past, children would grab any flat stones resembling a tombstone to play on the streets. For safety reasons, it is now commonly played using thick cardboard or wood during school events or competitions.

The best way to achieve a successful throw is by using an underhand motion and rolling the stone along the ground, which is what Se-mi did.

In traditional street play, the size and weight of the stone could vary, making some tombstones harder to hit than others.

Game Information[]

When the game starts, the Hiders have 2 minutes to explore the maze. Their goal is either to hide until the game ends, or to find an exit before they get killed by the Red Team within 30 minutes. Each member of the Hiders is given a key with different shape (either square, triangle, or circle). They may use the keys to unlock the doors in the maze, but once a door is unlocked, it cannot be relocked. They may also kill the red team to defend themselves. If one member of the Hiders gets killed by the Red Team, that hider will be eliminated from the game, and the Seeker that killed them will pass.

Park Yong-sik(Player 007)

Stabbed in the back by using a hidden knife in her hairpin to defend Jun-hee and her newborn which ultimately caused him to fail to kill at least one hider when the 30-minute time ran out and got shot 6 times by a soldier, off-screen; indirectly killed by Jang Geum-ja.

Trivia[]

Although one of the hiders' main goals was to find the exit and get out, only Jeong-dae is seen accomplishing it.

Hyun-ju is the only hider who is known to have killed a seeker.

Player 185 was originally supposed to be a hider[1], but was instead killed by Nam-gyu in the Special Game.

Kim Yun-tae was also supposed to be a hider, but his role was switched in the final show.

Out of 30 Hiders, only 7 had passed the game without being seen by a seeker or found the exit, making the Hiders role having a survival rate of 23.33%.

There are 7 hiders that were killed by offscreen seekers due to their eliminations being announced off-screen: Players 009, 024, 134, 197, 241, 344 and 418.

Nam-gyu and Lee Myung-gi killed the most hiders and indirectly caused 5 seekers to die from them.

Dae-ho is the only Hider who died without getting stabbed.

Im Jeong-dae was the only Hider to be a finalist.

If a hider escapes through the exit, it will not be announced that he passed the game, this was seen with Jeong-dae.

Player 334 and Player 350 are the only hiders whose corpses are never seen.

Kim Yeong-Sam's comment to Im Jeong-Dae at the beginning in the lobby, "That's what you're good at. Hiding like a rat," could be said to be quite accurate, given that although logic would suggest that players like 024, 134, 197, Park-Jae Cheol (Player 235), and 418, who participated in either the Special Game or the Bathroom Fight, demonstrated the ability to defend themselves and kill, but failed to advance, the hiders who did advance had a much lower profile and none had committed a murder directly by that point in the game, reinforcing the perception that the best strategy was to hide and not actively seek the exit.

Two Hiders died without explanation, and it was originally intended for Player 191 to pass the game, as he is present on a board in the fifth game which lists most of the other players who perish in that game, meaning it was originally intended for one of the two Hiders to be his kill.

Oh Il-nam (오일남 O Il-nam?, died December 25, 2021), also known as Player 001, is the overarching antagonist of Squid Game and one of the two main antagonists (alongside Cho Sang-woo) of Season 1.

He was a rich financial tycoon who was the creator and host of the Squid Games. In 2020, he competed as an elderly participant in the 33rd Squid Game to relive his childhood memories before he died in the next year.[1]

Personality

After becoming overly successful, Oh Il-nam was always looking for new ways to have fun. Il-nam seems to have affection for his family, especially his son, based on how he speaks about them. He rationalized the Squid Games by stating that they offered some fun and believed that poor people who played the games suffered as much as wealthy people in terms of lacking purpose.

Il-nam participated in the last death game he created while nearing the end of his life, the 33rd Squid Game, and genuinely enjoyed playing it. During the game, he befriended Seong Gi-hun and became his gganbu. Gi-hun was probably the first genuine friend Il-nam had in a long time, and because of this, Il-nam enjoyed playing with him. Before his death, Il-nam explained to Gi-hun that playing with him made him remember things from the past he had long forgotten and spent his final moments talking him out of his survivor's guilt and encouraging him to use his money rather than waste his life away. He also casted the decisive vote in the 33rd Squid Game, allowing the participants to go home.

History

As a child, Oh Il-nam would play with his friends until they got bored. Some of the games Il-nam played during his childhood included Red Light, Green Light; Marbles; and Tug of War, rarely ever losing the latter. At some point, he got married and had at least one child a son.

Il-nam explaining his decision to play in the 33rd Squid Game to the Front Man.

Eventually, Il-nam became a businessman and tycoon through loan sharking but got bored with living a rich lifestyle. He then befriended some clients in his financial corporation, who shared Il-nam's thoughts on life being no fun for them despite their riches. Wanting to have some fun, Il-nam and his clients came up with the idea of the Squid Games, which began in 1988. Il-nam's clients became the VIPs, who have spectated the games ever since. Il-nam himself became the host, spectating the games alongside the VIPs from 1988 to 2019. At an unknown point during the year of 2015, Il-nam offered Player 132 (Hwang In-ho) a knife to kill the other finalists after the fifth game of the 28th Squid Game. Why he offered him in particular is unclear.

By 2020, Il-nam was diagnosed with a brain tumour and had not very long left to live. Wanting to relive his childhood memories before his death, Il-nam believed he would have more fun playing the 33rd Squid Game rather than watching it; therefore, he decided to participate in the game as Player 001.

When Seong Gi-hun first wakes up in his bunk bed at the training facility, one of the first details he picks up on is that every player has been assigned a number based on when they were recruited. As the last of the 456 players to sign his contract, Gi-hun is Player 456. In what seems like a happy coincidence at the time, the first person Gi-hun speaks to is Il-nam.

Taking pity on the older man for being at such a physical and mental disadvantage in the game, Gi-hun befriends Il-nam ahead of the first round. When it becomes clear that the games they're participating in are potentially fatal, most of the players panic and rush to find a way to escape, unlike Il-nam who remains unfazed and manages to inch across the line with a smile on his face in the "Red Light, Green Light" game before Gi-hun makes it across. Il-nam wearing his VIP mask. After the first game, the players decided to vote to end the games, among 201 players, the vote was tied 100-100, leaving the final decision in the hands of Il-nam, the old man thought about his decision and voted for "X", finishing the vote 100-101 and ending the games. After the games are temporarily cancelled, Gi-hun has a surprise encounter with Il-nam at a convenience store a few blocks from his house. When Gi-hun asks Il-nam what he's doing in the area, Il-nam explains he was visiting a friend and sits down with Gi-hun to talk over a packet of ramen noodles. The two get along and Il-nam uses their time together to discuss his desire to re-enter the games, remarking that he won't live much longer anyway, and he thinks that the outside world is a worse hell than the games. He states he prefers to play the games, claiming he might even have a chance to win, then just sit around waiting to slowly die from his brain tumor. Influenced by Il-nam's words and his mother's medical bills, Gi-hun also decides to return.

As the games continue, Gi-hun and Il-nam form an alliance with Ali Abdul, a factory worker from Pakistan, and Gi-hun's former classmate Cho Sang-woo. Despite his physical and mental disadvantages, Il-nam is able to breeze through the Sugar Honeycombs in round two and provided a tactical plan for the rest of his team in the tug-of-war challenge in round three which, along with a last-minute strategy by Sang-woo, helps them win. He also helped end the Special Game by pleading with the staff to "stop this madness" moments before the Pink Guards enter the room to stop it. At one point during the games, before Marbles, Il-nam had wet himself during the night, which Gi-hun covered up by tying his jacket round him.

The next day, Gi-hun and the other surviving players proceed to the next game and begin picking teams. Gi-hun notices that Il-nam had wet himself the previous night and covers it up by tying his tracksuit round him. He later notices Il-nam sitting alone and decides to become his partner for the next game. They are then introduced to the fourth game, Marbles. To win the game, the players have to try to steal all of their opponent's marbles without violence while playing a sub-game with them. The person who ends up with no marbles is killed off and eliminated. They have a time limit of 30 minutes. If no one wins by then, both players will be eliminated. Their opponent in the game is who they chose to be their partner. This comes as a shock to everyone as they had partnered up with someone they trust, not knowing what the game really was. Il-nam becoming gganbu with Seong Gi-hun before their game of Marbles. Gi-hun tries to play the game with Il-nam, but the old man seemingly has suffered a severe lapse in his lucidity. He wanders around the game arena, saying this is his home neighborhood and tries to find his house. Because of the old man's confusion, it takes a lot of insistence for Gi-hun to convince him to play. When Il-nam finally accepts to play marbles, Gi-hun finds himself losing until he has one marble left, but realizing Il-nam cannot remember his bet, lies to him and begins winning back their marbles. Eventually, Il-nam finds himself out of marbles and asks 456 if he could borrow one marble. Gi-hun apologizes and is about to hand over his marbles to a guard, when Il-nam reveals he has one marble left. Gi-hun then frantically counts his marbles and sure enough, he is one short and has not won yet. However, instead of continuing the game, Il-nam gets back up again and continues "searching for his house". Gi-hun follows Il-nam around, begging him to keep playing. The old man suggests betting everything on one game, to which Gi-hun is outraged. However, Il-nam then reveals that he was aware of Gi-hun's deception the whole time and has been letting him win. Disgusted at his own actions, Gi-hun begins to cry, but Il-nam hands him his last marble, letting him win anyway, saying that they're "gganbu" who share everything with each other. Gi-hun sobs uncontrollably while the old man hugs and reassures him, telling him that he made his time in the games more enjoyable. Eventually, the timer hits zero, and Gi-hun is forced to leave his friend. Before Gi-hun is escorted out, Il-nam tells him he finally remembers his full name: Oh Il-nam. After Gi-hun left Il-nam with a soldier, a gunshot is heard, and the announcer says that Il-nam was eliminated. Gi-hun continues to slowly walk away, crying.

Il-nam explaining his actions to Gi-hun.

One year after the 33rd Squid Game, Il-nam invited the winner, Gi-hun, to his deathbed. He reveals to Gi-hun that his brain tumor has gotten even more aggressive than before, as seen with his respirator and bald head. Il-nam revealed his role as the creator and host of the Squid Games and explained his motivations to an angry Gi-hun. It is revealed that he was an extremely rich man who made his fortune by lending out money as a career. He created the Games as a source of amusement for other very wealthy people, who would bet on the outcomes and survivors of the games. Il-nam believed the Squid Games ultimately provided a service for the contestants as well, because even though the majority of them were killed, it also provided a distraction from their monotonous lives and an opportunity to win money and escape from their dire financial situations. He also viewed the games as a test of whether people have any innate goodness remaining, and after years of watching contestants betray each other to survive, he had adopted a pessimistic view of the nature of humanity.

Fate

It had been such a long time... since I... was able to have that much fun.

Il-nam's last words before dying in "One Lucky Day"

Il-nam's death.

Il-nam also explained that he participated in the Squid Games just to have some final enjoyment in his life, as he had always been a spectator and never a participant. He made a final wager regarding the nature of humanity, observing a drunk man passed out on the street and betting whether he would receive help or not. With his final words, Il-nam reveals the reason he let Gi-hun live is because he genuinely enjoyed playing with him during the games, noting it'd been such a long time since he'd had that much fun. Gi-hun wins the bet, and Il-nam actually dies moments later. Hwang In-ho later stood next to the bed of Il-nam, reflecting on the conversation he'd had with him a year before during the 33rd Squid Game before closing his eyes and walking away, assuming full control of the games following Il-nam's death.

Legacy

In "△", Il-nam is seen in his VIP attire during In-ho's flashback to his offer from 2015.

Later in the same episode, when Kang No-eul investigated the host room, she happened to stumble upon both of Il-nam's statues; one that is a mannequin with his VIP suit, and the other is a wax figure, identically resembles Il-nam appearance with his Player 001 attire during the 33rd Squid Game in 2020. The wax figure is presumably created to honor Il-nam's legacy after his death in 2021, from a brain tumor.

Why the hesitation? Tomorrow morning, the others will come for you, doing everything they can to kill you. So, take the knife and kill them. At this point, it is the best chance you got.

Players

Created Squid Game, designed to kill at most 455 players annually, and by making the Special Game, he drove people insane to the point of killing others after finding out that more deaths are equal to more money. People excluded are the players in every edition of the games that didn't return after voting (notably Player 066) and himself in the 33rd Squid Game, Park Gyeong-seok and Kim Jun-hee's baby in the 37th Squid Game, and Hwang In-ho in the 28th and 37th editions. The exact number of deceased players are unknown, since it's possible the games we're voted to be terminate not only during the 33rd Squid Game, but in other Annual games off-screen too.

" △ "Final Dinner(Flashback)

28th Squid Game Finalists

Gave Hwang In-ho his dagger and told him to kill them by slitting each of their throats one by one which he ended up did making him the Winner of the 28th Squid Game.

Relationships

Seong Gi-hun (close friend) - Il-nam developed a close friendship with Gi-hun during the 33rd Squid Game's. It's quite possible that Gi-hun is the only person, other than Il-nam's wife and son, that he genuinely cared about, largely due to Gi-hun reminding Il-nam of his son and his kindness. As in the 33rd Squid Game he's mostly honest with Gi-hun telling him about his past sharing food with him and generally helped him out in the games as much as he can. In Marbles he let Gi-hun to defeat him and move on as he generally did have fun with Gi-hun seeing him as a true friend. It's noticeable that Il-nam summoned Gi-hun to see and talk to him again when he was on his death bed as he didn't like Gi-hun wasting his life away.

Hwang In-ho (student and successor) - Il-nam and In-ho have a mysterious but close relationship. Il-nam meet In-ho in the the 28th Squid Game. Il-nam offered him a knife to kill the other finalists after the fifth game. Why he offered him in particular is currently unknown, but he eventually chose In-ho as his second in command and successor. They appear to share the same view on humanity seeing it as selfish and cruel. Despite his lack of regard for game staff's lives, In-ho seems to truly care for and respect Il-nam making sure his boss was safe in the 33rd Squid Game ending the Special Game at his request. In-ho also visited Il-nam's death bed to pay his respects. Even after Il-nam's death In-ho along with the VIPs, continue to show great respect and admiration for Oh Il-nam, even joining them in raising a toast in his memory.

Team Four (partners for Tug of War) - Il-nam didn't search for a partner like how Gi-hun suggested to his small team, sitting alone. He admits he didn't bring a partner. However, Han Mi-nyeo joins their team at the last second, forming the complete Team Four. He was the one who made the others apply his strategy to action, like how he had played Tug of War as a child back then. And it nearly fails due to Team Five's brute force, until Cho Sang-woo's last minute trick made their team succeed and complete the game.

Foreshadowing

There have been multiple details in episodes of Season 1 that indicate Il-nam's role is not just a player. Here are those listed:

In Red Light, Green Light, Il-nam is the only player who continues playing the game as normally after the initial panic and is, in fact, seemingly joyful during the entire thing.

In Hell, despite Gi-hun's previous conversation with Il-nam inferring that the latter would continue playing due to the tumor, Il-nam chooses to press X much to Gi-hun's relief.

Additionally, Il-nam is the only player outside the games who wasn't shown in a personal or financial crisis, only showing up when meeting Gi-hun and going back to the Squid Games through the van. Il-nam was the only player not shown being gassed out of the other players that were shown being picked up.

If one looks closely during the convenience store conversation, a similar van used by the guards to pick up players was parked behind Gi-hun. The van used by the guards parked behind Gi-hun during his conversation with Il-nam in Hell.

In Stick to the Team, the Front Man ceases the Special Game right after Il-nam says to end it all.

At the same episode, Il-nam gives advice on how to win Tug-of-War to the best of his team's advantage. While this may seem normal considering his age, this can also be interpreted that he knows more than just street smarts.

In A Fair World, after Team Four won the Tug-of-War, Il-nam is the only player whose shackles weren't locked.

This could be up to debate as the producers might consider Oh Yeong-su's age at the time of filming.

In Gganbu, Il-nam is the only main character whose corpse is not shown nor is he seen being shot, as his "death" was off-screen. Also, there is not a sound of his corpse dropping.

Il-nam also reminisces that this layout is familiar to his old neighborhood. This implies the layout is modeled after Il-nam's actual neighborhood.

He also temporarily "loses his memory" and regains it at the perfect time to shame Gi-hun.

Continuing the same episode above, Il-nam is the only player not seeking a pair, because he presumably knew that the player count was odd and that the person without a pair was let go without being shot.

Jun-ho finds records of the 33rd Squid Game, and Player 002 is the first to be shown. This is because Il-nam is a host.

His player number, 001, foreshadows his role in the Squid Games.

His name, Il-nam, literally translates to "First Man".

Trivia

He is not listed as a player in the 33rd Squid Game archives due to him being a host, as the book starts with Player 002.[2]

When visiting with his fellow VIPs, he wears a mirrored owl mask.

He is the last character who died in the first season.

Il-nam states that people will look down on Gi-hun if he doesn't have a jacket. This is reflected in Season 3 with not only Gi-hun, but also with Jang Geum-ja and Kim Jun-hee, who all end up with no jacket, and are essentially at the bottom amongst the players.

He is one of the three characters in the series that died from natural causes, alongside Oh Mal-soon and Hwang In-ho's wife.

Season 1 Episode 6's title is a reference to Il-nam, and he is one of five characters or groups in the series to have at least one episode refer to them, alongside Seong Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho, Kim Jun-hee, and the VIPs as a whole.

His given name begins with 'il,' which also means one, so when his elimination is announced, it sounds very similar to his name.

Front Man is the only episode of season one he was not featured in.

Behind the scenes

Oh Il-nam was portrayed by actor Oh Yeong-su. He is indirectly the overarching antagonist of Squid Game, due to his role as the creator of the event.

History[]

Cheol was born in 2011 in North Hamgyong Province, North Korea, as the youngest child of his family. His older brother and his maternal grandparents died in a plague.

When his family attempted to defect to South Korea, Cheol's father died in the process, and his mother survived but was unable to cross the border successfully. Cheol and his sister Sae-byeok, however, managed to reach the South, but Cheol was left in an orphanage due to absences of his father and mother. Sae-byeok was unable to care for him due to her participation in the Squid Game (which she entered in order to bring their mother down from the North and buy a house for them all to live in).

In 2021, Seong Gi-hun picks an eleven-year-old Cheol up at the orphanage and introduces himself as Sae-byeok's good friend. Cheol asks him if he knows where his sister is, but Gi-hun doesn't answer. Gi-hun brings Cheol to Sang-woo's mother so she can take care of him, as well as giving them a suitcase full of money. By doing this, he fulfills his promises to both of the other 33rd Squid Game finalists. He remains in her care until May 2025, when Cheol finally reunites with his mother at the airport.

Trivia[]

Kang Cheol has a single character in his first name, a trait shared with Choi Hyuk.

He, Seong Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho, Hwang Jun-ho, Park Man-cheol, Cho Sang-woo's mother, Kang Sae-byeok, Park Jung-bae, and Gyeong-taek are the only characters to appear in all 3 seasons of Squid Game.

Out of all the kids that appeared in the show like Seong Ga-yeong, Park Na-yeon, Seong Ga-yeong's Stepbrother, Ali Abdul's Son and Kim Jun-hee's Daughter, he is the oldest one among them.

History[]

Sang-woo's mother is the owner of a small store selling dried fish. She is a loving and devoted mother who is very proud of Sang-woo's accomplishments, which makes him deeply afraid of disappointing her in any way. She isn't aware of his debts and believes that he's away on business in the United States. When the police tell her that they have a warrant for his arrest because of financial fraud, she is shocked and refuses to believe it, asserting her son's good nature when the police question his whereabouts. The only desires she expresses are for Gi-hun to take good care of his mother and for Sang-woo to be well.

When Sang-woo commits suicide in the final game, his last request is for Gi-hun to help his mother. After Gi-hun returns to the neighborhood, he encounters Sang-woo's mother, who is shocked and worried upon seeing his injuries. She gives him some dried mackerel and informs him that she hasn't seen or heard from his mother for a couple of days. Gi-hun doesn't say anything and tries to give her some money, but she tells him to give it to his mom. As Gi-hun leaves, she asks him if he heard from her son, and he's unable to answer.

After Oh Il-nam's death in 2021, Gi-hun brings Sae-byeok's little brother to be cared for by Sang-woo's mother. She asks him his name and tells him he looks like a tough boy. She agrees to look after him and takes a suitcase from Gi-hun. After Gi-hun has left, Sang-woo's mother gives the boy food and opens the suitcase to give him warmer clothes for the cold weather. When opening the suitcase, it's full of money that Gi-hun won in the Squid Games. It has a note that says it's the money Gi-hun owes Sang-woo.

Three years later, she is still caring for Cheol. Gi-hun watches from a distance as Cheol runs to his caretaker. About 6 months after the 37th Squid Game, she accompanies Cheol as he reunites with his mother.

Personality[]

She is a caring mother who is very proud of her son. She refuses to believe it when she is informed of her son's crimes, indicating that she is very trusting of her loved ones. She also takes good care of Kang Cheol as if he were her actual grandson, even though they are not related at all. This implies that she is very sympathetic and kind, treating everyone with love no matter who they are.

Trivia[]

She is one of the nine characters that appear in all 3 seasons, the others being Seong Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho, Hwang Jun-ho, Park Man-cheol, Kang Cheol, Kang Sae-byeok, Park Jung-bae, and Gyeong-taek.

Subsequently, she is the only female character to appear in all 3 seasons and end up alive.

She is the only character to appear in all 3 seasons but whose name is unknown.

She along with Kang Cheol, Park Man-cheol and Gyeong-taek are the only characters seen in all seasons that doesn't know or have any relationship with the Squid Game organization (Relationship as of being a player, guard, vip, or etc).

Behind the Scenes[]

Sang-woo's mother was portrayed by Park Hye-jin. In the English dub, she is voiced by Paige Leong.

Information[]

Thanos (Player 230) recognized Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) as MG Coin, a YouTuber who made crypto investments and convinced his followers to invest in a crypto that turned out to be a scam, resulting in losses of millions. Thanos befriended Nam-gyu (Player 124) after discovering they had both been victims of the scam and confronted Myung-gi. Thanos began to blame Myung-gi for causing him to lose millions and told him that he wanted him to pay back what he lost in that scam. Myung-gi told him that he never forced anyone to buy that crypto and that everyone was responsible for their own investments, something that he always said at the end of his videos. Myung-gi made Thanos look like a fool and Thanos decided to hit him, but Nam-gyu stopped him because there were people watching. Thanos then told Myung-gi that he'd better do well in the Squid Games because he planned to make him pay for what he lost and they left. Thanos noticed Kang Mi-na (Player 196) and he found her attractive.

While the Players were taking their pictures, Gyeong-su (Player 256) recognized Thanos and got thrilled to discover that he was a famous rapper. Gyeong-su introduced himself and told Thanos that he was a big fan of his, several players recognized Thanos and wanted to take a photo with him. Nam-gyu took control of the situation and told the fans to take a group photo, Thanos offered Mi-na the chance to be in the photo, but she declined, the group got ready for the photo, but then a Manager approached and told them that the photos were individual, so Thanos said that he would take a photo with them after the games. On the Stairs, Thanos separated from Nam-gyu and Gyeong-su to talk to Mi-na.

Upon arriving at the first game's hall, Thanos began flirting with Mi-na. Thanos started rapping and told Mi-na he liked her, Mi-na got interested in talking to Thanos and told him to see Young-hee (the giant robotic doll). When it was announced that the first game was Red Light, Green Light, Seong Gi-hun (Player 456 and winner of the 33rd Squid Game) stood at the front and told the players that those who lost would be killed. The players questioned Gi-hun and began to think he was crazy, Mi-na thought that Gi-hun was drun, and Thanos told her that Gi-hun sounded like his father when he came home drunk and said crazy things; he said that there was a bug in his head.

When the game started, Gi-hun told the players when to stop, and they all managed to survive 7 red lights, but there were some who still doubted Gi-hun. Mi-na wondered if Gi-hun was on drugs, to which Thanos replied that he wasn't and that nobody is like that when they're on drugs, Mi-na asked Thanos if he had been drugged and Thanos asked her if she wanted to know. But then Mi-na felt something on her neck and Thanos told her she had a bee on her neck, Mi-na panicked and moved, when she calmed down, she realized she had moved and let out a laugh, but then she was shot in the head (splattering Thanos with her blood) and fell to the ground dead. Mi-na's death sparked panic and some players tried to flee, resulting in them being shot dead. Thanos was shocked by Mi-na's death and terrified that he might die too, so he took out his cross necklace, which contained drug pills and took a drug to avoid the fear. Having taken the drug, Thanos stopped being afraid and managed to complete the first game along with Nam-gyu and Gyeong-su.

Back in the Dormitory, Thanos began to suffer drug withdrawal symptoms and Nam-gyu asked him if he felt bad, to which Thanos replied that he was fine. A Voting was held to decide whether to continue or end the game and Thanos' team decided to vote "O" won more money. In the end, the vote ended 182-183 due to Hwang In-ho (Player 001 and the Front Man in charge of the Squid Games, who entered the games as "Oh Young-il") and the games continued. During the meal time, Thanos and Nam-gyu started bothering and hitting Myung-gi, but In-ho stopped them and beat the aggressors up.

During the second game, Six-Legged Pentathlon, Thanos invited Se-mi (Player 380) to join his team and she accepted after Thanos also accepted Park Min-su (Player 125). Back in the Dormitory, Nam-gyu began insulting the other surviving groups and asked Park Min-su to count them. He reluctantly agreed, but Se-mi stopped him. She openly insulted Nam-gyu, pointing out that the guards would soon tell them how many had died; Thanos interrupted the discussion by talking to Park Min-su and making her note that both he and Nam-gyu were 27 years old (1997), so he had no reason to follow their orders. Then he asked Gyeong-su his age and he replied that he is 26 (1998) and he also asked Se-mi that she lied to him saying that she was 28 years old.

During the third game, Mingle, the team fell apart. In the second round of the game, the number of players was 4, so Thanos kicked Gyeong-su out of the team and he ended up being killed by the Pink Guards. In the third round the number was 3, so Thanos and Nam-gyu made Min-su and Se-mi play rock, paper, scissors to choose who would come with them, Min-su ended up winning due to pressure and fear, so Thanos and Nam-gyu took him away and they left Se-mi alone, but fortunately she managed to team up with Players 400 and 418 and save herself, which relieved Min-su (who felt guilty for leaving Se-mi alone). In the fifth round the number was 2, so Thanos chose to team up with Nam-gyu and they left Min-su alone, but fortunately he managed to team up with Player 015 and save himself.

Back at the Dormitory, Thanos and Nam-gyu told Min-su that they were happy he was alive and tried to convince him to play one more game. During the Voting, Se-mi decided to join the side of Seong Gi-hun (Player 456) and vote for "X", which upsets Thanos and Nam-gyu. When Min-su's turn comes, Thanos and Nam-gyu try to force him to vote for "O", but Min-su finally decides to do the right thing and votes for "X", joining Gi-hun's (and Se-mi's) side and protecting himself from the bullies, making Se-mi happy. The voting ends in a 50-50 tie and it is announced that there will be another voting the next day.

In the men's bathroom, Min-su is cornered by Thanos and Nam-gyu, who threaten him into joining them in the vote, fortunately Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) arrives and defends Min-su. Team X and Team O start arguing about that Thanos and Nam-gyu interfering with Min-su's vote (which is forbidden) and Thanos and Nam-gyu mock Kim Jun-hee (Player 222) for being pregnant, which infuriates Myung-gi and a fight breaks out, allowing Min-su to escape to the Dormitory. During the fight, Thanos tells Myung-gi that he will take his money, his life, and Jun-hee, but Myung-gi uses a fork to stab Thanos, causing him to bleed to death, freeing Myung-gi, Min-su, and Jun-hee forever and leaving Nam-gyu alone.

At bedtime, a riot breaks out with players killing each other. Min-su grabs a bottle to defend himself and hides in a high bunk bed. Nam-gyu corners Se-mi while Min-su watches them from above. Min-su throws the bottle to help Se-mi, the bottle falls to the floor and breaks, Min-su quickly hides and Nam-gyu turns to see what happened, Se-mi takes advantage that Nam-gyu is distracted to grab the broken bottle and fight, but Nam-gyu overpowers her and stabs her to death, much to Min-su's horror.

Before the fourth game began, Min-su and Nam-gyu were assigned to the Seekers team and were both given a knife to kill the Hiders. Nam-gyu approached Min-su, who was angry with him for killing Se-mi. Nam-gyu asked Min-su if he had ever killed anyone and told him that if he couldn't do it, then he should switch teams, mentioning that Min-su was very good at hiding and that he never found him during the riot. Nam-gyu started mocking Se-mi and found out that Min-su saw him kill her, Nam-gyu told Min-su that he was too cowardly to save her and that Thanos, Se-mi and Gyeong-su were dead, so they were the only members of the team left alive. Nam-gyu told Min-su that they would see each other again and left.

During the game, Nam-gyu dropped Thanos' necklace and Min-su found it, Min-su remembered Nam-gyu's teasing and he took a drug to gain the courage that he needed to pass the game and avenge Se-mi. After the game, Nam-gyu discovered he had lost the drugs and began to suffer withdrawal symptoms, causing him to panic and despair. Knowing that he would die without the drugs, Nam-gyu voted for "X" in the next voting and Min-su voted for "O" to exact his revenge.

During the fifth game, Jump Rope, Nam-gyu was scared by how high the platform they were on was and Min-su saw that there was 1 drug left in the necklace. Min-su approached Nam-gyu and asked if he was okay, to which Nam-gyu told her to leave. Min-su then revealed to Nam-gyu that he had Thanos' necklace and Nam-gyu tried to get it back. Desperately, Min-su told him not to touch it or he would throw the necklace into the cliff. In desperation, Nam-gyu apologized to Min-su for everything he did and begged her to give him the necklace. Min-su threw the necklace onto the bridge and told Nam-gyu to go get it. Nam-gyu started to cross the bridge, terrified of falling, and managed to grab the necklace, but when he opened it, he found it was empty. Nam-gyu froze when he realized that Min-su had tricked him and was hit by the rope, falling to his death and avenging Se-mi. Min-su looked at Nam-gyu's corpse at the bottom of the cliff and took the last drug to pass the game.

Two Unknown Hiders(Player 009, Player 024, Player 241 or Player 344)

Stabbed to death with a hunting knife; shared kill(s) with Lee Myung-gi. Confirmed to have done this due to there being an extra two hiders dying during the game.

Seon-nyeo(Player 044)

Stabbed twice in the abdomen with a hunting knife after being enraged by a hallucination of Nam-gyu.

"It's Not Your Fault"Jump Rope

Nam-gyu(Player 124)

Lured him onto the bridge via throwing the empty cross necklace on it, which led to him falling off of the bridge and dying once he realised there was nothing inside of it.

Trivia[]

Se-mi and Gyeong-su, being 26 at most, were the youngest members of the team. Thanos, who was 36, was its oldest member.

Techically, this team is the second team, formed by Thanos. The first one consisted of two members, Thanos himself and Kang Mi-na (Player 196), but it was disbanded shortly after it was formed due to Mi-na's death in Red Light Green Light.

All their deaths are due to each other (Gyeong-su by Thanos, Se-mi by Nam-gyu and Nam-gyu by Min-su) or by Myung-gi (Thanos and Min-su).

Min-su is the only member to join the team while being apart of the X team.

Thanos' team was the only main team that didn't have a direct conversation with Gi-hun or his team. The closest they come to having a direct conversation with them was when Su-bong and Nam-gyu fought In-ho and when Gi-hun's team entered the bathroom, witnessing Su-bong bullying Myung-gi and stopping him. The problem are that In-ho wasn't part of the team when he fought them both and when Gi-hun's team stopped Thanos, they didn't talk since Su-bong stopped, seeing In-ho knowing that he would injure him

They all appear in " △ " whether alive (Park Min-su), in hallucinations (Thanos, Se-mi and Nam-gyu) or files (Gyeong-su)

For some reason, Nam-gyu, Se-mi, and Gyeong-su were never credited with their surnames or even mentioned.

Min-su is the only member of Thanos' team to reach the final game.

Thanos and Min-su are only ones in their team to be killed by Myung-gi.

Each of the male members of the team survived a different number of the six games. Gyeong-su survived two then died in Mingle, Thanos survived the first three then died in the bathroom fight, Nam-gyu survived the first four then died in Jump Rope and Min-su survived the first five games, becoming a finalist but was then the first person to die in the sixth and final game.

The male members of the team die starting with the tallest person and then going progressively to the shortest dying last: Gyeong-su is the tallest, Thanos second tallest, Nam-gyu second shortest and Min-su the shortest. If Se-mi was taller than Nam-gyu then it would follow a perfect sequence of the players dying starting with the tallest and progressively going to the shortest dying last: in other words the shorter you are the longer you live.

If Kang Mi-na is counted as a member of the team then this team holds a strange and unique position in that it contains three of the players who were the first to die in one of the games [Mi-na in Red Light, Green Light, Nam-gyu in Jump Rope and Min-su in Sky Squid Game] and additionally Thanos was the first to die in the bathroom fight. Of the other three-Player 045 for Six-Legged Pentathlon, an unknown player for Mingle since we don't see every room at once and Player 310 for Hide and Seek-they are not known to be affiliated with each other.

Since Thanos said that his team-mates could choose which mini-games to play in the Six-Legged Pentathlon it is likely he was either fairly skilled in all five of them or being slightly overconfident.

Gyeong-su [and Kang Mi-na] are the only member [s] to be killed by a Pink Guard, Nam-gyu fell to his death [somewhat caused by Min-su], Thanos and Min-su were killed by Lee Myung-gi/MC Coin/The Amazing Myung-gi/Player 333 and Se-mi was killed by Nam-gyu.

If Thanos is equivalent to Marvel's purple-skinned Titan who wanted to kill half the universe Thanos this team is equivalent to the Black Order. Hence Nam-gyu could be Ebony Maw, due to being Thanos' closest lackey and both he and Ebony Maw have slightly deformed cheekbones, Se-mi could be Proxima Midnight due to her cool-headedness, effectiveness in combat and being the only main female member, Min-su could be Corvus Glaive due to his somewhat romance with Se-mi and both being fairly quiet in terms of emotion and dialogue and Gyeong-su could be Cull Obsidian due to his unquestioning following of Thanos. Kang Mi-na could be Lady Death.

History[]

Can we please re-think our plan here? Listen, when I was young, I got scammed and lost my entire life savings. I was so fucking pissed, I found the fucker who did it, and roughed him up. It was nothing. I barely touched the guy. But the police only went and arrested me and then demanded that I pay the douchebag a settlement. But with what fucking money? That asshole had already taken everything I had. What's really fucked up is I'm the only one that threw in the can. They just let the other guy off. After that, I'll never trust the police again...

Choi Woo-seok to Seong Gi-hun and Hwang Jun-ho before seeing the leftover money from Season 1 in "Halloween Party"

When Woo-seok was young, he was scammed and lost all his money. He got so furious that he attacked the imbecile of the scammer. Woo-seok didn't leave him seriously injured, but the cops arrested him and told him to settle with the scammer, but Woo-seok had no money since the fool of the scammer stole it all, Woo-seok went to prison and the scammer ran away with the money, which made Woo-seok distrust the cops. Woo-seok also served in the military. Years later, Woo-seok began working for Kim Jeong-rae (a loan shark owner of a clandestine organization called Sunshine Capital), who became his best friend and was like a brother to him. Mr. Kim officiated Mr. Choi's wedding and Mr. Choi also had a daughter.

In 2022, Seong Gi-hun (a man who owed Mr. Kim money in 2020) hired Mr. Kim to search for The Recruiter, a man who recruited players for the Squid Games (a competition held by masked men every year in which indebted people played kids' games to win a Prize money of ₩45,600,000,000 and people were killed if they lost; in which Mr. Seong was the winner in 2020) and the Loan sharks looked for the Recruiter from 2022 to 2024.

2024[]

"Bread and Lottery"[]

On June 19, 2024, Gi-hun told Mr. Kim to gather more men for the next day and expand the search from the first train to the last to check all the lines at the same time, but they didn't find that guy. Gi-hun paid Mr. Kim a lot of money and Mr. Kim got into the van his men were in, Mr. Kim told Woo-seok that starting the next day, they would need all the people they had and he wanted them ready by 6 a.m., so he told them not to get drunk and to go to sleep. The men had their doubts about the situation and Woo-seok told Mr. Kim that he didn't see any sense in Gi-hun's story, although Mr. Kim said that most of the people who owed him money disappeared over the years and he never got any money back (probably because they died in the Squid Games). Woo-seok asked Mr. Kim if he believed that his debtors were killed in the Squid Games and Mr. Kim told him that he was doing it for the money, adding that if Gi-hun hadn't paid his debt and hired him for the job, he wouldn't be able to pay his men or keep the business running. Mr. Kim told his men that if they found the Recruiter, Gi-hun would pay them ₩1,000,000,000 and said that whoever found the guy would get ₩500,000,000, the men got excited to hear that and went home to sleep immediately.

On the morning of June 20, 2024, Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim told all the people they had that they had to find the Recruiter, Woo-seok showed them a mannequin of the guy and told them that the guy was carrying a briefcase in hand, which had stocks of money and Ddakji to play with people on the subway stations and afterwards playing, the guy gave people a card with a phone number. Woo-seok told the men that if they managed to find the Recruiter, they should call the number they were given and take a photo of the mannequin. Mr. Kim distributed his men along the subway lines and told them to check each station. The loan sharks took Ddakji's cards and went to the subway lines. The loan sharks scoured all the subway lines for months and took photos as evidence, but they couldn't find the Recruiter during that time.

Woo-seok begs the Recruiter for his life as he loads more bullets into the gun.

On September 1, 2024, Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim were searching in Jonggak Station and stopped to eat, Woo-seok questioned what they were doing since they hadn't found the Recruiter in 2 years, Mr. Kim understood his doubts, but assured Gi-hun not to waste his fortune looking for someone who doesn't exist. Woo-seok said that his wife told him that if he found the guy, then he would play in the Squid Games to win the Prize money and that if someone played Ddakji on the subway, they would have found him already. But then they heard the noise that Ddakji makes and saw the Recruiter playing against Lee Myung-gi on the other platform, Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim got surprised to see the guy that they had been looking for for so long and informed Gi-hun, Mr. Kim gave Gi-hun the address and the guy started to leave, so Gi-hun told him to follow him that they should until he arrived.

Woo-seok and Mr. Kim hearing the Ddakji slam.

Woo-seok and Mr. Kim followed the recruiter around Seoul while keeping Gi-hun informed of the guy's location. The Recruiter bought 100 breads and 100 lottery tickets and went to Tapgol Park, where there were many homeless people, Mr. Kim gave Gi-hun the location and Gi-hun told him not to approach the guy and to wait for him to arrive. The Recruiter played a game with the homeless people, offering them a choice between a bread and a lottery ticket. Most of the homeless people chose the lottery ticket and lost, at the end, the Recruiter stomped on the lottery tickets like a twisted and heartless guy and said that the homeless people were spoiled, showing his sadistic nature.

Woo-seok and Mr. Kim watching the Recruiter stomp on all the bread rolls.

Gi-hun got delayed because the police had given him a speeding ticket and the Recruiter had gotten into a taxi, so Woo-seok and Mr. Kim followed him. When they reached an alley, Mr. Kim said that they had to catch the Recruiter themselves or he would escape, Woo-seok had his doubts since the guy gave him a bad feeling and they had to wait for Gi-hun, to which Mr. Kim told him that if they lost the guy, they could lose the ₩1,000,000,000. Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim go after the Recruiter and confront him, but despite the fact that they're 2 against 1 and Mr. Choi has a knife, the guy easily defeats them and kidnaps them.

In a black room, the Recruiter bound and gagged Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim and made them play Rock Paper Scissors, Minus One combined with Russian Roulette. The Recruiter put on opera music, explained the rules of the game to Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim, and told them that his 6-chamber revolver had 1 bullet and would shoot the loser in the head (with a 1/6 odd of dying and a 5/6 odd of surviving). The game started and Mr. Choi didn't put his hands for the fear, so the Recruiter told him that he broke the rules and shot him, but fortunately the chamber was empty and Mr. Choi survived. The game continued and both Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim managed to survive, but the Recruiter quickly got bored and put 4 more bullets in the revolver, to the horror of Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim. The Recruiter sped up the game and Mr. Choi and Mr. Kim tied several times, but in the last round, Mr. Choi put 2 rocks by accident and Mr. Kim put the paper and scissors, so Mr. Choi resigned himself to die, but Mr. Kim sacrificed himself for Mr. Choi and left both hands, so the Recruiter told him that he broke the rules and shot him, killing him. Mr. Choi was horrified and devastated by Mr. Kim's death, the Recruiter congratulated him on winning and told him that he needed to talk to him. The Recruiter made Mr. Choi tell him the location of Gi-hun's base, the Pink Motel, where Gi-hun and the Recruiter played Russian Roulette that night. Gi-hun would win while the Recruiter shot himself.

Woo-seok cries as Mr. Kim accepts his fate.

"Halloween Party"[]

Holy hell. You really did win. The game was real, you aren't full of shit.

Choi Woo-seok to Seong Gi-hun who shows him and Hwang Jun-ho his leftover money in

"Halloween Party"

Hwang Jun-ho (a Korean police detective) arrived at the Pink Motel to look for Gi-hun, Jun-ho was watching the motel from his car when he heard the gunshot and went inside, Jun-ho saw that the elevator was on the 4th floor and ran up the stairs at full speed. Upon reaching the 4th floor, Jun-ho began checking the rooms and came to a locked room where a noise was heard, Jun-ho used a fire extinguisher to break the lock and found Woo-seok, who was in his underwear and tied to the bed with a blindfold and a gag, Jun-ho removed Woo-seok's blindfold and gag and pointed his gun at him, Woo-seok begged him not to kill him and Jun-ho asked him where Gi-hun was, to which Woo-seok told him that he was in room 410. Jun-ho found Gi-hun along with the Recruiter's corpse and proceeded to arrest him on suspicion of murder, but then Woo-seok hit Jun-ho in the head with the fire extinguisher, leaving Detective Hwang unconscious. Gi-hun grabbed his gun and asked Woo-seok who he was, to which Woo-seok told him his name, that he was helping Mr. Kim to find the imbecile of the Recruiter, and that Mr. Kim told him a lot of good things about him. Then Mr. Choi saw the Recruiter's corpse and asked Mr. Seong if he killed that guy, Mr. Choi started insulting the imbecile of the Recruiter and told Seong that the Recruiter killed Mr. Kim while lamenting that his boss had died to save him.

Woo-seok put on a Pink Motel bathrobe and cleaned up the Recruiter's disgusting blood on the wall while Gi-hun interrogated Jun-ho, who had already regained consciousness and was handcuffed to the bathtub. Gi-hun recognized Jun-ho as the detective who came to his house when he tried to report the Squid Games and Jun-ho told him that he infiltrated The Island as a Pink Guard to find his brother, Hwang In-ho. Jun-ho told Gi-hun what he discovered about the games, including that the one in charge was the Front Man (but he kept it a secret that he discovered that the Front Man was In-ho) and told him that he could help, to which Woo-seok told Gi-hun not to involve Jun-ho and that he never saw the cops helping people like them. Gi-hun apologized to Jun-ho about his brother, and told him to forget about what happened in the motel just then. But Jun-ho reminds him about all the other players that were killed when Gi-hun was on the Island, and he saw that he didn't kill anyone. He insisted that he can help him.

Gi-hun accepts Jun-ho's help and they go together with Woo-seok to a room, Woo-seok tries to make Gi-hun reconsider accepting Jun-ho's help and tells him about his bad experience with the cops. Upon arriving at the room, Gi-hun showed Woo-seok and Jun-ho his leftover Prize money from the 33rd Squid Game, and Woo-seok got surprised to see the money, Gi-hun told them that all the money had the blood of the people who died in the games on it and that he would use it to finish off the masked guards, he also offered them whatever they wanted if they helped him. Jun-ho said that he wouldn't do it for money and Woo-seok said that he wouldn't either, that the jerk of the Recruiter killed his boss in front of him, who officiated his wedding, so he promised to help take down those masked fools. But Jun-ho reminded the guards on the Island are well-armed, and a few pistols aren't going to be enough to take all of them out.

Gi-hun takes Woo-seok and Jun-ho to the bathroom and shows them the weapons that he has acquired. Woo-seok gets surprised to see that the entire bathroom is filled with weapons and that Seong already had a plan. Gi-hun tells Woo-seok to find people to help them, which Woo-seok says he knows some men who are good at that stuff and notices there are K2s among the weapons, mentioning that he hasn't seen one since he was in the military. Jun-ho thinks that the weapons might be from the black market and asks if they even work, Gi-hun leads them through a tunnel in the wall to an improvised shooting range and shoots at drawings of a circle, a triangle and a square, making Woo-seok get scared and scream at the noise. Gi-hun tells Jun-ho to come practice whenever he can and suggests he quit his job as a police officer.

Gi-hun hired a dentist to pull out one of his teeth and replace it with a tooth equipped with a tracking to locate him, Woo-seok paid the dentist and indicated to him not to say anything about what they did. By October 30, 2024, Woo-seok had recruited a team of Mercenaries composed of several highly skilled men. Woo-seok (wearing noise-canceling headphones) watched the men practicing at the shooting range and introduced the team to Mr. Seong, telling him that there were men who had been in the Marine Corps, UDT and the ROK Special Forces; adding that Jun-ho was a former police officer. Woo-seok told Gi-hun that the mercenaries would do as he said as long as the pay was good, took off his headphones and introduced him to Kim, the leader of the team, who was a seasoned veteran who saw a lot of combat overseas. Woo-seok is confident that everything will go well since Gi-hun and Woo-seok will enter the club alone while the team is nearby and Gi-hun has a tracker, so they can follow him. The team continues practicing and Woo-seok complains that they didn't tell him to put on his headphones.

On October 31, 2024, Woo-seok waits with Gi-hun and Jun-ho in front of Club HDH for midnight. Woo-seok gets surprised to see people in costumes and realizes it's Halloween, which gives him a bad feeling. Gi-hun asks Jun-ho if the Front Man was wearing a hood and a black mask, to which Jun-ho says yes and Woo-seok realizes that the Front Man chose Halloween so he could be in public with his mask. Gi-hun sees that it's almost midnight and he and Woo-seok proceed to enter the club. Woo-seok decides to put something over his face and buys a green horse mask. Upon entering the club, Woo-seok contacts Jun-ho to check that everything is alright, telling him that everything is crazy in the club and that everyone is wearing masks, adding that he will let him know if anything happens.

Woo-seok and Gi-hun started searching the club and then Jun-ho saw the Pink Guards (a Manager and a Soldier) arrive, so Jun-ho informed Woo-seok and Gi-hun that the masked men in pink jumpsuits had arrived and Woo-seok started searching. Mr. Seong encountered with the Manager and followed him outside the club, Mr. Choi saw that, informed Detective Hwang and began to follow them. Detective Hwang informed him that there was more than 1 guard and Mr. Choi encountered with the Soldier, who electrocuted him, rendering him unconscious. Jun-ho entered the club and found Mr. Choi unconscious in the bar.

After failing to corner the Front Man, Woo-seok gets on the boat with Hwang to track Gi-hun's location as the next part of the plan. But as they arrived on a different island, they found the tracker that was extracted from Gi-hun's tooth, and placed on a fisherman's bait. The team split up in two different boats. He paired with Hwang, Captain Park, Mercenary Kim and several comrades. During one of the investigation the team discovered a trap door and it set off killing one and wounding another. Back at the ship, Choi believes that trap shows that the Squid game organization knows about their whereabouts. Despite losing one of their men, Choi and the rest of the team were committed to find the island.

One stormy night he woke up and heard some commotion outside. He noticed that Captain Park was awake (having just killed the Drone pilot) and began to question him. Captain Park managed to convince Woo-seok that what he heard was just crates sliding about the deck. Woo-seok went to go back to bed, but before he did he noticed that Park was holding what seemed to be a screwdriver in his hand. This tipped him off that Captain Park may have been secretly sabotaging the team.

Once the team arrived at the docks Woo-seok met with Jun-ho in his room to express his concerns about Captain Park. Jun-ho's trust of the captain was too much for him to believe Woo-seok, instead pointing to Woo-seok's drinking as being the problem. Woo-seok still wasn't satisfied though, so he left the group to go and conduct his own investigation of the captain, meeting up with a former colleague, Kim Mu-dong, from when he was a loan shark to do so. Woo-seok dropped the heavy news to the co-worker that Kim had died. When his co-worker started asking questions, Woo-seok struggled to explain due to the past trauma. Later that night, Woo-seok broke into Captain Park's house. He found the house to be in shambles, evidently having not been lived in for a while, with only Park's dog inhabiting it. Woo-seok searched through the house and while he did not find any solid evidence that Park was collaborating with the games, he did find a photo of Captain Park going fishing with The Recruiter. As he was about to turn and leave the dog, having broken free of its leash, appeared and began to attack Woo-seok. Woo-seok was just about able to get his gun out and kill the dog. The noise however tipped off one of Park's neighbours who called the police. Woo-seok started making his way out of the house, but as he was doing so he noticed something partially covered up by the dog crate. Upon closer inspection he found it was a bin buried into the ground, and inside of it he found all of the money that Park had made from working at the games, alongside his Manager uniform. Just as he was about to escape with the evidence the police burst into the house and arrested Woo-seok.

Once Woo-seok arrived at the police station the officers began questioning him on why he had broken into Park's house, and Woo-seok began frantically explaining the Games and what Park's involvement in it was, but of course the investigator didn't buy into it. The investigator then decided to check his criminal record which had 9 total charges on it; his charges being kidnapping, false imprisonment, assault, threats and extortion. All this compared to Captain Park's almost spotless record further convinced them that Woo-seok was lying. The investigator decided to call Park to inform him of what had happened to his house, with Woo-seok now realising that Park would know he'd been exposed and was likely to take out those on the boat. Woo-seok begged for his phone back to call his lawyer, but when the police gave in and tried to get him to use facial recognition to open it, he snatched the phone and ran away. Woo-seok took the opportunity to call and warn Jun-ho about what he found out about the captain. His actions saved both Jun-ho and Leader Kim, however it was a bit too late as after being called by the police, Captain Park had already wiped most of the boat crew members out. For his attempted escape he was properly arrested and given six months in jail.

Six months later, Jun-ho picked up Woo-seok from prison. With the Games (at least in Korea) now destroyed, Woo-seok was without work, and he didn't have the money nor will to return to being a loan shark. Instead he used what money he had to purchase the Pink Motel and renovate it alongside Mu-dong as manager, turning into a Las Vegas style business.

Personality[]

Siri! Call Detective Hwang!

Choi Woo-seok trying to warn Hwang Jun-ho that Captain Park is a traitor in "222"

Before his boss's death, Woo-seok was a standard loan shark who was only there for the money. However he demonstrates loyalty for his boss as he expresses his concerns that he has of their mission, and not believing in Gi-hun's story for the first time. He sticks by and helps Kim Jeong-rae. Following Mr. Kim's death, his main objective is to avenge his boss. While he seems scared, he has signs of bravery for joining Gi-hun on ending the games. He does not like loud noises as he is seen covering his ears during gun training. His past experience was demonstrated as he was the first one to suspect Captain Park. He is not afraid to follow through his instincts as he decides to go investigate on his own despite his team brushing off his concerns.

Trivia[]

Woo-seok is the most responsible person for Gi-hun's mission to end the Squid Games being successful. Since he suspected Captain Park and his suspicions led himself to discover that Park was a traitor, which led Jun-ho and Kim to the island.

His name is nearly identical to that of the winner of the 6th Squid Game, as well Player 006 in 33rd Squid Game.

Woo-seok's 43rd birthday and the Sky Squid Game take place on the same day: November 7, 2024.

He is one of few characters in Squid Game to not only survive the show, but also get a completely happy ending with no bitter-sweetness.

History[]

Choi Woong-seok was presumably in massive debt and decided to join the Squid Games for a chance to win a huge cash prize. He called the number on the recruiting card, and got into a mysterious car. He then woke up in a giant room with 454 other players. He then made his way to the center of the room and watched as many other players debts were revealed in front of him. Later on, he signed a contract and made his way up a flight of stairs to the first game.

During the first game, He heard Gi-hun screaming about how dangerous the games were. Woong-seok and many other players ignored his warnings, and continued the game without any worry. However, He was soon terrified as players were shot in front of him during the mass panic. Luckily, Woong-seok was able to control himself and stand still. He eventually completed the first game after listening to Gi-hun's commands. After returning to the dormitory with the other surviving players, Woong-seok begged the guards to let him and the other players go. However, The guards instead showed everyone the massive increase in prize money that accumulated after the first game. They then explained the voting process to all of the players. Woong-seok did not care about the money and decided to Vote X during the first Vote. Unfortunately for him and the other Xs, More players voted to continue the games. Which means they would have to continue the games.

Later during Six-Legged Pentathlon, Woong-seok partnered up with players 136, 173, 201, and 309. They then managed to complete all 5 minigames within the 5 minute timer. After successfully completing Six-Legged Pentathlon, him and the other players held another vote. Woong-seok decided to vote X again along with many other X players. Unfortunately for him and the other Xs, more players voted to continue. Which meant they would have to continue the games.

Later on during Mingle, Woong-seok managed to partner up with other players and pass the first 2 rounds without any trouble. After the second round, he made his way back onto the carousel and prepared for the third round.

Fate[]

During the third round of Mingle, Woong-seok was shot after failing to find a room with the correct amount of players.

Trivia[]

Choi Woong-seok shares the same name with his actor.

His name is incredibly similar to Choi Woo-seong, another player whose name was revealed through the files.

For the game, see Sugar Honeycombs.

A Dalgona (달고나 Dalgona?), also known as a Honeycomb, is a candy that has been popular in South Korea for decades. A challenge associated with the candy involves perfectly carving out the shape in the candy.

The dalgonas are featured in Sugar Honeycombs, the second game in the 33rd Squid Game, which involved a deadly version of the aforementioned challenge. It appears in Season 2 in Gi-hun's nightmare as a difficult version of the triangle shape in Six Legs.

Season One[]

Dalgonas appear in the 33rd Squid Game in The Man with the Umbrella during the second game. Players had to chose between four shapes: circle, triangle, star, and umbrella, without knowing the game.

Cho Sang-woo who recognized the shapes and remembered what Kang Sae-byeok told him about seeing them heating sugar, and Byeong-gi, who was told about the next game, both recognized the game.

CircleTriangleStarUmbrellaKeyhole (only appeared in Cho Sang-woo's recollection)

Season Two[]

The triangle shape seen in Gi-hun's nightmare in Season 2.

A dalgona once again appears in Seong Gi-hun's dream sequence. All the players picked the triangle thinking it was the easiest, only to find out that it is the most complex shape ever as soon as Gi-hun removes the lid. The players start to panic and blame Gi-hun for choosing the shape, saying that he was going to kill them all. Gi-hun wakes up afterwards. Still thinking the second game might be dalgona to Gi-hun's surprise, the second game turned out to be the Six-Legged Pentathlon.

The shape is based on the Sierpiński triangle. It is dubbed by the Squid Game community as the "Mona Lisa" due to its complexity.

Trivia[]

The original Korean name for this game is "설탕 뽑기입니다", though many people translate it as "달고나"

History[]

The club advertises itself as being geared towards hip-hop and contains a noise basement and a bar.

Trivia[]

Club HDH's exterior and interior shots were likely filmed at nb2, a real-life nightclub in Mapo-gu, Seoul.

Club HDH may be named after Squid Game's director, Hwang Dong-hyuk.

The very first time I went to see you, you were lying in your bed in that dusty old hospital, just staring up at the ceiling like a zombie. I couldn't believe you killed the team pursuing you with one rifle and got past the fences at the Demarcation Line without any kind of help at all. I saw you in that bed and felt sorry for you. So I decided to give you a chance to start over.

The Masked Officer to Kang No-eul in "Six Legs"The Officer (부대장 Budaejang?), also known as The Masked Officer, is the secondary antagonist in the second season of Squid Game. He was the right-hand man to The Front Man during the 37th Squid Game. He is shown to supervise and command the Guards, and carries out many similar duties as what Hwang In-ho did during the 33rd Squid Game.

History

Before 2020

He was born in North Korea in an unknown year, but later made his way to South Korea. He lost some family member close to him because that person didn't receive a kidney for transplantation and eventually died. He started working for the Squid Games and became the leader of their secret organ trafficking ring. Around 2017 he met Kang No-eul and eventually got her hired for the squid games as a soldier number 11. He (presumably) was a recruiter from 1997-2014 (possibly) who used to recruit people before The Salesman but he used to recruit people to be either as a player or as a guard. At some point he befriended Park Yeong-gil and the other Fishing Group Members and went fishing with them.

2020

The Officer was a member of the Fishing Group and a secret leader of Organ Trafficking ring. He told Kang No-eul, "Last time, we had a player do the surgeries, in exchange for information about the games they were going to play." the player mentioned by him being Byeong-gi from the 33rd Squid Game. This conversation implies that The Officer was somehow involved in the Games during 2020. However, it is not yet confirmed whether he was already an Officer at that time or if he was promoted later for some unknown reason.

Masked Officer orders all the managers to guard the stairs to the control room.

The Officer is employed possibly before 37th Squid Game but definitely after 33rd Squid Game (possibly getting his rank as the officer in 34th Squid Game) and carries out many of duties displayed by the Front Man during the games in 2020, mainly supervising and commanding the other guards. His hiring date is unknown nor who is behind the mask. The Officer oversees and monitors the screens closely during the rebellion of the players.

He serves as the acting senior-most individual in charge of the games after the first game is concluded, whilst the Front Man is covertly playing the game in order to supervise Gi-hun.

He is a part of the underground organ harvesting operation and is frustrated when No-eul eliminates Kim Nam-du during red light green light that was meant to be kept alive. He has a discussion with No-eul where he advises her to not interrupt their operation again.

During the player revolt, he orders many soldiers to fight the players and stop them from reaching the control room, as well as covertly cooperating with the Front Man to organize his safe return into the control room to emerge as the Front Man to confront Gi-hun.

Fate

No-eul was seen fighting with Masked Officer in the elevator, after she said that she needed to take the evidence from his brains while No-eul held him at gunpoint to delete every trace of Park Gyeong-seok. They eventually took the fight to the Office, leaving the gun behind the elevator door. After a fight broke out in the office, the Masked Officer eventually escalated down, as No-eul was hit on the head with a broken glass bottle.

No-eul, barely alive, is seen crawling to the elevator door. The Masked Officer asks where she is going, until he realizes what she is looking for. As soon as he found out she was reaching for the gun, Masked Officer is shot repeatedly by Kang No-eul during a brawl in the Front Man's office. His body was incinerated when the island was blown up.

Personality

The Officer orders the retreat of the remaining guards inside the main player room.

The Officer is shown to be stern and strict, and is very passionate about the work done by the Guards being done to the best of their ability. He drops the stern personality during the revolution, where he is shown to be more panicked and paranoid due to the situation, but he does not cease his work and continues to command the guards regardless.

With his stern personality and strictness, he does participate in the organ harvesting operation and cares greatly about the organization and process of it. The Masked Officer is not a completely evil individual, alongside his boss he has dealt with loss and transitioned it into power, controlling the Organ Trafficking Conspiracy. It is unknown what his motive is for supporting the operation or if the Front Man is fully aware of the operation. As seen in Season 1, the Front Man does not care whether or not his personnel harvest organs, as he only cares about the equality of the game.

Trivia

It's likely that he recruited Kang No-eul to be a pink soldier before 2024 because the rookie guards are most likely low-ranked workers who make their way up to higher ranks.

He is the only director of the games whose name is unknown as the host's name is Oh Il-nam and The Frontman's name is Hwang In-ho.

It is likely that he would have become the next Front Man if Gi-hun had killed Hwang In-ho the night before the final game with the knife given to him.

He is the last organ trafficker to die.

He shares some similarities with his boss Hwang In-ho as both of them lost their loved ones because they couldn't afford a organ transplant to save them and worked for the Squid Games after witnessing a painful loss. However the difference is that In-ho is uninvolved in the organ trafficking ring whereas the Officer himself is involved in the organ trafficking. He claims that they are doing it to save others who need a organ transplant and don't suffer the same loss like him.

He is the last non-player villain to die.

He is the only director of the squid game to be killed by his own former minion as Oh Il-nam died from a brain tumor and The Frontman is still alive.

Some fans intend that there will be American Masked Officer in Squid Game USA which is highly expected by fans to be released in an unknown year.

He has a lot of different liquors in his room, and often drinks them regardless of the situation. By this it can be highly implied that he is a liquor addict.

He, Kang No-eul and Kang-Sae-byeok are the only major characters to be born in North Korea.

Similar to Kang Sae-byeok who lost her father, her grandparents and her older brother in North Korea and Kang No-eul who lost her husband and daughter who was just an infant in North Korea, he also lost his loved one in North Korea but unlike Sae-byeok who joined squid game to build a better life for her and her younger brother and to bring her mother from North Korea and No-eul who joined the game as pink soldier to find and reunite with her daughter, he went to the dark path like his boss In-ho but with a more villainous trait.

It's very likely that he is running the organ trafficking conspiracy for years as this isn't the first time he started it, he was already the ringleader of this illegal business for a long time. He had stopped it only due to Byeong-gi's Death and Jung-ho's absence from 34th-36th Squid Games.

It's very likely that he uses the corpse that aren't shot in head or are killed in special game for organ trafficking like players who weren't shot in head in Red Light Green Light, Six-Legged Pentathlon and Mingle and the players that were killed in special game.

It's very likely that He had been working for the games long before Hwang In-ho even joined the game.

It's likely that during his time as a recruiter he recruited The Salesman to be a pink guard.

The Masked Officer is one of the seven characters confirmed to be a smoker. The others being Seong Gi-hun, Park Jung-bae, Cho Sang-woo, Thanos, Jang Deok-su and Han Mi-nyeo.

He is the only character killed by Kang No-eul that she wasn't neutral towards when killing, as she appeared shocked once he died.

The Officer is portrayed by Park Hee-soon and Lim Tae-hoon (stunt double).

For the game, see Sugar Honeycombs.

A Dalgona (달고나 Dalgona?), also known as a Honeycomb, is a candy that has been popular in South Korea for decades. A challenge associated with the candy involves perfectly carving out the shape in the candy.

The dalgonas are featured in Sugar Honeycombs, the second game in the 33rd Squid Game, which involved a deadly version of the aforementioned challenge. It appears in Season 2 in Gi-hun's nightmare as a difficult version of the triangle shape in Six Legs.

Season One[]

Dalgonas appear in the 33rd Squid Game in The Man with the Umbrella during the second game. Players had to chose between four shapes: circle, triangle, star, and umbrella, without knowing the game.

Cho Sang-woo who recognized the shapes and remembered what Kang Sae-byeok told him about seeing them heating sugar, and Byeong-gi, who was told about the next game, both recognized the game.

CircleTriangleStarUmbrellaKeyhole (only appeared in Cho Sang-woo's recollection)

Season Two[]

The triangle shape seen in Gi-hun's nightmare in Season 2.

A dalgona once again appears in Seong Gi-hun's dream sequence. All the players picked the triangle thinking it was the easiest, only to find out that it is the most complex shape ever as soon as Gi-hun removes the lid. The players start to panic and blame Gi-hun for choosing the shape, saying that he was going to kill them all. Gi-hun wakes up afterwards. Still thinking the second game might be dalgona to Gi-hun's surprise, the second game turned out to be the Six-Legged Pentathlon.

The shape is based on the Sierpiński triangle. It is dubbed by the Squid Game community as the "Mona Lisa" due to its complexity.

Trivia[]

The original Korean name for this game is "설탕 뽑기입니다", though many people translate it as "달고나"

Player 260

I learned so much on a set filled with Korea's legendary actors. Seeing Lee Byung-hyun, The Frontman, and Lee Jung-jae, Gi-hun, perform up close was a huge honor. They are true icons. Everyone was so kind. Since it was my first time on such a massive set, I was quite shy and nervous, but actors like Player 435 usually looked after me. It helped me bring Player 260 to life.

David Kim discussing his time on the filming of Squid Game in a Q&A video on his YouTube Channel.

David Kim (김다빛 Gim Da-bit?) is the actor who portrayed Player 260 in Season 2 and Season 3 of the Netflix TV series Squid Game.

History[]

Background[]

David Park was born on February 1, 1988 in South Chungcheong to his parents, Park Chang-hee and Lee Sang-eun. During his childhood, he moved to Sheffield, England with his family. Sometime during his adulthood, he would join a mafia in the UK, led by a man named George.

At some point, he completed unknown 'training' in Japan. David repatriated to South Korea, where he became involved in illegal drug auctions with "Joon Group". He also eventually got married to a woman named Lee Soo-eun.

In April 2014, he started working as a staff member in the Squid Games, eventually ranking up to become a soldier. His father died at some point during or before 2024.

In the early morning of November 1, 2024, David met in a trailer in the Tancheon parking lot and changed into his soldier uniform before being transported to the island in preparation for the 37th Squid Game.

Fate[]

Its known David participated in quelling the revolt because of his actor being one of the Guards in the revolt, but we don't know if he was killed during it. His guard file would later be shown when Kang No-eul flips through the soldier files for the 37th Squid Game.

Trivia[]

According to his personnel file, David Park's blood type is B. He lives in Asan, South Chungcheong Province.

He is the only known guard to have originated from outside of Asia.

His Actor is the Stunt Doubles of Seong Gi-hun, Hwang In-ho, Cho Hyun-ju, Kang No-eul, Player 202 and Player 406 and also portrayed Number 029 and Player 366.

Game Information

Ddakji with the Recruiters

Ddakji with the Recruiters

A recruiter approaches a person, usually someone in debt, and challenges them to a game of ddakji.

The player chooses between a blue or red ddakji (the color does not matter) and tries to flip the recruiter's ddakji by striking it with their own. If the player wins, they win 100,000 won. If the recruiter wins, the player has to give the recruiter 100,000 won. In case the recruiter wins but the player doesn't have enough money, they receive a slap on the face from the recruiter.

After the game, the recruiter offers the player the chance to participate in that year's Squid Game by giving them a business card.

Ddakji in Six-Legged Pentathlon

Ddakji in the Six-Legged Pentathlon

Ddakji also appears as the first mini-game in the Six-Legged Pentathlon.

Objective: The player in charge of this mini-game must use one of the ddakji to flip the other ddakji over. Once the ddakji is flipped, the team passes this mini-game.

Notable players who participated in this mini-game include Player 015, Player 016, Player 047 (Kwon Byeong-su), Player 095 (Kim Young-mi), Player 222 (Kim Jun-hee), and Player 256

Trivia

Ddakji is the game with the most appearances, being in 7 episodes.

The choice between blue and red is inspired by a Japanese urban legend called Aka Manto, in which a ghost asks someone to choose between the two colors of paper in a bathroom. No matter which color is chosen, both result in a painful death (red for stabbing until covered in blood, blue for strangling until turning completely blue).

Before this was confirmed, many people believed that the color of the ddakji the players picked would tell if they would get recruited as Guards or Players (with Red being for Guards and Blue for Players), however, this is now debunked not only by the director but also because the Guards get recruited if they were specifically criminals or had a conflicting past (As seen in their files in Humans Are...).

In Six-Legged Pentathlon, players may choose the ddakji they want to use (the color doesn't matter). However, no players are shown choosing the red ddakji.

In real life, ddakji is a great activity to keep children entertained. Folding the tiles helps them learn basic origami techniques and develop fine motor skills, while playing with friends encourages social skills such as sharing, taking turns, and handling winning or losing gracefully.

Hyun-ju's trick of throwing the ddakji upside down actually works, because the folded side concentrates the impact better, making it more likely to flip the opponent's ddakji.

This game originates from China, where it is known as 打包 (Dǎ bāo), which literally means "slamming paper bags."

Not a single team in the Six-Legged Pentathlon was eliminated at ddakji, as there were no pools of blood on both of the tracks.

Deer Mask VIP while watching the final game in "One Lucky Day"

This Unnamed Man also known as Deer Mask VIP was one of the third of the VIPs attending the 33rd Squid Game hosted by Oh Il-nam. During the fifth game, he complains that it's no fun, in reaction to the ability of Do Jung-soo (Player 017) to detect which glass panes are safe. He says few lines and hasn't been seen since after the 33rd Squid Game in 2020 ever again.

Personality[]

While watching the final game, he recites a saying in Chinese "好雨知 ",that translates into "Good rain knows the best time to fall", originally coined by poet Du Fu (Chinese: 杜甫).

Trivia[]

Most fans thought Min-su was the Deer Mask VIP because his actor "David S. Lee" had a similar name to Min-su's actor, "Lee David" only for them to realise that they're not the same person.

Diego Cortés, also known as Player 278, is a former special operations soldier from Mexico who competed in the Squid Games.

In-game description[]

Diego Cortés' world changed the day he held his newborn son. Growing up in the roughest part of Mexico City, Diego did what it took to survive.

But he started a new life when he joined the Army, becoming a decorated special operations veteran and thriving on danger. Until he became a father and retired from a life of military adventures to raise a family.

But when Diego's grown son was jailed for a crime he didn't commit, Diego came out of retirement to do the thing he does best - protect his family.

Player 413 - Lost to Do Jeong-soo during Marbles.

Player 028 or Na Jo-eun - Lost to Jung Min-tae during Marbles.

Player 043 - Lost to Player 407 during Marbles.

Trivia[]

In a major continuity error, none of the players in the team except for Player 453 appear in Tug of War. They likely replaced Team Eight for the fourth game, as we can see a different 453 in Team Eight in Tug of War.

Player 413 was the first member of the team to die.

The five members who won the Marbles game probably won in this order: Player 017/Do Jeong-soo, Player 096, Player 021, Player 453 and Player 322 [Jung Min-tae] if the list of eliminated players called out is accurate. Those five then die in that order in the Glass Bridge game with the exception of Jeong-soo dying last of the group.

It is the second highest-placing Tug Of War team in the series, only behind Gi-hun's team.

It is the only winning team of Tug of War without any member dying during an interlude/between games.

Player 453 was the only female member of the team as well as likely the oldest member.

It is possible they used the same strategy to win Tug of War as Gi-hun's team if they had a good enough view of it.

The dormitory owner to Hwang Jun-ho

This unnamed woman was a landlord who managed a dormitory in Seoul. She appears in "Hell".

History[]

The dormitory owner was born in South Korea, possibly in Seoul. When she grew up, she became a landlord of a dormitory in Seoul. She did not always check on all of the tenants of the dormitory. One of her tenants, namely Hwang In-ho, had not paid his rent, and nobody had seen him for a while as he had moved away to work as the Front Man in the Squid Games. His brother, Detective Hwang Jun-ho arrived to investigate as In-ho had gone missing. When the landlady asked about the missing rent, Jun-ho told her that she would receive the rent that In-ho owed her.

The dormitory owner was portrayed by Kim Kye-sun.

General[]

The Dormitory is a rectangular room with metal-framed bunk beds lining the walls. Its basic architecture and monotone walls reflect its sterile nature. Aside from the beds, there is a large screen on the wall that displays the number of contestants remaining as well as the prize money.

A large clear acrylic piggy bank is periodically lowered from the roof of the dormitory as a display piece, accompanied by yellow theatre lights and upbeat chiptune arcade game-like music. It contains the winnings of the 33rd Squid Game in the form of stacks of banknotes. There also seems to be fluorescent lights attached on the black parts of the walls.

History[]

Players are first introduced to the dormitory in Episode 1 where they wake up, confused and unfamiliar with their surroundings and environment.

In 2020, the Special Game happened here on the night of the second game. When everyone is asleep, Jang Deok-su sneaks to Player 198's bed and brutally stabs her with his broken bottle, thus starting the game.

In 2024, the dormitory is split into two sides: players who voted to stay, and players who voted to leave. The Special Game happened here on the night of the third game. While the players who voted to leave were asleep, the players who voted to stay sneak to the other side of the room and ambush them, leading to a fight between the two sides; resulting to multiple deaths of players who voted to leave.

Trivia[]

During the 33rd Squid Game, the illustrations on the walls of the dormitory are actually abstract depictions of each game.

Each time a player dies, the beds will be removed and reduced, and illustrations on the walls will become visible.

During the 37th Squid Game, there are no depictions of the six games, rather there are other drawings.

There's a message on the walls that says "HODIE MIHI, CRAS TIBI", which is Latin for "Today it is my turn, tomorrow it is yours".

One side of the dormitory walls has what looks like a chessboard that could represent the graveyard of players who died in the games.

On the top of the wall, there are people swinging on monkey bars. While this isn't a game that's actually played, it could represent the struggles the players go through during all of these games they play.

The director also confirmed that these are not the latter three games, stating that the illustrations had nothing to do with them.

In the 28th Squid Game - 5 known People died in the dormitory, possible lights out in the 28th Squid Game that was not shown.

In the 33rd Squid Game - 30 People died in the dormitory

In the 37th Squid Game - 36 People died in the dormitory

Total - 71

Mistakes[]

The dormitory has 518 beds, but only 456 people participate in the squid game, which means that there are 62 extra beds,

Emmi Korhonen, also known as Player 219, is a woman from Finland who competed in the Squid Games.

In-game description[]

Finland's Aurora Borealis can't dazzle like Emmi Korhonen. She illuminates the darkest Nordic winters with a smile that melts permafrost.

But don't be fooled, Emmi's bubbly spirit springs from a cure of pure sisu. That spirit fuels her unwavering drive to help others but when her twin brother's rare illness forces her to pursue expensive treatment abroad, Emmi's inner fire faces the ultimate test.

In a land of long Winter nights, the brightest smile might conceal the hottest flame.

"One Lucky Day"

Believe in Jesus or burn in Hell! You fool who deny the Lord's existence, repent now! The day of judgment is upon us! Followers go to Heaven, non-believers burn in Hell! The only thing waiting for you in the afterlife will be fire and pain! Let us repent and kneel down before the Lord! Save yourself from Hell by making Jesus your lord!

The evangelist to other people in "One Lucky Day"

This unnamed man is an evangelist who religiously proselytizes in the street. In "One Lucky Day", he encounters Seong Gi-hun after he wins the Squid Games.

History[]

He finds Gi-hun in the street on a rainy night when he is dumped from a limo after winning Squid Game. He had posters that promoted Jesus is Lord. He said that to Gi-hun when he gained consciousness.

History[]

One day, when he is in his office on his computer playing a game, one of his employees, Ali Abdul, barges in, desperately telling him to pay him for the six months of hard work he did. The factory owner refuses to pay him, saying that the business is not doing well. However, Ali notices the money that he is carrying in his pocket so he rushes into him, and the factory owner refuses. The dispute becomes physical, and one thing leads to another. Soon, the factory owner's right hand gets stuck and shredded in a machine, crushing his fingers. As he screams in agony, this allows Ali the opportunity to steal the money and run away. He either bled out or was saved by his employees, even though he is most likely alive. The factory owner is never seen again.

Squid Game Collaboration[]

Buildup[]

From June 2nd to 5th, Epic Games held a conference on the future of Fortnite Creative Mode and UEFN (Their "Create Your Own" style sub-game), during the panels, multiple IPs being introduced to both Creative and UEFN, revealing that Squid Game would have it's own place in this lineup along with other franchises such as Avatar: The Last Airbender and Star Wars.

On June 3rd, Fortnite's official X account (Formerly Twitter) posted a photo showing a card similar to those used for invitations with the face of Peely next to the square, taglined by "You're invited! We're dying for you to join us." [1]

June 18th, at Squid Game 3's red carpet premiere in New York; a life sized costume of Peely dressed in the player's jumpsuits walked and posed on the carpet with the number 037 and an O patch.

Fortnite's various social media accounts would continue to post various teasers such as a Dalgona with the shape of a Supply Llama, and a short video of a Pink Manager Guard getting a Victory Royale [2] on one of the monitor panels within the control room leading up to the release of the update.

Collaboration[]

On June 27th, coinciding with Season 3's release date, Fortnite released an abundance of cosmetics, features, items, and quests,

Squid Grounds[]

Squid Ground's Playlist Icon

This update introduced the new Squid Grounds island in Fortnite: Reload, it is the latest island to be introduced to the Reload map pool and the first limited time Island. Quests were added exclusive to this map that offers XP to progress any of the four passes.

With this update, Creative and UEFN were updated with Squid Games map templates, exclusive items, devices, and structures. All of these features were exclusive to their own sub-section of Creative.

This map features 10 unique locations inspired by Squid Game, consisting of Affluent Arrivals, Costly Condos, Designer Docks, Hectic Hedges, Manager's Meals, Phoney Crossroads, Player's Power, Red Greens, Square Meals, and The Labyrinth. Along with a miniature version of the dorms, which can be found within the mini island of which you and other players spawn before landing onto the main island.

Synopsis[]

The remaining players strategize on how to survive the night. Gi-hun proposes a risky plan - but he will need trustworthy allies to carry it out.

—Official Netflix synopsis

Plot[]

In the Bathroom fight, Thanos strangles Lee Myung-gi to kill him, but then Myung-gi stabs Thanos in the throat with his dinner fork, causing him a severe hemorrhage and making him let Myung-gi go. Then Myung-gi stabs him in the neck, Thanos falls to the ground and begins to bleed to death, freeing Myung-gi, Park Min-su and Kim Jun-hee from Thanos forever. Myung-gi frees himself from his attacker and crawls to a cubicle, but Thanos uses his last strength to grab his ankle, but Myung-gi manages to free himself and Thanos finally falls dead. Myung-gi hides in the cubicle to recover and he gets shocked for having killed Thanos. The fight becomes increasingly brutal and bloody, Player 401 is killed and players beat each other to death. Nam-gyu and Player 331 fight and 331 knocks Nam-gyu down with a punch, Nam-gyu sees Thanos' corpse and tries to take a drug, but 331 kicks him, Nam-gyu grabs the fork and stabs 331 to death. Player 268 is killed by Player 067 and Player 299 is thrown against a mirror and beaten to death by Player 145. Outside the bathroom, the Pink Guards hear everything what's happening inside and act as if nothing is happening.

In the Dormitory, it's revealed that the fight claimed the lives of 5 players (leaving 95 player's alive) and it's announced that the eliminated players are Players 230, 268, 299, 331 and 401. The players are surprised and confused by the announcement while Min-su hides in fear and the Prize Money increases to ₩36,100,000,000 (being ₩380,000,000 for each player). Everyone wonders what happened and Seong Gi-hun realizes that the riot is near.

The survivors of the fight arrive and Nam-gyu starts to lie, stating that Team O was in the bathroom and Team X tried to kill them, but then Kwon Byeong-su reveals that the coward of Nam-gyu is lying and tells the truth, which is that Team O was who started the fight against Team X and that they threatened Min-su to force him to join them to win the vote. Player 192 states that Team X killed Thanos first and tried to kill them to win the vote, 145 states that Team O also killed some of them and asks if they expected them to let them kill them all. Both teams begin to argue, blaming the other for the deaths of their teammates until Im Jeong-dae asks which team lost more players and both teams realize that they don't know. Jeong-dae tells Team O to group together for a player count, Byeong-su does the same and asks Team X to group together, Jun-hee sees Myung-gi among the survivors of the fight and she gets worried to see him covered in Thanos' blood.

On the boat, the Drone pilot wakes up in the middle of the stormy night, suffering from nausea from drinking and the motion of the ship, he goes out on deck to vomit and then sees a light coming from one room, the man goes to check and finds Sea Captain Park. The pilot asks Captain Park what he is doing and then he realizes that he is doing something with the drone, Captain Park says that he was looking for something because he couldn't sleep and he found the drone, Captain Park tells the pilot that he's done and to go to sleep, but then the pilot realizes that something is wrong and asks Captain Park for an explanation, but then Park stabs him with a knife. The pilot tries to fight but Park stabs him and throws him overboard. Choi Woo-Seok arrives and asks who is there, then he sees that it is Park and asks him what he is doing there, Park tells him that he couldn't sleep and thought he heard something, Woo-seok mentions that he heard it too, that he heard as if someone was screaming and some thuds, Park tells him that's why he went out to check and then thought it was the waves hitting the deck and points to the messy deck, Woo-seok thinks it makes sense, Park tells him to go back to sleep and leaves, Woo-seok notices that something happened in the room, closes the door and goes to sleep.

In the dormitory, Jeong-dae counts the players of Team O and discovers that there're 47, which means that 3 of them died (Players 230, 268 and 299). Kim Yeong-sam asks him if he is sure, to which Jeong-dae tells him that he counted 3 times, Kim Gi-min (Player 203) asks how many players Team X has and the team wonders how many they're. Byeong-su counts the players of Team X and discovers that there're 48, which means that 2 of them died (Players 331 and 401). Player 400 says that if Team X lost 2 of the 5 dead, Team O lost 3, Se-mi adds that they have the advantage to win the vote and Park Jung-bae adds that it's 48 against 47 and if none of them change their mind, they will win by 1 vote, Team X believes that they have already won and that they will be able to get out of there. Then the Announcer informs that the lights will go out in 30 minutes and asks the players to get ready to sleep, Byeong-su asks Team X that no one changes their minds and tells them that you can win the vote and go home, Team X tells her not to worry, Player 072 adds that they really have to get out of there and the team goes to sleep, but Gi-hun thinks that Team O may plan something.

In the Organ trafficking ring, the operation finally makes progress, organs in good condition have been obtained and the divers leave to deliver them. Soldier 005 informs Masked Officer that the delivery team is on the way, Masked Officer asks about the goods and 005 tells him that they're in top condition, then Masked Officer asks about Kang No-eul, to which 005 tells him that she will no longer be a problem and Masked Officer tells him to keep an eye on her. Masked Officer arrives at the control room and the Managers, Soldiers and Workers are informed to prepare for the Special Game.

In the dormitory, there are 20 minutes left until the lights go out and Gi-hun's team, which includes himself, Hwang In-ho, Park Jung-bae, Kang Dae-ho, Kim Jun-hee, Cho Hyun-ju, Park Yong-sik, Jang Geum-ja, Park Gyeong-seok, Kwon Byeong-su and 145 suspects that Team O is up to something, Gi-hun mentions that he thinks that when the lights go out, Team O will attack Team X, he mentions that when they do it, they will win more votes and also more money, In-ho suggests attacking first and Byeong-su agrees since they have more women and older people, Gi-hun tells them that they can't because that's what the masked men want and suggests going against them. Gi-hun tells them that they are at the upper levels, that Front Man is the leader and if they capture him, they can win, In-ho asks him how to face them since the masked men have guns, to which Gi-hun reveals that he plans for them to take the weapons of the masked men, In-ho believes it is dangerous but Gi-hun believes that it is the best option and explains that when the fight starts, they can take up guns. Gi-hun explains that his plan is for Team O to start fighting Team X, they hide in the shadows and when the guards come in to stop the fight, they will pretend to be dead and when they scan them, they will attack them and take their guns.

With 5 minutes left before the lights go out, the players go to their beds, Nam-gyu is sitting on Thanos' bed and takes out Thanos' Cross (which he took from his corpse), he insults him for always "treating him like an idiot" but at the same time, seems to genuinely miss his friend and takes two drugs. Nam-gyu puts away the Thanos' Cross and takes out the fork, prepared to start killing. Jun-hee tells Myung-gi to hide when the lights go out and not do anything no matter what happens (warning him of the fight because he's the father of her baby and he saved her life several times). Myung-gi tells her yes and Jun-hee tells him to clean Thanos' blood off of himself. Jun-hee leaves and Myung-gi wipes away the blood.

The lights go out and Gi-hun's team carries out his plan; they hide under the bottom beds quietly so they don't catch them and attack them. Team O gets up and attacks Team X, with Nam-gyu and Kim Yeong-sam leading the charge with the rest of Team O following behind. Nam-gyu rushes up a bed and slaughters Player 185, starting the Special Game. Both teams start fighting and some players start dying quickly. Player 348 smashes a bottle in Player 307's face causing the latter to fall off a bed where Player 102 can be seen throwing Player 182 off a platform, who then gets attacked by Player 158. Player 406 attempted to stab Player 358 but failed, and attempted to retreat. However, Player 358 managed to grab Player 406 and stabbed him in the back repeatedly causing him to die. Min-su runs to hide, finds a bottle to defend himself and hides in one of the high beds. Player 315 was then seen chasing Player 183, while Player 056 pushes Player 067 down a bed, causing the latter to fall down some stairs. Amidst the chaos, many Team O members can be seen attacking Team X members, Player 197 takes off his tracksuit and begins to attack Player 056 and snaps his neck. While that is happening Player 134 then jumps off a falling bed. Player 308 can be seen running through beds then collapsing on the floor. She attempted to escape, but Player 158, kills her. Player 308 then stared at Gi-hun lifelessly, startling Gi-hun.

In a next shot, Kim Gi-min can be seen brutally stabbing Player 094 with a fork repeatedly, with Cho Hyun-ju and Park Gyeong-seok underneath the bed where the murder was occurring. Many Team X members can be seen either running, or getting attacked by a Team O member. Lee Seung-won then attempted to kill Player 359, to which the latter survived the attack. Player 102 was then pushed near a bed onto the floor, and was repeatedly stabbed to death by Player 296, right at the bed where Jang Geum-ja, Park Yong-sik, and Kim Jun-hee were hiding under. Gi-hun's team remains hidden and waits for the fight to end. The fight becomes increasingly bloody and brutal and claims the lives of several players, where Nam-gyu attacks Se-mi and corners her. Min-su sees them from a high bed and throws the bottle to help Se-mi, the bottle falls to the floor, breaks and Min-su quickly hides, Nam-gyu looks up and gets distracted, giving Se-mi the opportunity to grab the broken bottle and fight defend herself. Se-mi attacks Nam-gyu, throws him back and Nam-gyu drops the fork. Se-mi was about to have the upper advantage, but Player 182 and Player 377 collided into Se-mi, causing her to fall onto the ground. Se-mi tries to fight but Nam-gyu jumps on her, stabs her in the neck with the broken bottle. Se-mi can be heard screaming in pain while bleeding to death, much to Min-su's horror. Min-su then started crying and having a mental breakdown on his bed.

The Masked Officer tells the Pink Guards to come in to stop the fight. The lights turn on, a group of guards come in and stop the fight. Player 080, 348, 418, Im Jeong-dae and Kim Yeong-sam were forced to stop fighting Gi-hun's team continues with the plan, some stay hidden while others pretend to be dead and the soldiers scan the identities of the dead players, then Gi-hun's team attacks the soldiers, they take away their MP5A3 submachine guns and fight against them. Gi-hun's team manages to take their guns from several soldiers and kill them. The Masked Officer panics and tells the managers that the guards must retreat and close the gate. The Announcer tells the guards to retreat and the soldiers run as the gate closes, some are killed and others manage to escape, the manager tries to escape but the gate closes and he gets trapped, then Gi-hun tells his team to stop shooting and they take the manager prisoner.

Byeong-su, enraged at the "O" players for killing "X" players, moves to gun down several of them, but Gi-hun stops him and reminds him they'd be no different from the masked men. Hyun-ju suggests they gather the dead soldiers' guns and ammunition, then destroys the dormitory cameras to hide themselves from the control room. Gi-hun delivers a speech to the gathered survivors and states his plan to fight their way to the headquarters and end the event, imploring anyone with experience handling guns to step forward. Park Yong-sik wanted to help in Gi-hun's Revolt but he was held back by his mother who didn't let him join because she was afraid he would die in the rebellion. Lee Myung-gi was also willing to do so but Jun-hee warns him not to. When the players all hesitate Jung-bae sympathizes with them but reminds them it may be the last opportunity for everybody to escape and go home, which convinces Player 015 to fight. A few others also step up to join including Players 072, 206, and 324 bringing Gi-hun's group to twelve fighters. Noticing the others struggling, Hyun-ju steps forward and instructs the rebels on how to operate the MP5A3, revealing to a questioning Gyeong-seok that she formerly served as a Sergeant First Class in Korean Special Forces.

Gi-hun forces the captured manager to remove his mask, with Jung-bae expressing disbelief at his young age. Smashing through the side door to the bathrooms, the group exits the dorms. Min-su gets down from the bunk's and breaks down at Se-mi's corpse. Gi-hun's group proceed into the massive multi-colored stairwell, where they are attacked by several soldiers from a higher level after shooting out the speaker. When the shooting begins it scares Seon-nyeo while the others look on. Hyun-ju rushes forward and manages to kill three soldiers from a vantage point, forcing those remaining to retreat while Dae-ho cowers due to the shooting. The players continue to push forward, unaware of a larger group waiting to ambush them. They reach the entrance to the complex's management area, where the captured manager states he needs his mask to pass through the security, which he retrieves. As he looks up however, the manager sees In-ho and appears to recognize him, but is then shot in the head by the ambush group, pinning the players down. The soldiers fire at them from across the towering stairwell gap, killing 072 when he fails to reach cover.

Gi-hun orders the others to stay behind and buy time while he and Jung-bae head to the control room, which Young-il questions but complies with. The two find a security door that they pass by using the dead manager's mask, leaving a spare MP5 to hold the door open. They are attacked by two soldiers, but manage to kill them by causing a diversion with the manager's mask, looting them of their ammo before moving on. Seeing them advance, the Officer orders a large group of soldiers to defend the control room, which Gi-hun and Jung-bae have almost reached.

Back in the stairwell, the other rebelling players are locked in a shootout with the soldiers. Byeong-su manages to kill another guard and advises Kang Dae-ho to not waste his ammunition after wildly spraying fire, as he is clearly suffering from a PTSD episode and beginning to crack from the intensity of the fighting. Byeong-su suggests to Young-il that they meet up with Gi-hun, as they are getting nowhere being bogged down in a firefight, but In-ho fears they will get surrounded if they move forward with no plan and tells them to hold their ground. 206 is suddenly shot and killed by a soldier flanking the group, but Gyeong-seok and Hyun-ju manage to kill him and another flanker. The extended gunfight begins to wear down on the players, as they all discover their ammunition running dangerously low, while a pinned-down Gi-hun and Jung-bae run into the same problem as they radio In-ho for backup. Gi-hun reminds them that the soldiers they killed in the dorms have extra magazines in their pockets, which Young-il orders someone else to retrieve while he, Byeong-su, and 015 push on to reinforce Gi-hun. Hyun-ju prepares to retrieve the magazines, but Dae-ho steps up and volunteers to go instead, being out of ammo anyway. Hyun-ju gives him a loaded MP5 and sends him back after the others cover him, advising him to follow the destroyed cameras to avoid being seen.

Gi-hun runs out of ammo and bravely runs to a guard's corpse to grab more magazines, narrowly avoiding being gunned down, though he suffers a graze on his arm. Young-il, Byeong-su, and 015 arrive to assist, with him suggesting to Gi-hun they attempt to flank the soldiers guarding the control room entrance. Gi-hun agrees and hands him a spare magazine, which Young-il hesitates to take, but does so anyway, leading the others to outflank the guards. Back in the dorms, Dae-ho shakily arrives and starts to gather the dead soldiers' magazines with assistance from Geum-ja, Jun-hee and Yong-sik, managing to gather more than a dozen. As he leaves the dorms however, the distant gunfire from the shootout frightens him, causing him to become unresponsive when Hyun-ju radios him for help, before backing away in defeat from his PTSD. Hearing nothing, Hyun-ju volunteers to run back and grab the magazines, assuming Dae-ho had been killed.

Young-il and the others get behind the soldiers near the control and prepare to ambush them, but turns on the players, shooting Byeong-su and 015. Young-il then radios Gi-hun and fakes his own death, using 015's dying noises through the radio to reinforce the ruse, before executing the injured player with a headshot. Revealing his treachery, Young-il changes his radio's channel and orders the guards to start wrapping things up; in reality he is Hwang In-ho, the Front Man, and had entered the games presumably in an effort to stop any rebellion attempts by Gi-hun.

In the dorms, Hyun-ju arrives to find a shell-shocked Dae-ho, who profusely apologizes for abandoning them. As she goes to leave, a large group of soldiers arrive to quell any further rebellion, who she prepared to fight off with the new ammo until Geum-ja stopped her, knowing she would get herself killed in the effort. The surviving rebelling players in the stairwell run out of ammunition, as the soldiers began closing in from both directions to surround them. Injured and left with one bullet, 324 raises his gun to his head and, after protests from Gyeong-seok, kills himself to prevent capture. 145 then suggests they surrender, but he is shot in the chest after dropping his weapon. Gyeong-seok is backed up by another soldier and presumably shot and killed too (though it is later found out he was shot non-fatally by Kang No-eul).

Gi-hun and Jung-bae also run out of ammo and surrender, held at gunpoint by soldiers. The Front Man then arrives with the Officer, questioning Gi-hun if he had fun "playing the hero", before raising his M1911 to execute him. Just as Gi-hun accepts his fate with a furious gaze, the Front Man tells him to look at the consequences of his rebellion, before turning his gun to Jung-bae. The two friends share one last look, then the Front Man kills him with a shot to the chest, much to Gi-hun's heart-breaking anguish as two soldiers barely restrain him from lunging at his adversary. Following this failed riot attempt, the games continue as they had before.

In the mid-credits scene, Im Jeong-dae, Player 096, Kim Yun-tae, and other remaining O players enter a night and day themed room, with a re-dressed Young-hee standing opposite Cheol-su and a railway light turning green.

Trivia[]

The Cameraman in the episode "Friend or Foe"

This episode features the Bathroom Fight, the Special Game, and the Rebellion.

According to fans, Nam-gyu shows to be very intimidatory, brutal and dangerous during this episode, because of the drugs he took after Thanos' death.

In the credits, there's a small teaser of the Jump Rope game introducing Cheol-su, a male doll in the similar style of Young-hee, it also mainly shows O players entering the arena. Jump Rope was one of the games featured in the third season [1] however the railroad track light was not featured as heavily as teased.

On January 8, 2025, eagle-eyed fans spotted a major filming blunder in this episode where the camera changes angle to show Gi-hun and his allies opening fire on the guards. In the background, at approximately 22:39, a cameraman can clearly be seen at the top right of the screen.[2] However, this was later fixed and the cameraman is no longer there.

While discussing the plan Gi-hun mentions they should be fighting the people up there as in the people running the game and the VIPs. All the characters in the scene look up at the camera above them. This is considered by fans to be a jab at the viewers by comparing them to the VIPs themselves.

This is because the VIPs pay money to watch the games while we as the viewers pay a Netflix subscription in order to watch the show.

Just before Special Game begins, a countdown to lights out is heard. During this, the main characters are shown one by one. The order they are shown in follow the same order of events that got the characters killed. First, Jung-bae, Gyeong-seok, and In-ho are shown. All were eliminated in the revolt. Next, Hyun-ju, Yong-sik, Geum-ja and Dae-ho are shown, with all dying in Hide and Seek (aside from Geum-ja who died after the game). Then Jun-hee, Myung-gi, and Gi-hun are shown, with Jun-hee dying in Jump Rope, and Myung-gi and Gi-hun dying in Sky Squid Game.

Official summary[]

Ahead of the last round, distrust and disgust run deep among the finalists. Jun-ho makes a getaway, determined to expose the game's dirty secrets.

—Official Netflix synopsis

Plot[]

Hwang Jun-ho has escaped the island the games were being held at and manages to reach another nearby island. He checks his phone and sees that it has no signal so he runs towards a steep slope. However, the Front Man and a group of Soldiers are following Jun-ho and arrive on the island soon after. They find Jun-ho's diving pack and the Front Man orders the Soldiers to find Jun-ho and bring him back alive. Jun-ho sees them and hides in the bushes. He looks at his phone and finally gets a bit of signal so he calls the police for back up and tries to send the videos he took, but his police chief can barely hear him.

Meanwhile, the three remaining players are back in the lobby. Seong Gi-hun and Cho Sang-woo argue about whether Sang-woo pushing Player 017 was necessary while Kang Sae-byeok rests on her bed. Gi-hun accuses Sang-woo of killing Do Jung-soo unnecessarily in Glass Stepping Stones, but Sang-woo reminds Gi-hun that he was at the back and didn't have to dirty his hands when they were almost out of time to finish the game safely. Gi-hun asks Sang-woo if he would have killed him if he was in Player 017's position. Sang-woo doesn't answer, instead tearing into Gi-hun for being irresponsible and always getting into trouble; Gi-hun in turn throws that back at Sang-woo, pointing out that "The Pride of Ssangmun-dong" fell right into the same "shithole" and has no one to blame but himself for his own dire financial situation. The argument is interrupted by a Manager and some Workers carrying boxes into the lobby and congratulating them for being the finalists.

Sae-byeok goes into a bathroom to get ready. While changing, Sae-byeok is then revealed to have been impaled by a large shard of glass from when the bridge exploded in the previous game. She painfully removes the glass shard from her abdomen and quickly tears off her shirt to wrap it around the wound to prevent further bleeding. She then opens the box to reveal a tuxedo.

The finalists are given a nice steak dinner in the lobby as a prize for having come this far. Gi-hun and Sang-woo tear into their meals, eyeing each other down, while a clearly weakened Sae-byeok barely touches her food. After the meal, workers clean the table and leave the players' steak knives. The players keep the knives and go to their beds.

Jun-ho threatens the Front Man as the latter approaches him.

Meanwhile, The Front Man and several guards continue pursuing Jun-ho. He is now on the top of the slope and the Soldiers finally corner him. Jun-ho threatens them that he already sent the videos that he took to the police, but the Front Man doubts it because of the island's poor reception. As The Front Man gets walks closer, Jun-ho nervously steps back because of the edge and shoots The Front Man on his shoulder. The Soldiers get ready but The Front Man stops them and instead tells Jun-ho to come with them. Jun-ho demands that he identify himself. The Front Man doesn't answer but instead takes his mask off to reveal that he is Jun-ho's missing brother, In-ho. Jun-ho is shocked and speechless and when his brother extends his hand, asking him to join him, Jun-ho can only shake his head in disbelief. In-ho points his gun at his brother, and all Jun-ho can ask is "Why?" before In-ho shoots him in the shoulder, causing him to fall into the ocean, seemingly to his death. In-ho puts his mask again and goes back to his room where he remembers his brother asking "why" before shooting him.

Back in the dorms, the finalists rest on their beds. Gi-hun goes over to Sae-byeok, who readies her knife but Gi-hun assures her that he's not going to harm her and hides his knife in his jacket. They talk about what will they do after winning the money and their families, and promise each other that they will take care of them should one die. Gi-hun notices Sang-woo falling asleep and takes out his knife, but Sae-byeok stops him, telling him that he is not a killer. Gi-hun then hears Sae-byeok slump over in her bed, and uncovers her wound, which is bleeding profusely. Sae-byeok deliriously asks to go home. Gi-hun quickly runs to the door and begs for help. The doors finally open and the lights turn on but instead of help, the Workers walk past Gi-hun, carrying a coffin. Gi-hun turns around and sees Sang-woo covered in blood near Sae-byeok's bed. Gi-hun runs over to a lifeless Sae-byeok and cradles her in his arms, before discovering a stab wound in her neck. Realizing that Sang-woo had killed her with the knife in his hand, he furiously grabs his own knife to attack Sang-woo but both are quickly subdued by Soldiers. As the other Soldiers slowly carry Sae-byeok's body into her coffin, Gi-hun wails in agony.

Trivia[]

This is the shortest episode in the series, with the running time of 32 minutes.

Because of this, and also the fact that there are less characters in this episode, this is considered a bottle episode.

The Man with the Umbrella, Gganbu, 001, 222, and this episode are the only episodes that reference a character.

This and "Hell" are the only 2 episodes of the first season that don't contain a game.

In the Netflix special Squid Game in Conversation, director Hwang Dong-hyuk said the moment where Sae-byeok stops Gi-hun from killing Sang-woo is one of the most important scenes in Season 1, as it reminds Gi-hun of his remaining humanity. This moment would later impact a crucial decision Gi-hun makes in Season 3.

Ga-yeong to her father in "Red Light, Green Light"

Seong Ga-yeong (성가영 Seong Ga-yeong?) is the daughter and only child of Seong Gi-hun and Kang Eun-ji. She was at the center of the dispute between her parents. Her mother took her away from her father after he went into big debts to Loan sharks company.

History[]

Ga-yeong was born on June 8, 2011, to Seong Gi-hun and Kang Eun-ji their only child. Her mother who had collapsed in labour before taking herself to the hospital where Ga-yeong was born. Albeit without the presence of her deadbeat spouse, Seong Gi-hun, who was holding up in Dragon Motors during a violent strike around that time.

By 2017 (three years before Gi-hun entered the 33rd Squid Game), her parents settled for divorce and she was taken under the care of her mother and could visit her biological father as Gi-hun was not in a good position to support and look after her.

After an unknown amount of time, her mother then remarried to Ga-yeong's stepfather who provides for them and is more stable than Gi-hun. She has a stepbrother living with her, they are now all residing in USA Los Angeles.

On October 30, 2024, Gi-hun decided to call Ga-yeong to hear her out one last time before returning to the Squid Games. Ga-yeong answered the call and asked who it was, speaking in English, but Gi-hun couldn't say a word, then Ga-yeong thought it was her father and asked if it was him, speaking in Korean, Eun-ji told Ga-yeong it was time for dinner and Ga-yeong hung up the phone thinking it was a prank call.

Is that box from my dad? Did he send you here so he could see how I've been doing? Know what you could tell him? That I stopped waiting to hear from him a long time ago. I'll pretend my dad doesn't exist, and he can forget about me too.

Seong Ga-yeong to Hwang In-ho in "Humans Are..."

Six months later, a man claiming to be an acquaintance of Gi-hun comes in front of her house carrying a box. Ga-yeong initially denies the box, as she didn't want to be in any contact with Gi-hun. The man reveals that Gi-hun has died and the box is carrying his belongings. She takes the box and opens it to see a bloody jumpsuit with the numbers "456" and a small letter containing a credit card with his name, presumably containing the remainder of the money her father had won from the Squid Games. She runs out only to see the black car driving away.

Personality[]

These were your father's belongings. Mr. Seong Gi-hun has passed away. Before he died, he left these things for you, Ga-yeong.

Hwang In-ho to Seong Ga-yeong as he hands her father's tracksuit and credit card to her in "Humans Are..." Ga-yeong is empathetic and caring, much like her father. She worries about her biological father's well-being, concerned about his tendencies to get into fights, gambling addiction, his smoking habits. She seems to care a lot about her family, and her family seemingly tries to not make her aware of any strife amongst them. She makes it her effort to be grateful and humble, especially when her birthday doesn't go as planned she is still happy to spend time with her father showing that despite Gi-hun's issues they had a close relationship. However by the 37th Squid Game, it's noticeable that Ga-yeong has since developed a grudge against Gi-hun as he has not contacted or visited her implying that she was deeply hurt when Gi-hun cancelled his trip to see her. When In-ho comes to deliver the box she initially denies it because of his lack of contact. When In-ho tells her that Gi-hun has passed away she was noticeably saddened to hear the news showing she still cared about him giving her some closure as to her father's fate and was surprised with the bloodied tracksuit and credit card containing Gi-hun's leftover ₩45,600,000,000.

Trivia[]

Ga-yeong and Hwang Jun-ho are the only known characters to possess the golden Squid Game credit card without having participated in the games.

Ga-yeong's grandmother Oh Mal-soon mentioned that Ga-yeong loves fried chicken. Her father Seong Gi-hun once opened a chicken restaurant named after her which possibly explains why she loves chicken, as it reminds her of happier times when her parents were together.

Not long after Season 3 released, fake trailers were made for the American spin-off where Ga-yeong would be the 456th player for it, inheriting her dead father's player number.

This is heavily unlikely as it is doubtful that the games would let a teenager play. However, as the games let in a newborn baby (against their will) and let people presumably 19 or slightly older to be managers (thus giving the implication that they have been working in the games since they were in their mid to late teens), this can be debated. Another theme these fake trailers presumably have is where Ga-yeong tries to find out what happened to her father; this is also heavily doubtful, as she says that she forgot about him and has moved on, assuming she stays true to her word.

However, given that she loved her father very much, and especially after seeing how much money her father had given her, it is likely that she will not keep her word. Despite her resentment, she is still likely to love her father, and therefore she will be curious about his fate. Even if she does not become a player, it is possible that she may somehow disguise herself as a security guard.

If she returns to the American spin-off, even though her father is dead, it is possible that he will return to interact with her. However, in the fake trailers, Gi-hun is alive and trying to get her out of the game. Additionally, there are rumors online from fans that Gi-hun may be alive if the debris shielded him from the explosion. But this is unlikely, because it is highly likely that he would have been crushed by the debris, and since the director has already confirmed in an interview that Gi-hun is truly dead, it is unlikely that he will ever decide to "resurrect" him. Therefore, if an American spin-off or another future project involves their relationship, it is more likely that Gi-hun will return through her dreams or hallucinations.

And even if the director ever "revived" Gi-hun, he wouldn't be able to visit his daughter in America because he wouldn't have any money, as he was eliminated in the 37th games and the remaining winnings from the 33rd games were transferred to his daughter.

Mistakes[]

During a brief flash of Gi-hun's profile, her birthday is shown to be June 9 instead of June 8.[1]

The second game we... we played was Dalgona. We had to pick one out of the four shapes they showed us.

Seong Gi-hun telling members of Jeong-dae and his group the second game he played back during the 33rd Squid Game in "Six Legs"

Dalgona (뽑기 Ppopgi?), also known as Sugar Honeycombs, was the 2nd game in the 33rd Squid Game held in 2020. In the game, contestants were tasked with using a needle to carve a shape out of a piece of dalgona without cracking the honeycomb. Players who broke their honeycombs or did not finish in time were eliminated from the game and executed by guards.

187 players participated in this game. 79 players (around 42.2%) were eliminated and 108 players (around 57.8%) progressed to the next round. At this point in the competition, 348 players in total were eliminated. Notable eliminations include Player 119, Player 209, and Player 369.

This game took place on June 26, 2020.

8 Trivia

Game Information[]

The game was played in a square arena that resembled a playground for children, with a sandy floor, wooden fences, and 4 games including a swing, a slide, a merry-go-round, and some monkey bars. The walls were a pale cyan with many hand-drawn blue clouds on them, and the ceiling contained a circle lamp with some yellow lines simulating the sun. In one of the walls there were four doors that indicated the shapes of the honeycombs, being a green circle, a red triangle, a yellow star, and a blue umbrella.

At the very start, the players were told to choose a cookie shape to carve out before being informed of the game's premise. The options were a circle, a triangle, a star and umbrella.

After selecting a shape, they were handed small metal containers. Inside, they found the shapes they chose drawn on the sugar honeycombs along with a small needle.

The rules were to carve the shape out of the honeycomb without breaking it before the time ran out. Breaking/cracking the honeycomb or not carving it out in time resulted in being shot dead by a soldier.

Shapes[]

Triangle: This is the easiest shape. It only has three lines and most players will be able to cut them out easily.

Circle: This is a medium difficulty shape. All players have to do is break it into pieces.

Star: This shape is hard because it also has a lot of lines. When you cut it out normally, it breaks most of the time.

Umbrella: This is an extremely difficult shape because of many lines and angles. The handle is very thin and delicate, making it easy to break.

Nightmare Triangle (only appeared in Seong Gi-hun's nightmare): A complex version of Triangle (called Mona Lisa by the community), which is impossible to complete.

Keyhole (only appeared in Cho Sang-woo's recollection)

Triangle.Circle.Star.Umbrella.Nightmare Triangle.Keyhole.

Players who passed via cheating[]

Byeong-gi - The organ harvesting guards told him the next game was Dalgona, making him pick the triangle shape.

Cho Sang-woo - Was told by Sae-byeok that she saw the guards melting sugar, which reminded him of Dalgona and made him pick the triangle shape.

Kang Sae-byeok - Snuck inside the vents in the bathroom to see the guards cooking the Honeycombs and followed Sang-woo, taking the same shape as him.

Han Mi-nyeo and Jang Deok-su - Han Mi-nyeo secretly used a heated lighter to heat the needle which made her pass with the star shape, she assisted Deok-su by dropping her lighter to him.

Player Techniques[]

Although they were told they needed to carve out the shape, they were never told that they had to use the needle included. Most of the players assumed they had to use the conventional method, but a couple of participants got creative.

Licking the honeycomb[]

Seong Gi-hun holding the honeycomb to the light, showing that he was successfully melting the outline

Player 456, Seong Gi-hun, chose the Umbrella shape prior to the second game's beginning. This was remarkably the hardest shape to carve out, and thus he found himself at a disadvantage.

Nearing the game's end, Gi-hun noticed a change in the honeycomb's color where his sweat had fallen, after holding it up to the light he realized it was slowly melting. After this discovery, Gi-hun began licking the honeycomb, melting its thinnest part, and ultimately taking out the shape smoothly. Player 278 noticed him, then everyone started to replicate his own method, including Oh Il-nam, who later on thanked him for indirectly saving his life.

Using a heated needle[]

Han Mi-nyeo using the heated needle to carve out the star shape

Player 212, Han Mi-nyeo, chose the star shape, the second hardest shape to carve out, proven by Oh Il-nam's initial struggle. Nonetheless, Mi-nyeo smuggled a lighter before the Squid Game was restarted, and was able to use it to heat the tip of the needle, making it much easier for her to carve the star out of the honeycomb. Later she lent her lighter to Jang Deok-su, who had also chosen the star shape, in order to prove herself as useful and to gain his alliance for upcoming games.

Attacking the guards[]

Player 119, No Sang-hun became nervous because he broke the umbrella candy. He lunged at the shooter, but the supervisor tried to grab the gun to kill him. However, the supervisor was wounded, being shot in the shoulder, and was taken hostage.

Player 119 called the shooters bastards and asked what kind of game that was, and why he lost while everyone else won (that is, only a few people won).

Player 119 ordered the supervisor to remove his mask and turn to face him. The supervisor removed the mask, revealing that he was a young man. Player 119 questioned this and asked how he ended up in that place. Then Player 119 killed himself by shooting himself in the temple.

After that, the supervisor was killed by the Front Man with a shot to the forehead.

Trivia[]

In Cho Sang-woo's recollection, in addition to the four shapes that appeared in the game, there was also a keyhole-shaped dalgona. Which was a combination of the Circle and Triangle-shaped Dalgona.

The game briefly appears in a nightmare Seong Gi-hun had in "Six Legs". Gi-hun enters the game and opens a tin to find a shape similar to the sierpinski triangle inside it, meaning that all the contestants die and the money will be donated to rich billionaires.

When actors HoYeon Jung, Anupam Tripathi, Heo Sung-tae, Kim Joo-ryoung and Lee Yoo-mi attempted to do a similar challenge, all of them failed.

Dalgona is involved in a South Korean activity where one must remove the shape that is implemented on the candy, without breaking it. Often, vendors will allow you to have another, if you can successfully remove the shape.

The Manager is the first non-player to be killed in Dalgona for taking off his mask.

Seong Gi-hun is the last contestant who finished this game in 2020, completing it a second before the timer ran out.

In the Latin-American Spanish dub, the game is called "Panal" (Honeycomb) in Season 1, but when Gi-hun tells the other players in Season 2 what the second game will be, he calls the game "Dalgona".

Dalgona is the only game of the first season where a majority of players who entered the game pass it ($108/187 = \text{about } 57.8 \text{ percent}$ passed). Only around 44.2 percent of players passed Red Light, Green Light, exactly 50 percent of players passed Tug of War, $17/40$ or about 42.5 percent of players passed Marbles, $3/16$ or about 18.8 percent of players passed Glass Stepping Stones and exactly 50 percent of players passed the final game, Squid Game.

Game Information[]

The game arena is a large rectangular room which features Young-hee and Cheol-su standing on two tall circular platforms lifted far above the ground by two pillars, connected by a train rail bridge with a gap in the middle. The walls have a somewhat abstract art style and are a switch from day to night with each side having different styles. Young-hee's side has a train station at night which contains the entrance that looks like a train stations, and the walls are dark purple and blue with some tiny stars on them, also having a giant moon in the ceiling as a lamp. Cheol-su's side is more like the entrance of a house, with the walls being now light blue with some white resembling clouds, and a giant yellow circle lamp in the ceiling, simulating the sun. At the bottom of the arena, there's a flower-themed abyss which is where the players fall to and die.

Players must cross the narrow bridge within 20 minutes, while jumping to avoid the rotating metal rope, which increases or decreases in speed as time passes. There is a gap in the middle of the bridge, adding to the difficulty of the game. The green railway lights on the right side flash on-and-off to indicate the start of the game. Players may decide the order they cross the bridge amongst themselves.

Trivia[]

Gi-hun and Kim Jun-hee's baby will avoid getting hit by the rope, before they fell into the garden, and they've been eliminated

Player 084 was the only player in the game to not have his elimination announced or even shown on-screen.

This is technically the easiest game we've seen in the entire series, since everyone survived more than 10 jumps, everyone jumped very well, and with a little luck, everyone could have passed. However, due to Specific Problems, only 9 players passed.

Player 306 was the only player to be eliminated in the middle of the bridge without touching the rope or getting pushed.

Kim Jun-hee was the only player to be eliminated without stepping on the bridge.

Im Jeong-dae jumped the rope more times than any other player during the game, due to Player 096 holding up the bridge the entire time he jumped. He jumped exactly 99, 100 or 101 times.

Funnily enough, if he jumped 100 times, he would've jumped the exact amount of times as his player number.

Player 096 was the only player who passed and later got eliminated. While 312 and 276 technically passed too by crossing the entire bridge, they died instantly afterward, before the announcer confirmed their advance.

Jang Geum-ja (Player 149) was meant to participate in Jump Rope, but she killed herself during the night after losing her son in Hide and Seek.

Lee Jung-jae accidentally spoiled he would be crossing the bridge while holding the baby in an interview before season 3 came out.

Due to safety reasons, the metal rope was later added in post-production as revealed in an interview with the cast.

The lower-half of each of the dolls were built practically and the upper half was added in CGI.

The rope is rotated by metal anchors attached to motors on the ceiling, rather than the dolls.

Director Hwang Dong-hyuk states that this game represents Young-hee travelling over to Cheol-su's house, who waits for her outside. He says Young-hee is in her best outfit for this visit.

This game lasts for a total of 25 minutes worth of screentime. This is also the same amount of players who passed Hide and Seek and including Kim Jun-hee's baby, participated in this game.

In terms of players who had contributed to the voting system, Lee Myung-gi was the only X member to successfully pass the game, while the other X members (including Jun-hee) were eliminated.

Gi-hun doesn't count because his votes were counted as abstention, as he didn't care to vote after the trauma he dealt with between Jung-bae's death and Dae-ho's words.

The lyrics to the song foreshadow events throughout the game.

'Little friend, little friend, turn around.' Player 349 yelling at Player 377 to turn back, a decision that led to both of their deaths.

'Little friend, little friend, touch the ground.' Nam-gyu crossing over to the pills on all fours.

'Little friend, little friend, lift your shoe.' Park Min-su crossing the bridge while holding his shoes instead of wearing them.

'Little friend, little friend, goodbye to you!' likely symbolizing Kim Jun-hee's death, as she leaves voluntarily (suicide), or just generally referring to the eliminated players.

Furthermore, the way this is said could be resembling that the most of the finalists or Young-hee and Cheol-su were taunting Jun-hee that she was dead either way, presumably singing this in a mocking tone. This can possibly be foreshadowed when Nam-gyu taunts Myung-gi that he was going to die in Hide and Seek, had he not switched with Jun-hee.

Traditionally, this game is played following the song lyrics as instructions (turning around, touching the ground mid-jumps, jumping on one foot, leaving the rope while it's spinning).

The rope can be heard creaking right before the jumps, which can make the game a bit easier.

This is the first game where Gi-hun didn't pass in the last seconds (excluding some rounds in Mingle).

The shots of Young-hee and Cheol-su in the Season 2 post credits scene were not used in the actual episodes.

This game takes place at an altitude of approximately 50 meters (164 feet).

This is the only game in season 3 not to be featured in any of the Season 3 episode titles. (Hide and Seek is mentioned in "Keys and Knives" and "The Starry Night" while Sky Squid Game is mentioned in " △ ").

No women made it to the other part of the bridge, with the closest being Player 448, making it to the very edge.

The largest amount of players the first part of the bridge held was six, Player 377, Player 349, Player 163, Player 192, Player 442, and Lee Seung-won in that order.

This game share similarities with Glass Stepping Stones: Both are the fifth game of their competition, have a time limit, require players to jump, eliminated players will fall from great height. However, Jump Rope seems to have some sort of skills required to win, unlike Glass Stepping Stones where luck is the only factor that determinate the winners. Jump Rope also allowed players to decide the playing orders, while the order is decide before the Glass Stepping Stones game and is locked afterward.

Additionally This game also has a similarity to Glass Bridge/Glass Stepping Stones in that both games saw an unexpected difficulty in the players passing, cause by another player: Jang Deok-su in the Glass Bridge game who refused to move when it was his turn in that game which meant the other players had to risk their lives sooner and in this game Player 096 who was going to push off any players who tried to approach the finish line: in a parallel Deok-su's problem means the players have to move ahead in the game quicker then they want while Player 096's plan means they have to hold back from moving forward.

No player introduced by the manager at the very beginning of the 37th Squid Game died in this game. It is the only game that lacks an elimination from that group.

No minor player seen in Red Light Green Light made it to this game.

No elderly players died in this game.

No women who signed their consent form passed this game.

It and Squid Game itself are the only games to not have an eliminated player whose name was revealed through the files or credits.

There is a poster within the starting house that holds the eliminated players on it. When translated, the title is 'timetable,' the writing above the arrow says 'downline,' and the subtitle for the numbers is 'train number.' This means this poster shows the timetable for trains. The trains are symbolized through the players, hence the player numbers. The downline (which refers to where a train is going) states that they are going from the house, to the flower. In summary, the trains (players) begin at the train station (house), and then they go (players crossing the bridge, which is a railroad), and end up arriving at the flower (the players fell to their deaths, the floor being covered in painted flowers).

Although this game was one of the easiest, it seems that it was made with Player 096's plan in mind, because if it wasn't for him, technically every player could've been able to pass (and Gi-hun would've have enough time to go for Jun-hee and help her cross). However, thanks to Player 096's plan, only 9 players (counting the baby) survived this game.

After Geum-ja's suicide exactly 1/19 of the original 456 players made it to this game.

24 adult players enter the game, the same as the number of tribute participants in the annual Hunger Games [though in the Hunger Games half the tributes are boys and half are girls while only 4 adult players out of 24 here were girls and of course the Hunger Games tributes are younger at only age 12-18 with the exception of the 75th Hunger Games/3rd Quarter Quell].

No player with a number ending in 1 made it into this game (Player 191 was supposed to, but this was discarded).

When the players were exiting the dormitory to go to this game, Player 312 can be seen, with Player 276 behind him, and Jeong-dae behind him. These three players would later go onto the bridge in that same order.

The game has several similarities to Red Light, Green Light: #1: Both involve the actual appearance of the giant Young-hee doll. #2: This game shows a Red Light and Green Light to indicate when the players can pass. #3: Both games involve moving from one area to another very carefully, stopping and moving at the right times. #4: In both games one of the most prominent deaths is the death of a Player with 96 [Kang Mi-na/196 in Red Light, Green Light and Player 096 in this game]. #5: In both games the first player death is someone who Thanos spoke to closely, though for different reasons [Mi-na in Red Light, Green Light then Nam-gyu/124 in this game]. #6: Both games feature Thanos' drugs playing a large role [Thanos may have only passed due to his drugs in the first game and killed three players while on them, while in this game Nam-gyu died and Min-su possibly passed or at least was helped because Nam-gyu no longer had the drugs]. #7: Finally in both games the final player to die is someone who Gi-hun was attempting to return to help pass after he had already passed the game [Player 444/Kim Nam-du in the first game and Jun-hee here]; and in a further coincidence Nam-du's number is exactly twice that of Jun-hee's and additionally they have the same family name of Kim.

If not for Player 096 holding up the line it is possible [this is only an estimate though] that this is the list of players who would have passed the game, in order: -First, Player 456 [Seong Gi-hun of Ssang Mung-dong] along with baby 222. Second, Player 096/the Marine. Thirdly, Player 312. Fourthly, Player 276. Fifthly, Player 100 [Im Jeong-dae]. Sixth, Player 084. Seventh, Player 336 [Lee Seung-won]. Eighth, Player 442. Ninth, Player 349. Tenth, Player 377. Eleventh, Player 353 [Kim Yun-tae]. Twelfth, Player 039. Thirteenth, Player 435. Fourteenth, Ms. Player 448. Fifteenth, Player 203 [Kim Gi-min]. Sixteenth, Player 260. Seventeenth, Player 125 [Park Min-su]. Eighteenth and finally, Player 333 [Lee Myung-gi/MC Coin/The Amazing Myung-gi]. The others, though not certain, have an improbable chance of passing the game because: Player 149 [Jang Geum-ja] had already committed suicide. Player 124 [Nam-gyu] would still have died pursuing his drugs. Player 209 and Player 163 showed weak balance and fell off the bridge when Player 096 had only blocked the line for a very short time which means it is probable they would have failed anyway. Player 192 also showed weak balance and fell off early. Player 306 fell off even without the Marine holding the line up when the path in front of him was totally clear. Finally, Player 222/Jun-hee's ankle would still have been badly injured. Though not certain, this is a fair estimate of how the game could have progressed without the Marine holding up the line. This would result in 18 finalists [19 if the baby is still made a player]. If Player 084, Player 333, Player 349 and Player 377 continued to vote X and were joined by Gi-hun, Player 125/Min-su, Player 039, Player 260, Player 435 and Player 448 [who all seemed to want to vote X after Hide and Seek based on their facial expressions] and Player 096 [who almost did vote X after Hide and Seek] the games could have ended with a result of 11 votes for X against only 7 Os. Of the other 7 players [100, 203, 276, 312, 336, 353 and 442] there is a certain chance though not probably that Player 276, 312 and 336 might have also felt they had enough money [18 players remaining means 43.8 billion won divide by 18= about 2.4 billion won per player] meaning the Xs could have possibly won with as much as a 14-4 majority vote. It is also somewhat possible Player 209 might have passed if not for the Marine's problem because he crossed almost all of the bridge, the furthest out of the seven players estimated to fail and his concentration was visibly distracted by Gi-hun and 096's argument before he slipped so he might have made it and it might have been a 15-4 vote in favour of leaving.

If this had been the 5th game of 2020 Squid Game instead [PLEASE DO NOT DELETED THIS IS JUST AN INTERESTING SPECULATION] a possible [this is ONLY AN ESTIMATE] estimate of the players to pass the game might be: Player 017, Player 062, Player 067, Player 096, Player 101, Player 151, Player 212, Player 218, Player 308, Player 322, Player 407 and Player 456. Player 021 was probably the most nervous player there and could have easily lost balance and concentration, Player 244 was less physically fit than ideal and was also very nervous, Player 453 was a much older woman and could have lost balance that way and Player 360 was somewhat overweight and also somewhat nervous considering he gawks at the other players on the bridge and especially at Deok-su when Deok-su announces he is not moving forward on the bridge. The possible order the players would have gone on the bridge might be Player 062 [because he was young, physically fit and confident], Player 067/Kang Sae-byok [for similiar reasons and she was also practical and would have kept an eye on the time limit], Player 218/Cho Sang-woo [for the same reasons regarding time], Player 101/Jang Deok-su [he was also practical and would want to guarantee his own survival], Player 017/Do Jeong-soo, Player 096, Player 021, Player 456/Seong Gi-hun, Player 212/Han Mi-nyeo, Player 151, Player 407, Player 308, Player 322, Player 360, Player 453 and Player 244. Hence in this possible scenario there would be 12 Finalist players this year.

At 25 players entering this is exactly one quarter of the players who passed Mingle, just under 10 percent of the players who passed the Six-Legged Pentathlon, about 6.8 percent of the players who passed Red Light, Green Light and about 5.5 percent of the 456 players to enter the games.

It is unknown why there is a ladder at the side of each tower. In the unlikely event that a player survives the fall from the bridge perhaps they can climb back up to try again through the ladder.

Every single player who is seen when Gi-hun crosses the bridge and completes the game is shown cheering for him including the 0s most of whom probably dislike him as a person or have contempt for him trying to stop the games.

A Manager giving the Finalists a hint about the final game in "222"

Sky Squid Game (고공 오징어 게임 Gogong Ojingeo Geim?) was the sixth and final game of the 37th Squid Game, and the Squid Games in South Korea as a whole.

9 players (including the baby) participated in this game. 8 players (around 88.8%) were eliminated and only 1 player, Player 222 survived and became the competition winner. No players who had signed their consent form or played all of the previous 5 games survived.

Eliminations include Player 039, Player 100, Player 125, Player 203, Player 333, Player 336, Player 353 and Player 456.

The final game took place on November 7, 2024.

Game information[]

Due to this game not being a kids game and instead an original game by the series' director, this arena has a completely unique style. The arena is a large and giant rectangular room with completely black walls, and the bottom of the arena has a sandy floor. There's many circular support pillars that also serve as spots for Soldiers to either guard or to eliminate players if the timer runs out. The ceiling is also much higher due to additional walls sloping, and those walls contain giant spotlights that serve as lighting for the game. The most notable part of the arena are the giant concrete platforms, with a yellow square platform, a faded green triangle platform, and a red circle platform. These platforms also contain stairs and lifts, and they all contain a metal pole and a button in the middle to start the rounds. In one of the walls, there's a window where the VIPs can watch the game.

To start the game on each platform, a player must press the previously mentioned button on the platform. When the game starts, players have 15 minutes to eliminate at least 1 player (except the third and final round which was 10 minutes). After the time elapses and the minimum of 1 player has been eliminated, a bridge will extend to the next tower, allowing the remaining players to go to the adjacent tower. If the time runs out and no-one has been eliminated, then all remaining players will be eliminated and nobody wins the prize money. If a player is killed before the button on a platform is pressed - starting the round - the elimination will not count.

Plot[]

Round 1 - Square tower[]

In the first round of the game, players begun on the Square tower. The players must eliminate 1 or more players to continue to the Triangle tower. After a discussion between six players (100, 333, 336, 203, 353 and 039), Lee Myung-gi (Player 333) eliminates Park Min-su (Player 125) by pushing him off of the tower with the pole. The remainder of the time elapses, and the first round concludes. A bridge to the triangle shape and the next round appears.

Round 2 - Triangle tower[]

In the second round of the game, players have now reached the triangle tower. Player 100's team vote to eliminate Kim Jun-hee's baby (Player 222) from the game, however they understand that Seong Gi-hun (Player 456) is protecting the baby with no goal of giving up the baby. Therefore, they must be separated or else one of the team members will have to be eliminated on the Circle tower.

Kim Yun-tae (Player 353) believes that Gi-hun will give up the baby if his life is threatened and as he is about to push both of them off the tower with the metal pole, Seong Gi-hun talks to him, causing him to doubt his team and whether he should push Gi-hun off, as the team whispers behind him. This causes 336 to retract and put down the pole, as he believes that the team could be scheming against him. In order to separate Gi-hun and the baby, Myung-gi proposes an idea.

In an attempt to separate Players 222 and 456, the Group tie their jackets together and form a harness whilst Player 333 holds the metal pole. Player 336 (Lee Seung-won) tries to lure Gi-hun into the center of the tower - as it would be safer to separate him and the baby - by promising that they had all agreed to draw lots to decide who is eliminated. But after he demands the lots be brought to him, 336 grabs 456 around the waist and 100's team start pulling on the suit harness to pull Gi-hun into the center and separate him from the baby. Gi-hun pulls out Oh Il-nam's dagger, that was given to him by Hwang In-ho (The Front Man) the night before and cuts Player 039's jacket and the entire rope of jackets as a whole. Gi-hun threatens 336 with the knife while behind him, Lee Myung-gi yells at Player 456 to move, which he does, before pushing Player 336 off the tower. Player 333 tells 456 that he is with him, and no longer wishes to be on 100's team.

Player 333 reveals that the baby is his. The Group are shocked and are disappointed in his betrayal and failure to inform the team sooner. Some participants of the Group do not believe him. 100's team asks to draw lots seriously this time, before 333 says that they'll betray them and that as he and Gi-hun carry weapons they get to decide who gets eliminated. This causes a predicament amongst 100's team, but Im Jeong-dae proposes a solution. They single out and attack Player 039, claiming to be 'packing a lunchbox'. The idea is that they will beat 039 into submission, drag him over to the Circle tower and throw him off, getting out with 7.6 billion won each. 353 restrains 039 while player 203 repeatedly punches him, before throwing 039 to the ground and breaking his leg. He begins to crawl over to Gi-hun, begging for help before being mostly incapacitated by a powerful kick to the head. Gi-hun declines using a Lunchbox, to the dissatisfaction of the team. 203 instigates a fight, attempting to disarm Gi-hun and kill him, while 353 attempts to take Myung-gi's pole to push him off. 203 and Gi-hun twist around on the ground, but eventually 456 plunges the knife deep into 203's abdomen, killing him. Player 353 attempts to trip Myung-gi and push him off, but 333 maneuvers, leaving 353 closer to the edge before 333 kicks him in the chest, releasing 353's grip on the pole and pushing him off of the tower. Once 353 and 203 have been eliminated, Myung-gi turns to a frightened Im Jeong-dae (Player 100). Player 100 attempts to dissuade 333 and 456 from murdering him and turns to an injured Player 039, suggesting that they could still use the lunchbox to all leave alive, with 11.4 billion won each - his pleas growing more and more desperate the closer Myung-gi approaches to him, offering to give up his extra money, 1.4 billion won to them in return for being allowed to live. Player 333 declines and mentions that they could earn 15.2 billion won with Player 100 dead.

Without hesitation, Player 333 shoves the metal rod into Player 100, causing him to fall to his death with the pole. During this whole predicament, 039 - The Lunchbox - crawled over to the edge of the tower with suicidal intent. In panic, Myung-gi tries to desperately bargain with him, saying they can talk about this, and that he doesn't have to die. 039 refuses, and throws himself off of the tower. The second round comes to an end and the bridge to the circle shape appears with just 3 players remaining - meaning either Gi-hun, Myung-gi or the baby must die.

Round 3 - Circle tower[]

Myung-gi asks if the baby is okay, potentially as a distraction, before walking over to the Circle pillar and picking up the metal pole. He refuses to allow 456 to cross the bridge onto the final round, telling him to leave the baby on the bridge. Gi-hun tells him that he will sacrifice himself for him and the baby, as he promised Kim Jun-hee that he will let no harm come to the baby. Myung-gi does not believe him, and accuses him of being a scam-artist and a fraud, saying that he's in the games because of people like him. 333 is aware he will have to kill the baby without 456 on the platform, and in a fit of hysteria accuses Gi-hun of having relations with Jun-hee outside of the games, and that the baby isn't his - attempting to convince himself to kill the baby. After a lot of arguing, Gi-hun eventually leaves the baby on the bridge, and backs away to the Triangle tower while 333 picks up the baby and lays it on the Circle. While 333 is distracted, 456 crouches and stealthily retrieves the knife from 203's abdomen, hiding it behind his back. The bridge begins to retract, but halfway through Seong Gi-hun jumps over the gap and lands on the Circle tower, much to Myung-gi's shock.

He quickly picks up the pole, and they begin to fight. 456 starts swinging his knife at 333, but he slams the pole into Gi-hun's side. After a brief scuffle, the pole falls off the tower, leaving 333 disadvantaged - without a weapon, 456 lands a punch on his head. But Myung-gi runs over to the baby, and dangles it over the side of the tower, threatening to drop it. 333 lays down the baby in return for Gi-hun handing over his knife, and 456 begins wrapping his arm with his suit to protect against the imminent stabbing. Myung-gi rushes at Gi-hun, slashing his abdomen before stabbing the knife into his arm, pressing deep to try and push him off. 456 pulls the knife out of his arm, and 333 tries to swing again before missing, plunging both players off the side of the tower. Player 456 dangles from a piece of exposed rebar, while 333 holds onto his jacketed arm. Unfortunately, the suit begins to tear, dropping 333 even lower. Eventually, the suit fully tears and Lee Myung-gi falls to the bottom and is eliminated.

Player 456 climbs back up, however realizes that button has not been pressed yet, so Player 333's death does not count. Alone with Player 222, Player 456 presses the button and after spending most of his time holding the baby as one last goodbye, he lays it down. Player 456 turns backwards and states, "We are not horses. We are humans. And humans are...". He then falls backwards off the shape and commits an altruistic suicide, allowing Player 222 to survive and be the winner of the game.

Trivia[]

With an elimination rate of 88.8%, this game has the highest death rate percentage among all other games in the series.

If Gi-hun hadn't cut Player 039's jacket and the entire rope of jackets, he would have been dragged to the center, separated from the baby, and Player 100's team's plan would have been carried out and everyone from the alliance would have survived the second round (039, 100, 203, 333, 336, 353).

Player 125 (Park Min-su) is the first finalist to die and the only one to die wearing a jacket, as the others (039 100 203 333 336 353 456) died wearing shirts and no jackets.

Player 100 (Im Jeong-dae) was the only player in this game who failed to fight back against his killer due to Jeong-dae being old and pathetic. He was also the last player killed due to his killer's greed.

Player 333 and Player 100 share the same first kanji in their last names. Coincidentally, Player 333 killed Player 100.

When the camera zooms in on Player 100's corpse, you can see for a split second that he's shedding tears. That is because Tobey Maguire Spider-Man put some dirt in his eye.

If you look at the number of deaths in three rounds in ascending order, you get 1 3 2, which indicates the frontman number 132 and also the winner of the 28th squid game.

The Six-Legged Pentathlon and Sky Squid Game are the only games with original names.

Sky Squid Game is somewhat similar to the traditional Squid Game:

Both games are watched by the VIPs from their lounge.

Players would have to push someone out of the game zone (the squid arena in 2020 and platforms in 2024).

Unlike the original game, Squid Game doesn't use objects to track players' progress. Squid Game takes place on the ground, while Sky Squid Game takes place on high ground.

Prior to the game the remaining players were given the hint that only a minimum of three players could possibly be eliminated, and that they would get to decide who that would be. This was to provide incentive to the players to not end the games by vote despite already having accumulated a significant portion of money.

The game arena is probably a cave, you can notice a rock overhang at the top, the unfinished floor and the towers, possibly made of stone cut out of the ground.

This is the only game that isn't a childhood game and was invented by director Hwang Dong-hyuk.

Some say there is a theory that the Sky Squid Game is a previously used final game because of the fact that the towers are worn out and look heavily rusted; like the elevator

This game takes place at an altitude of approximately 30 meters (100 feet).

This game is tied with Hide and Seek for the most named characters to die, with a total of seven (Park Min-su, Lee Seung-won, Kim Yun-tae, Kim Gi-min, Im Jeong-dae, Lee Myung-gi, and Seong Gi-hun).

This game is also the only game where Workers did not put the eliminated players in the coffin to cremate their body as they were forced to evacuate the island due to Hwang Jun-ho calling the coast guard.

Park Min-su, Lee Seung-won and Im Jeong-dae are the only players that died getting pushed off the platform with a pole, with the pole falling along with them and Seung-won is the only one that the pole didn't fall along with.

The Triangle tower has the most players eliminated at 5 players (Lee Seung-won, Kim Yun-tae, Kim Gi-min, Im Jeong-dae and Player 039).

In spite of being the final game of the 6 games of this edition of the games, all 5 possible first digits are represented with 0 being represented by Player 039, 1 being represented by Im Jeong-dae and Park Min-su, 2 being represented by Kim Gi-min and Kim Jun-hee's baby, 3 being represented by Lee Myung-gi, Lee Seung-won and Kim Yun-tae, and 4 being represented by Seong Gi-hun. The final five players also begin with numbers 0, 1, 2, 3, and 4 (039, Jeong-dae, the baby, Myung-gi, and Gi-hun)

4 out of the 8 adult finalists never made an appearance in the first 3 games (unless you also count extras who used their numbers)

The colors of the tower (Yellow, Blue, Red) are primary colors.

None of the finalists knew Gi-hun or Myung-gi's name. (Reinforced by Im Jeong-dae called Myung-gi Player 333)

Park Min-su, Lee Seung-won and Seong Gi-hun's eliminations were the only ones that were counted for advancement as the other players had either died after 1 player had already died, or died before the button was pressed causing their eliminations to be negated.

This game had the lowest amount of eliminations in the 37th squid game.

It is unknown whether the poles can only be used in their respective towers or can be taken to the next towers though there is a slight probability they can be taken to the next tower.

This was the final game in the whole of Korean Squid Game's history.

While the pillars were never clearly shown until the season actually came out, the little pillars in the VIP room were in the main trailer.

Im Jeong-dae is the only player in this game to be a Hider during Hide-and-Seek, everyone else but the baby were Seekers.

This game is the only Season 3 game to have its first death to not be a major antagonist, as Hide and Seek had Kim Yeong-sam as the first major death while Jump Rope had Nam-gyu as its first major death, with both being notable antagonists. Both Yeong-sam and Nam-gyu also played Paengi/Spinning Top [and this is actually confirmed on screen] in the Six-Legged Pentathlon.

The order in which the Seeker finalists passed in Hide and Seek from first to last is most likely Lee Myung-gi, Lee Seung-won, Kim Gi-min, Player 039, Kim Yun-tae, Park Min-su and Seong Gi-hun. This also means that the last two to pass in Hide and Seek were the only two who voted X in the final vote.

If Player 096 had not attempted to kill Gi-hun in Jump Rope and survived to this game it is possible (assuming the votes still went majority 0) that he would have been the first target in this game: since he previously tried to kill all the other players in Jump Rope, they would likely want revenge. It is unlikely they would be successful though because Player 096 was an extremely skilled fighter.

Excluding the baby, Player 039 is the only participant without a confirmed name, as Kim Gi-min, Lee Seung-won and Kim Yun-tae's were given in the credits. Although credits wise, Player 039 was named as Do Sirak-nam which roughly translates to lunchbox man, hence why he has no name.

At 9 players participating out of 456, just under 2 percent (1 out of 50) of the original 37th Squid Game players made it to this game.

This game has several similarities to the scenes where Thanos gains the Soul Stone in Avengers: Infinity War: -Both sequences involve the direct sacrifice of another to gain power and both involve pushing the sacrifice off a high tower. -Both are set in mysterious and rocky locations. -Both involve a father murdering or considering/attempting to murder his own daughter. -Finally, a character named Thanos appears in both scenes.

It also has a similarity to Greek mythology particularly the relationship of the Titan Kronos to his children the Olympian gods in that it is set in a rocky location, like much of Greece and also involves a parent considering/attempting to murder his own child [and Kronos' first child, Hestia, was a girl like Myung-gi's daughter]. Kronos had also been cursed by his father the sky god Oranauth that Kronos' own children would kill him: just like entering the game set in the sky resulted in the deaths of most players here including the would-be killing parent Myung-gi. There are also [at first] 6 male players on the majority aggressive side like there were six Titan brothers.

This game and Tug of War are the only seen games to involve elevators.

This game includes the youngest-ever finalist [and player] in the baby as well as possibly the oldest finalist ever in Im Jeong-dae/Player 100.

The death of Im Jeong-dae/Player 100 is widely considered one of the best moments of the series.

Player 102

Jang Deok-su (장덕수 Jang Deog-su?), also known as Player 101, was a participant in the 33rd Squid Game, as well as one of the few semifinalists in the competition.^{[2][3]} Prior to his entry, he was a gangster running from gambling debts and the secondary antagonist of Season 1.

During the games, Deok-su formed a gang of players, which he was the leader of. He frequently clashed with Seong Gi-hun and members of his team, especially Kang Sae-byeok and Han Mi-nyeo.

Personality

Once the lights are out, sit quietly in a corner. Don't even breathe. If I hear you breathe... I'll come for you.

Deok-su warning Byeong-gi about the Special Game he will cause in Stick to the TeamDeok-su is a brutal and low-functioning sociopath who terrorizes and murders other players, taking delight in specifically targeting weaker contestants, regardless if it's to improve his odds or just out of pure rage. Deok-su's cruelty is so great that even contestants like Cho Sang-woo are shown to be absolutely disgusted by how vile he is. Even in instances where his teammates were horrified by their actions (after the Tug-Of-War game), Deok-su can be seen remorselessly laughing as he kills more players. Deok-su is even more evil than Oh Il-nam, the Front Man and the Masked Officer, who are controlling the games, as he lacks any redeeming qualities, is actually sadistic and eager to get his hands dirty.

Despite relying on his strength most of the time, Deok-su is also intelligent and capable of strategizing. He starts a riot to eliminate the competition as soon as he realizes that there is no punishment for killing other players in between games. This also shows he is an utilitarian, believing that the game will end earlier if he massacres most of the contestants, and also opportunistic too, since he use the flaws in the rules to his advantages. He keeps the members of his team close to him, including the doctor to give him information about the games, but is constantly doubtful about his allies as he is aware that any of them might betray him. During the Marble game, as he is about to lose to Player 278, he is the only player who recalls the rule of equality among the contestants, which was briefly mentioned earlier, and uses it to save his own life by asking the masked soldier to switch the game.

Deok-su show signs of an ungrateful individual, since he ditches Han Mi-nyeo in the Tug of War game over stronger men without a second thought, even though he only survived the Dalgona game thanks to her help and would have most likely died without it.

Deok-su is also a massive hypocrite, since despite having no loyalty to anyone, he gets really angry when someone betrays him, like brutally stabbing his henchman, mistreating Sae-byeok, and laughing at Player 278 after beating him (since Player 278 was not loyal to Deok-su). Another time is him demanding Player 151 to make Player 244 move when the latter stopped to pray, only to later stop and demand others to either moving in front of him or everyone would die when the time ran out.

Deok-su is shown to be a massive cheater, with instances like rallying his men to storm the game's facility to steal the prize money, to allying with Byeong-gi only for the information about the next game, and killing other players only to improve his odds of winning.

Deok-su shown numerous signs of a individual with no moral standard or empathy whatsoever, which is evidence by him being the only one to smirk after killing the adversary team in the Tug-of-War game and after finding out that Player 069 hanged himself, opposed to his allies being visibly shocked and distraught. He's also the only one to show no remorse after winning against Player 278, if not ecstatic about it, contradicting to everyone being saddened by their allies's death.

However, although pretending to be tough and dangerous, Deok-su is ultimately a coward who is afraid of death. He is also so egotistical that he'd rather die with the rest of the players than sacrifice himself for them. His cowardice and paranoia are shown multiple times, including when he intended to start another riot, but hesitated out of fear after Seong Gi-hun warned him of the possibility of his minions betraying and killing him.

History

2020

At some point in his life, Deok-su fell into bad standings with his criminal boss in Incheon and accumulates large gambling debts with loan sharks from the Philippines. He agrees to enter the Squid Game to escape those pursuing him and to win enough money to pay his debts. Following the vote to end the games after the first round, he plots to infiltrate the Games and steal the prize money, so he tries to assemble a crew outside, but his reputation is so badly damaged that he is unable to do so and therefore he has no other choice but to return to the games.[4]

After returning to the game, Deok-su forms and leads a gang with several other contestants, including Byeong-gi, Player 278, and Han Mi-nyeo. He repeatedly tries to assault Kang Sae-byeok, a contestant who once worked for him prior to the Squid Game, and at one point his gang starts a nighttime brawl that results in the deaths of several players.[5]

Deok-su initially includes Mi-nyeo in his gang after she helps him survive one of the rounds, and they have a brief sexual relationship, but he later expels her from the group and replaces her with physically stronger men after he learns from Byeong-gi that the next round is a game of Tug of War.[5]

For the fourth game, Marbles, Deok-su teams up with Player 278. Player 278 initially starts winning, but just as he's about to beat him, Deok-su demands to switch the game, which a guard approves. He ends up winning from a crazy stroke of luck, which causes Deok-su to blaringly cheer. Player 278, much to his despair, tries to escape, but runs into a dead end and gets gunned down as he curses at the guards.

Fate

Deok-su falling to his death

You goddamn bitch!

Deok-su's last words before being killed by Han Mi-nyeo in "VIPS"

Deok-su survives until the fifth game, Glass Stepping Stones, during which he refuses to progress when he is at the front of the line unless other players move ahead of him. Mi-nyeo, who had earlier vowed to kill Deok-su if he betrayed her, makes good on her word by grabbing Deok-su around the waist. Deok-su tries to pry her off of himself and begs her to let him go, but Mi-nyeo mocks him and pulls them both off the bridge in a murder-suicide, causing them to fall to their deaths.[6]

Behind the scenes

Jang Deok-su was portrayed by actor Heo Sung-tae. He serves as a major antagonist throughout the majority of season 1 and is the main antagonist amongst Seong Gi-hun's fellow Squid Game participants up until his death. His actor had to gain weight for the role of Deok-su.

Trivia

He was the highest placing player in the 33rd Squid Game whose number begins with 1.

Despite voting for X, Deok-su is the only X voter who doesn't celebrate the games ending.

He is the evilest X voter.

The only reason he voted X was to plan a rebellion by making his outside world gang gather weapons and forcing the guards to give up the location to the Squid Game, he was also had a plan to steal all the money in the piggy bank, but ultimately it all failed and never happened.

Jang Deok-su is one of the seven characters confirmed to be a smoker. The others are Seong Gi-hun, Park Jung-bae, Cho Sang-woo, Han Mi-nyeo, Thanos and The Masked Officer.

He has the highest kill count in the 33rd Squid Game, plus indirect kills.

He is the only Squid Game player seen also killing someone outside of Squid Game. This is seen in "Hell" where he kill gang member (his former subordinate) on Bridge at night.

He is the only shown player to laugh at his Marbles partner after passing the game.

It is confirmed by director Hwang that Deok-su wanted to be a rapper like Thanos but was forced to be a gangster by his father.

He is the only one of the main nine S1 player characters to never have his number announced.

He was possibly in affiliation with Player 202 from the 37th Squid Game as he is a gangster, and 202 also seems to be a gangster due to his tattoos.
